

University of Oregon Women Debaters Braak Even in Tour

Two Defeat Washington; Idaho Wins

Mary Klemm and Margaret Edmunson Return to Home Campus

Negative Side of Domestic Question Defended

Breaking even in their debating campaign, called the "home wrecking expedition," the University of Oregon women's varsity debate squad returned home from the northern states yesterday.

The team, consisting of Mary Klemm and Margaret Edmunson, seniors, defeated the Washington State team at Pullman, and lost a decision to the University of Idaho squad at Moscow.

The Oregon team defended the negative of the question, Resolved, that the modern diversion of women from the home to business and industrial occupations is detrimental to society.

The debates held on the northern campuses raised the total number of varsity women's contests to three, with two losses and one win. The other loss was to Washington who defeated the affirmative team in a contest here two weeks ago, on the same question. All of the contests have been decided by critic judges.

Hilton $50 Award Draws 9 Entrants

Law Students To Debate Question, April 3

Nine law students have entered the Hilton prize contest to be held April 3, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dean Charles E. Carpenter of the law school. The majority of the entrants are of the first year class.

An annual prize of $50 is offered by Frank R. Hilton, of Portland, to the student who presents the best oral discussion of a legal subject selected by the faculty of the law school. To this the law school has added a second prize of $25, and a third prize of $15.

The subject for the contest is: "Resolved, that one threatened with deadly attack should be privileged to defend himself by deadly force, though he might be able, with obvious safety to himself, to avoid the necessity of so doing by retreat."

Eugene attorneys, who will be selected by the law school faculty, will act as judges of the contest.

VOYAGER SAYS STUDENT INTEREST WORLD-WIDE

Bulgaria, with its 6,000 starving university students, has been a republic 52 years, but, according to Miss Thomson, the last thing you hear from a Bulgarian student is a whine for help. Young people seem to feel that they must step in and help their fellow students.

"We have to think in terms of airplanes and radios—not mileage,—in a view of international affairs today," she concluded. "That's what makes international relations so inevitable."

A SECOND LITERARY MAGAZINE TO APPEAR

Opening the season, the first year team took on the Chemawa Indians and had no trouble in scoring a 47-to-25 win. After this game Medford, Albany and Salem met defeat in order by scores of 46 to 19; 54 to 18; and 43 to 22.

In the total score of the season the Frosh are way ahead with 306 points scored in eight games as against 194 points scored against them.

Season Successful
The very successful season past should add a number of men as prospects for future varsity quintets. Clarence James, at forward, has played consistently throughout the season and plays a style that should fit in well with Billy Reinhardt's system.

Don Siegmund is another player whose efforts throughout the season are commendable. He it was who successfully checked the lanky

Preppers in Need of Languages Reinhardt Wants Them Compulsory

"The clue to a nation's heart and soul is its language," says Dr. Kurt F. Reinhardt, associate professor of Germanic languages. "Without understanding each other's speech, a real solidarity of interest and action is impossible, and impossible will be that broad culture of understanding and judgment which always has been the cornerstone of genuine education."

For the reason that an understanding of foreign languages will aid in achieving international peace and co-operation, Dr. Reinhardt believes that the study of foreign languages should be made compulsory in American high schools.

"Each country has the aim and the duty to adapt its educational system to its own needs and its particular situation, and consequently, the question arises whether the compulsory study of foreign languages is or is not serving the needs and interests of this country," says Dr. Reinhardt.

The saying of the poet Goethe, a splendid pedagogue with an open and cosmopolitan mind, that "He who knows no foreign language, does not know his own," has been silently accepted as the creed of all higher education in Europe, according to Dr. Reinhardt.

Few high school students are able to judge for themselves whether or not they will need a knowledge of foreign languages later on in their calling, in the opinion of Dr. Reinhardt. He believes that if languages are entirely elective in our high schools, the students most frequently will take up their language study during their freshman year in college without having acquired any sort of linguistic background.

"The elementary work in class necessarily often fails to arouse the student's interest, the chief concern being to satisfy the requirements and to avoid failures," declared Dr. Reinhardt. "It needs no further explanation that the adequate appreciation and evaluation of the foreign language study is being spoiled that way."

Lewis in the first three Rook games.

Cap Roberts, at center, is a man whose scoring ability, floor work, and defensive strength should be of use to Reinhardt. He has been a consistent scoring threat during the season.

Medford Men Star
At guard there are three men, all from Medford, whose playing throughout the eight games scheduled has been largely responsible for the low scores of the opposition. They are Bill Morgan, Cliff Garnett and Bill Bowerman. The latter was somewhat hindered in the latter part of the season by illness but in spite of his sickness played consistent ball.

As is usually the case, the strength of the Lemon and Green first year team lay somewhat in the reserve strength. Callison had an imposing list of substitutes to call upon, including George Beechler, Bob Neer, Roy Schaneman, Homer Stahl, and Hughie Evans.

Article by Muller Printed in Germany

Der Bund, a newspaper published in Bern, Germany, recently carried on its front page an article by Dr. Gustav Muller, assistant professor of philosophy in the University, on "A Winter Journey Through the American West."

The article deals with a railroad trip which Dr. Muller took this winter in order to attend a conference at Los Angeles. Train accommodations, Oregon and California scenery, and various cities, among them San Francisco, Sacramento, and Los Angeles, are described in detail.

Infirmity Turning Away Many Patients

Once more the infirmity is so full that students desiring admission have to be turned away. All patients are afflicted with colds in some form or other.

