

University Collects Double Amount of Money From Out-of-State Student Fees This Year as Last

Oregon Clamps Down Lid, Takes in Big Tuition Sum

Foreign Students Also Made To Pay; Close Check Is Made To Curb Fee-Jumpers

The amount of money taken in by the University of Oregon from non-resident fees during the fall and winter terms of the school year 1929-30 is more than double that taken in for corresponding terms of the school year 1927-28 and exceeds by $6,029.26 the amount taken in for corresponding terms for the school year 1928-29, statistics released by the comptroller's office show.

Fall Term Increase
For the fall term 1929-30, 220 fees, aggregating $10,905.63 were collected; while for the fall term of 1928-29, 150 fees, totalling $7,469.50, were collected; and for the fall term of 1927-28, 94 fees, totalling $4,700.00 found their way into the University coffers.

Decrease in '26
During the school year 1925-26, $12,310.00 was collected; while for the school year 1925-27 there was a 5.1 per cent decrease, $11,675.00 being taken in that year. In 1927-28, $13,750.00 was collected, making a 17.7 per cent increase for that year. For the school year 1928-29, the sum of $21,944.50 was paid in fees by 411 students, making an increase of 59.5 per cent over the previous year.

The large increase in collections for the school year 1928-29 was the result of a stricter policy by the administration regarding the enforcement of the University's non-resident fee regulations, according to a report made by the statistical division of the registrar's office.

Close Check Made
The investigation ordered by the legislature in January did not contribute toward the increase, as there was a large increase in collections during the fall term before the legislative session convened, the report states. Applicants were examined more closely and all cases decided in previous years were re-examined at the opening of school in the fall of 1928. Self-supporting students were no longer excused from payment, unless they could show beyond a reasonable doubt that their place of residence was in the state of Oregon, the report shows. Foreign students are no longer exempt from the fee, although in the case of self-supporting Filipinos, the fee has been waived after one year and in less time in some cases, officials of the registrar's office state.

Many Examined
During the school year, 1928-29, 472 cases were examined, in addition to a review of more than 500 old cases. A close check on all these cases required a considerable volume of correspondence and also many personal interviews. This makes necessary a somewhat larger expense than has been incurred in previous years, but the administration believes that it is justified, not only because of the fees collected, but also because it has created more respect for the regulation and has made possible a more impartial enforcement.

"Talkie" Talks
Well, here we are; free from exams for another term and all set for those balmy spring days. But there's nothing like a good show to really usher one into the land of make believe and Eugene has a goodly share of worthwhile attractions this week. Norma Talmadge, always a favorite, takes McDonald honors in her first talking picture, "New York Nights." Imagine Norma in Paris with Gilbert Roland and you'll have romance with a real flavor. James and Lucille Gleason, equally famous (though married) are co-starred in "Shannons of Broadway" at the Rex. James gave that play to his wife for a Christmas present, and then to the public for a lot of good laughs. "Acquitted" at the State is a high-powered cinema with Lloyd Hamilton as the man in question. And now that the Colonial "talks" we'll let "Three Live Ghosts" speak for itself. Anyway, ghosts aren't any worse than a skeleton in the family closet. "Billie Dove," that starry-eyed movie star, is quite as exquisite as ever in "The Painted Angel," having to do, of course, with a lot of chorines and backstage people.

Educators gathered recently at Atlantic City, inspected talking movies with an eye to making use of them in public school instruction.
