

Webfoot Splashers Plan Big Clash With O. S. C. Next Saturday

Oregon Swim Team Trains For Staters

Added Strength Brightens Prospects for Win Next Saturday

Star Breast Swimmers Return To Squad

Oregon's swimming team will be at its full strength when it invades Corvallis Saturday night to meet the Staters. Two weeks ago the Webfoots and Beavers tied at 42 all in a match here. The Oregon men are looking forward to breaking the tie and winning again as in the previous three years.

In the last meet Oregon did not have a regular breast stroke man able to compete. However, Ron Lewis, letterman from last year, is in training again and so is Paul Lafferty, one of the stars from last year's fresh team. Steve Fletcher is also out for this event. Lafferty seems to have an edge over the others and is expected to take first in Saturday's meet.

Prospects Good

An addition to the back stroke ranks in the person of Fred Sears has helped the outlook in that event. Sears is a new man, not in very good condition yet, but is proving to be a fine understudy to Bill McNabb. McNabb had to swim the breast stroke race against O. S. C. last time and this disrupted the medley relay team on which he is supposed to swim back stroke.

Chuck Silverman who lowered his own northwest record in the 440 last year has been bothered very much this season with rheumatism in his arm and shoulder. He is in better condition now than two weeks ago when he lost to Fred Wadley, Oregon State's star. He may win Saturday.

Swimmers Practice

The swimmers, both varsity and frosh, have been working very hard for the O. S. C. meet. Practice starts every afternoon about 4:30 and lasts till 6. Water polo which is great for developing endurance, usually follows regular practice. The varsity men beat the Orangemen in this game last time and are looking forward to repeating.

Art Building Location Of 'Littlest Museum'

The "Littlest Museum," which is located at the entrance to the sculpture department of the architecture and allied arts building, is nearing completion.

This museum has been constructed at the instigation of Richard W. Bock, professor of sculpture. Students' work and prints and photographs of masterpieces are to be exhibited.

Only a few finishing touches remain. Eugene Potts, freshman in art, is making a copper etching to be placed at the entrance of the museum. On it will be the words "The eternal impulse since the world began is to fashion things, and this we call art."

OREGON HOOP TEAM LOSES DeNEFFE TILT

Eighty Men Now Turning Out for Grid Work

BELIEVE it or not—Coach Doc Spears has eighty names listed on his roster for spring football practice, but that seemingly large number of football aspirants—large indeed for Oregon—means little to Doc. Last year, when he issued the call for spring practice at Minnesota, 120 men answered and they all turned out regularly. The eighty Webfoots would constitute a sizeable squad, too, but there are several of the men who are apparently affected with the temperamental attitude—in other words, they do not turn out regularly.

Spring practice means little to a team unless the men practice every day—especially is this true this year with Coach Spears striving to introduce an entirely new system. Of course, there is not all the glory connected with the spring work that there is with the big games in the regular season, but Spears' doctrine is that a man should play because he likes the game more than the personal glory attached. What we are driving at is simply this: the members of the Oregon football squad should be willing to work hard, and regularly, this spring to enable Coach Spears to turn out a powerful team next fall.

Over at Oregon State, Paul Schissler has over ninety men turning out every night and they, too, are working hard. Of course they are out to hand Doc a setback in his first year at Oregon, and incidentally to break the winning streak of the Webfoots over the Beavers. Bill Simmons, sports editor of the Barometer, declares that we will not recognize the Beaver line this year, as Schissler is concentrating his attention to building a strong forward wall.

Intramural Events To Be Continued in Spring

Intramural athletics at Oregon are enjoying their most successful year, and an even more intensive program is being planned for spring term. The first big event on the list is the donut relay carnival, but the big intramural baseball league will also come in for its share of attention. Handball is the lone sport going on at present, but some great matches have been played of late. This sport seems to be increasing in popularity every year, and there is always a large group of spectators on hand for the matches.

Bill Hayward is hard at work with the track men and he is doing his best to get them in shape, so that they will be able to afford some interesting competition on Hayward field when the donut runners get together. Students wandering about the campus can see groups of ball players out working the kinks out of their arms around almost every living organization, and the race for baseball honors promises to be hotly contested this year. When these donut games start there are sure to be plenty of exciting plays take place.

While nothing definite has yet been done about tennis, intramural matches will probably be held during next term. Then, too, there are plenty of golf enthusiasts around the campus, and it would not be surprising to see another tourney held this year. The one staged last year was not bad for a starter. The dream of the members of the physical education department, that every Oregon man would be actively interested in some sport, seems about to be realized.

Phi Delta Kappa Elects Eight Men

Education Honorary Plans Initiation for April 5

Eight new members were elected to Phi Delta Kappa, national education honorary for men, at a meeting held last week.

Those taken into the organization are: John DeWitt Davis, Gerald LeRoy Jensen, W. Mitchell Jones, Paul Menegat, George Schlessler, Gilbert A. Sprague, S. Leslie Godard, and James Manning.

