

Oregon Men To Swim Club In Portland

Varsity Swimmers Have Had Little Practice Before Meet

Fifteen Aquatic Stars To Make Trip Saturday

Oregon's swimming team will meet Multnomah club in Portland Saturday night. Both teams are strong and the meet is expected to be close.

It will be the first outside meet of the season for Oregon. A practice meet with the frosh is all the competition the varsity men have had this year while the Multnomah club team has met and defeated Oregon State.

The meet will consist of the following events. 200-yard relay, 100-yard breast stroke, 100-yard back stroke, 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard race, and diving. After the meet a water polo game will be played.

The following men will make the trip Saturday: Johnny Anderson, George Pratt, Al Edwards, Art Hansen, Palmer McKim, Bob Bishop, Rosser Atkinson, all sprinters; Dick Stevenson and Bill McNabb, back strokes; Paul Lafferty, breast stroke, Len Thomson and Joe Brown, divers; Chuck Silverman and Charles Foster, distance men. Hal Fraundorf will accompany the team as manager.

Oregon Scientist Known in Britain

Caswell's Physics Book Gets Magazine Review

Even in England, scientists know of Dr. A. E. Caswell, professor of physics at this University. The following review of his textbook of general physics recently appeared in "Nature," the standard British scientific journal.

"This book is an elementary introduction to physics which is very pleasant to read. It is written to appeal to non-mathematical students and all who are willing to show a passing interest in physics. The conceptions necessary to modern physics appear quite early in its pages, and by gradual stages the reader is introduced to many of the most important results of modern research. Analogies are given quite freely—perhaps too freely, it may be felt, in one or two instances; but the author is always clear, and his final chapter, on the theory of relativity, is exceptionally well written."

MOVING FINGER

(Continued from Page One) toward awards. If those teams are of conference ranking, their games should be counted as well as conference games, but the committee has found it hard to properly state the distinction in the by-laws.

"Conference ranking" is too vague; "inter-sectional games" would not include Pacific coast team contests; and intercollegiate games would include those with such teams as Pacific and Willamette.

Position of insignia on blankets has special meaning under the present system, but the Order of the O has discouraged attempts to add further insignia to distinguish sports. They feel that a too highly decorated blanket would destroy some of its quality. And then there are captains—they receive a star. If a captain is chosen before each game, then it is likely that a large proportion of the team will be starred.

The place in the by-laws is the best for awards, it is agreed.

To put their definition in the constitution would unduly lengthen that document, and most of all it is felt that the system should be easily changed. Definition of major sports is not yet completely settled, with water polo, fencing, and others knocking for admittance.

Cougars and Webfoots Tangle Tonight

OREGON will start on its second half of the 1930 basketball race tonight at Pullman against the Washington State Cougars. The exact midway point was reached with the completion of the second game against Oregon State, but the Cougars opened the season in Eugene and Oregon is on the road now to start the second series against the Pullman team. This series will go a long, long way towards determining just where the Webfoots will end up in the conference standings. Oregon has made a great comeback of late, but the Cougars also perked up Tuesday night to set the Washington Huskies down.

The Webfoots will get little rest on the trip, playing Idaho at Moscow Monday and Tuesday, after a two-game stand against the Cougars. Coach Bill Reinhart will then take his squad up to Spokane to meet the strong Gonzaga Bulldogs in a non-conference game on Thursday. Reinhart has only ten men in his traveling squad, and he will have to handle them very carefully to get the most out of them.

At a meeting of the finance committee Thursday noon Coach Reinhart was authorized to take along one more man than was originally allotted. Ray Bell, reserve guard, was selected to complete the squad. Even at that, several good men who have been breaking into the lineup quite regularly will have been left behind. Max Rubenstein and Homer Dickson are the two most notable examples.

Swimming Schedule Revised Again

The swimming meet scheduled for Corvallis against the Oregon State navigators this Saturday has been called off and the Oregon swimmers will travel to Portland to meet the strong Multnomah club team. The Winged M nators defeated the Beaver paddlers last week, 36 to 30, and the outcome of this week's meet will go far toward fixing the relative strength of the Webfoots and Beavers. Coach Johnny Anderson has been working his men hard this week, and several of the boys have turned in excellent times.

Oregon State could not meet the Webfoots this week due to the annual exposition which is being held on the Corvallis campus. The Beavers will stay at home and give exhibitions of the various strokes during the show and the Webfoots and Beavers have postponed their opening meet until a week from Saturday. The affair will be held at the Women's building pool here and should draw a real crowd. A return meet will be held at Corvallis on March 8.

The Oregon freshman water splashers will remain idle this week but will swim against the Oregon State Rooks the same days that the varsity teams from the two schools clash. This week-end will be a rather dead one as far as athletics are concerned, on the campus. Intramural fencing, handball, and varsity track workouts are the only events listed on the calendar. Next week will be the time to celebrate.

Waggoner Wins In Fencing Duel

Clinches Championship; Score 5 to 1

Dick Waggoner, blond fencing flash, practically clinched the championship of the University by scoring an impressive 5 to 1 victory over Lee Winetrot in the final duel of yesterday's seven combats. A win over Harry Mytinger will give the championship to Waggoner.

Third place in the tourney is in doubt with Dave Killon and George Wadsworth, a promising beginner, vying for honors. Both men achieved triumphs over Mytinger, and in turn lost to both Winetrot and Waggoner. Killon forced both leaders to extend themselves, but Wadsworth is conceded an even chance due to his quick 5 to 0 shutout of Mytinger.

Coach Powell directed the matches and Prof. L. K. Shumaker and Louis Meyers judged the fencing.
