

Many Loom As Candidates For Election

Brooks and Johnson Will Run for A. S. U. O. Presidency

VICE-PREXIES SCARCE

Hall, Tussing, Van Dine Are Contenders for Emerald Post

By DAVID WILSON
A ring has been drawn around Thursday, May 1, on the calendar which hangs on the wall of Tom Stoddard's office. The president of the associated students has set that day for the annual election of student body officers. It will be like "red Thursday" on the Oregon campus, and tense, hostile groups will mill around the polling place.

Another ring, this one figurative, has been drawn on the political battleground. Nearly all of the students who plan to be candidates have thrown their hats into this enclosure already, but a few more hesitant ones still stand around the edge and nervously finger the brims of their derbies.

Brooks and Johnson to Vie

Stan Brooks, junior in law, and Hal Johnson, junior in business administration, have definitely announced their candidacies for president.

"You may say that I will run," said Brooks.

"Yes, I am to be a candidate," said Johnson.

Chuck Laird has not as yet made up his mind whether he will run for president or vice-president. "I do not know yet which it will be," he said. "Perhaps I will not run at all."

Calvin Bryan is another candidate who has been mentioned both for the presidency and the vice-presidency.

Two Deny Candidacy
Two men reported to be candidates for vice-president emphatically eliminated themselves.

Journalist of Germany Will Talk Tonight

League of Nations Talk is Slated at Villard Hall at 8 p. m.

TO SPEAK ON LEAGUE

Hoeneva Tribunal Does Not To Be Told by Herr Von Dewall
Rejoining the League of Nations speaking tour of the United States, Herr Wolf von Dewall, visiting the campus today, at 8 o'clock tonight in Villard hall, he will speak on phases of the organization and function of the League of Nations.

Mr. Dewall, who is nationally known for his work as editorial writer for the Frankfurter Zeitung, famous German newspaper, has been in touch with the work of the league for several years, and is said to have a broad understanding of its problems and function.

To Mirror German Status

He will also tell of the place Germany holds in peace movements today; here, too, referring to the Kellogg pact and other peace treaties, to show that since the world war, Germany has been among the very first to accept disarmament. Germany's relations with Poland, and effects of the Versailles treaty on this relationship will furnish another topic of Dewall's lecture.

Difference in Youth of Today Due to Science, Says Adams

Student Pastor Says 'Futile Waste of Time' to Argue Whether Modern Youth is Much Better Than Predecessor

ALL arguments as to whether the youth of today is better or worse than their predecessors were characterized by Max Adams, Presbyterian student pastor, as "a futile waste of time," when interviewed yesterday by the Emerald.

"Unfortunately, I am not acquainted with the youth of former times," Mr. Adams said, "but what difference there may be is due largely to the new tool that has been put into our hands. That tool is scientific method.

Sloan and Potwin Oregon Entries In Coast Contest

Both Orators Are State Champions; Chances Thought Good
Team Also Scheduled on Number of Debates

With the entering of two state extempore speaking champions in the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Forensic conference, March 26, 27, 28, at Tucson, Arizona, Oregon's chances of taking the coast title in both the extempore public speaking division and in the oratorical division are unusually good, Dr. Ralph C. Hoerber believes.

Errol Sloan and Arthur Potwin, who will leave Saturday night for California, have each taken the Oregon State Intercollegiate extempore speaking title, Sloan in 1927, and Potwin this year. Sloan was entered in last year's conference in the extempore contest and is entered in the same division this year, and Potwin will speak in the oratorical event.

Five Debates Scheduled
The two men will uphold the forensic reputation of the University in five debates, before the Coast conference opens session. At Pasadena, the team will meet the California Institute of Technology, March 17. At Los Angeles, three contests will take place. The team will meet U. C. L. A., U. S. C., and Southwestern university, March 18, 19, and 20, respectively. The Oregon team will uphold the negative side of the disarmament question.

Hodge Says United States of Europe is Economic Necessity

Co-operation Seen as Need By Geologist

Losses in Russia Laid to Lack of Trade With Other Countries
Intense Naturalization Hinders Accord
By MERLIN BLAIS
"The United States of Europe is an absolute economic necessity," Dr. Edwin T. Hodge, of the geology department, believes. Dr. Hodge, who recently returned from an extensive world tour, which included Asia, Africa, and Europe, was able to see conditions in Europe as they exist.

Interest High in Oregon Dances During Vacation

Other Committeemen Are Named for Home Towns, Says Miss Haggerty

Laurelhurst Will Be Scene Of Portland Affair
The cast is made up of six women: Sue, Eleanor Poorman; Minnie, Wildred Wren; Emily, Margaret Turner; Mrs. Bostwick, Betty Cook; Mrs. Saunders, Albertina Hankey; and Zilla Birdsong, Dorothy Busenbark.

"Aria Da Capo" Best Known
The next play, "Aria Da Capo," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, is perhaps the best known on the bill. It was done here several years ago, by a cast which included Art Gray and Dr. Ed Buchanan, who have been seen in several performances this year.

Concluding Play Modern

The concluding play is "The Women Folk," the most modern of the three; in which a young man is distracted. He is not to be blamed, for his distraction is caused by too many women. . . . (this is a platitude).

Y' Group Schedules Meeting for Friday

Dr. Hodge is inclined, from his position as a geologist, to weigh problems according to material data, and he discusses the proposed United States of Europe in terms of national resources, and disregards entirely the usual questions discussed on this problem, such as the historical differences of the past, the racial and national differences, the theories of sociologists, and the unfathomable intrigues of politicians.

Says Cooperation Necessary
"Europe cannot survive in the economic struggle that impends there results in a closer cooperation between the different parts of the continent than has ever existed in the past."

Rise in Food Price Evident
"Perhaps the lack of cheap food from Russia could alone explain the fact that the cost of living in Europe has increased almost to a point where it compares with that of the United States.

Free Growth Restricted
"The Minette iron mines of France, and the coal fields of Alsace-Lorraine furnish another illustration, where the lack of freedom of inter-exchange not only restricts free growth in the iron and steel industry, but puts them on a cost basis which makes both of them compete with difficulty with the same industry in the United States.

"The high tariff, and the boundary restrictions in the numerous small areas that make up Europe, makes each one dependent on its internal natural resources not only for bare necessities, but for the raw materials needed in their industries. A study of the geological map of France clearly shows that the separate countries are not adapted to supply all of the needs of their individual groups of people, but, in reality, each is dependent on the others for specialized raw products.

Free Exchange Difficult
"The intense nationalization in Europe is making the free exchange of these raw products more and more difficult, producing labor depressions, an increased cost of living, and an almost hopeless industrial future, when faced with competition in the world markets.