Formal initiation of these pledges will take place April 5 at the Craftsman's club.

J. A. Churchill, president of the Southern Oregon Normal school and an honorary member of Phi Delta Kappa, has been invited to speak at the banquet that will follow. In connection with the initiation a musical is being planned by Irving Mather.

Officers of the group are: president, Charles Easton Rothwell; vice-president, Ralph W. Leighton; recording secretary, Henry Magnuson; corresponding secretary, Earl M. Pallett; and historian, Ralph U. Moore.

LOWDOWN ON FRENCH PLAY NOW DISCLOSED

(Continued from Page One) bit. It's a darn good play, though, so good that I might say that whatever we do to it, it will still be a darn good play.

"And we have a good cast. The French is going to be good, but I really don't think the audience should confine itself to French students. These people will make themselves understood. There's Art, and Jewel Ellis, and Charles Howell. . . . If that isn't enough good actors, there's Pat Howell, and Madame Beall, and Dick Givens, and Cornelia Pipes, and myself.

"But I don't think I'd mention my name, if I were you," he said. "I'm directing the play, too, and I think maybe you'd just better say that . . ."

Just then the bell rang, and as Mr. Myers had a class, he turned to go. But he turned around as he left long enough to shout to me. "Whatever you tell them, though," he shouted back, "tell them this is going to be a darn good play . . . I know my French plays."

'Brother Jonathan,' Sensational Blanket Sheet, Rests In Library

A huge newspaper, three feet long and two feet in width, rests in the vault at the main library. Its contents, however, have all the sensationalism of the modern tabloid. The paper, "Brother Jonathan," printed in New York in 1851 by the Wilson publishing company, is of a size to fit laps before reducing became popular.

The feature story is entitled "The Career of a Country Girl in New York, or the Temptations of Town." Two full pages of engravings illustrate the text of this sad story. Some of the scenes in the heroine's downfall are: "The Ice Cream Saloon," "The Flash Ball," "Shame and Remorse," "Betrayal," "The Soup House," and "Burial."

A runner-up in popular interest and also copiously illustrated with appropriate pictures is: "The Serving Girl's Dream of Love and Pleasure."

Track Team Will Have Dual Meet in April With O. S. C.

Northwest Championship Will Be Decided at Pullman

Washington Relay Races Attract Colleges

The track men of the varsity team will get their first chance to show what kind of records they are able to hang up in competition with rival major institutions, when they line up against Oregon State in a dual relay meet at Hayward field late in April.

The exact date is tentative. Ronald Robnett, assistant graduate manager, is negotiating to have the meet shoved ahead to April 25, as the high school interscholastic track meet will be run off here on the original date, April 26.

Carnival Important
The Washington relay carnival will be the big thing in relay meets, as most of the northwest colleges will send teams to compete for the title. Oregon's chances to cop it are not too bright as Washington is hoped to take first place in running events this year.

The two dual meets, with Washington at Eugene and Oregon State at Corvallis, should stir up the fans. The main feature of the Washington meet will probably be the mile race between Rufus Keiser, of Washington, and Ralph Hill, Webfoot streak. Last year these two men put on a thrilling race with Keiser nosing out Hill at the finish. However, Hill is a very careful athlete and is steadily improving. Already a top-notch in the mile, he stands a good chance of skimming close to the records of the leading American runners this season.

Moeller To Compete
The big shot of the schedule will be the Northwest conference championship meet at Pullman. The Webfoots played host to the visiting northwest teams in the cinder battles last year, from which the Huskies emerged with the crown. Oregon's array of field men, including Ed Moeller, Homer Dixon, Orville Brethauer, and Bob Robinson, may bring

Change Majors Now Is Registrar's Advice

Only three students, who are intending to change their majors, have followed the advice of the registrar, Earl M. Pallett, and visited his office to go through the necessary procedure, it was announced yesterday.

Last Saturday notice was given that this must be done before noon of March 15. If the request is not followed there will be much delay and confusion in registration next term, the registrar warns. Only the rest of this week remains, so step on it, all you would-be major-changers!

Freshman Subs Beat Senior Seconds 19-5

The freshman women second team defeated the senior second team in the only basketball game played last evening by the score of 19-5. This week will complete the schedule, the all-star team being chosen at the end of the week, and the game will be played early next week.

Lacrosse Teams Picked by Coach

First and Second Squads Only Ones Chosen

The lacrosse teams were chosen last night by Janet Woodruff, coach, and Mary Wilburn, head of lacrosse. Only two teams, a first and a second, were chosen from all turning out for the sport. Owing to hockey practice, lacrosse was postponed and not so many came out.

Penn State college is having a heck of a time with "Hell Week," so to speak. The daily paper runs an honor roll of houses which have abolished the practice, and so far 16 have added their names to the list.