Those now in the infirmity list are: Dorothy McMillan, Ronello Lewis, Betty Steele, Holbrook Watts, Marian Musgrove, William Correll, Tom White, Sadie Pondelick, Vernon Arnett, Clarence Hamilton, Prince Helfrich, David Wilson, and Lewis Berger.

AT THE HEILIG—

Although we were much loath to say goodbye to "The Show of Shows" we were most happy to welcome "Goldiggers of Broadway" back to the Heilig theatre to charm new and old audiences today and Sunday. So popular were Winnie Lightner, Nick Lucas, and the rest of the cast with Eugene theatre fans, the management decided to bring them back for a two-day run. Monday will see the Moroni Olsen players on the Heilig stage to be followed Tuesday by "Tiger Rose."

AT THE McDONALD—
Today is the last showing of "Romance of Rio Grande," which has scored another triumph for Warner Baxter. Sunday brings the charming Billie Dove in "Her Private Life," the secret hopes, longings and fears of a beautiful woman.

AT THE REX—
"Mexicali Rose" is a torrid title for a flaming story. A girl who gambled with two men's hearts and what happened thereof is the plot of this most absorbing Rex attraction.

AT THE STATE—
Ronald Coleman's superb talking voice may be heard to good advantage at the State today in "Bulldog Drummond," a play that critics all over the country have proclaimed as fine.

AT THE COLONIAL—
Shall a woman live by the age-old single standard, or shall she assume the double standard that

Coach Announces Debate Schedule

Modern Status of Women To Be Discussed

Three debates have been scheduled for the freshmen women debaters, according to Dr. R. C. Hoerber, debate coach.

Two debates will be held with Linfield college, one at Eugene and one at McMinnville. Gwendolyn Caverhill and Evelyn Roberts, compose the affirmative home team, and Dorothy Stringer and Betty Jones will make up the negative team which will travel to McMinnville. The dates for these two debates are as yet undecided.

Another affirmative team, composed of Jean Lennard and Louise Smith, will debate with Monmouth normal in a single debate here on April 3.

The question to be used will be the same as that of the varsity women: Resolved, that the modern diversion of women from the home to business and industrial occupations is detrimental to society.

DRAMA BY CAPEC IS TO BE GIVEN HERE

From the moment the curtain rises, the audience is made to feel the sense of the unusual, in this hundred-year-old law suit of Prus versus Gregor, and upon the arrival of Emilia on the scene, with her uncanny knowledge of men and events long past, the sense of the mystery grows deeper and more compelling.

This play is the second of a series of three plays presented by the Moroni Olsen players. The third play is "White Wings" by Phillips Barrie, which is to be presented here May 12.

Complimentary Tickets Offered
Tickets will be placed on sale at the Heilig on February 14.

Any house purchasing ten seats will be given a complimentary ticket, or any house purchasing five of the combination tickets will also obtain a complimentary ticket.

Complimentary tickets can only be obtained by seeing Mrs. Virgil Earl at the Heilig.

Celebrate Valentine's Day With Dances, Banquet

Valentine's day on the campus has inspired a large number of house dances as well as the Valentine banquet being held for all members of the sophomore class. Another event which blends in well with the Valentine atmosphere is the marriage of Miss Margaret Underwood to DeVerl Hempy. The couple were quietly married Wednesday noon at the Baptist church, and will make their home here in Eugene. Mrs. Hempy is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha, and Mr. Hempy is affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega.

Alpha Chi Omega, Phi Mu, and Sigma Chi

The various organizations holding dances last night were: Phi Mu informal, held at the chapter house with Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Baker, Miss Sue Badolett, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Tiffany and Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Macduff as patrons and patronesses. The Alpha Chi Omega formal grille dance was also held at the chapter house. Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Manerud, and Mr. and Mrs. David Bauman acted as patrons and patronesses. An informal Valentine dance was also given by members of Sigma Chi at the chapter house. Patrons and patronesses are named as Dr. and Mrs. John Mez, Mr. and Mrs. William Novell, and S. Stephenson Smith.

Omega Hall, A. B. C., and Alpha Xi Delta

Omega hall held its dance in the ballroom of the Men's dormitory. The Alpha Xi Delta house was the Underclassmen of Alpha Beta Chi entertained with a Valentine dance at the chapter house. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne M. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. R. U. Moore, and Mr. John M. Rae were invited to attend.

Zeta Tau Alpha

The Osburn hotel was the scene of the Zeta Tau Alpha formal last evening. Hearts were suspended from the ceilings and walls, and clever silhouette ideas were worked out. The colors of the fraternity, turquoise blue and steel gray, also served as part of the motif. Miss Esther Saager sang "Sweetheart of Zeta Tau Alpha" as a feature during the evening. Patrons and patronesses were Dr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Casey, Mrs. Ella Frazier, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Titus, Mrs. Elizabeth Scalfefe, and Mrs. John Seavey.

Extension Division Aids in Research

Collaborates With National Association

The University extension division is assisting the National Extension association and the correspondence study department in two important pieces of research work. Miss Mozelle Hair, head of the University correspondence department, is conducting the investigation upon the basis of work here.

The first research is to compare correspondence study and class work from the point of view of students. The second is to compare the technique of both from the professors' points of view.

Miss Hair reports that preliminary data indicates that correspondence study in Oregon is proving very effective. Several correspondent students later coming to the Oregon campus have made Phi Beta Kappa through their scholarship.
