

Grade Percentage Ratio Plan Suggested In Amendment at Meeting of Phi Beta Kappa Honorary

Whole Course Basis Subject For Selection

Standards of Honorary To Remain Unchanged Under New System

Resolution on Death of Mrs. McCornack Passed

An amendment that would substitute the grade percentage ratio for the grade point average was proposed at a meeting of Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic honorary, held yesterday afternoon. The proposed amendment neither raises nor lowers the standards of election to Phi Beta Kappa, but is suggested following recent student agitation for a different system of figuring grades. If the amendment is passed by the honorary, the student's whole course in the University, including the first term of his freshman year, which was formerly omitted in the reckoning, will be the basis for computing eligibility to the organization.

A resolution was also passed at the meeting on the death of Ellen Condon McCornack, widow of Oregon's pioneer geologist, who passed away recently. The resolution is as follows:

WHEREAS, our long-esteemed friend and fellow member, Mrs. Ellen Condon McCornack, has been removed from our midst by death, and

WHEREAS, Mrs. McCornack was for long active in civic affairs, productive in scholarship, and zealously faithful in her religious work, affording to the community a noble example of a well-rounded, simple and sincere life which has been an inspiration to all who were privileged to know her, now

THEREFORE, we, her associates in Phi Beta Kappa, do hereby express our deep gratitude for the privilege of working with this beloved woman, and the great loss we feel in her passing from our company, and

We further desire that this expression of our appreciation be made known to the administration of the University of Oregon, her Alma Mater, to which she brought added distinction; to the Alumni Association, of which she was one of the most distinguished members; and to her immediate family as a token of our sympathy.

Class Changes To Be Checked

English Department Lays Down New Law

Formerly when students got the big urge to change from their section in English courses to another they did so. Without questioning anyone, they just picked up their Beowulf's and departed elsewhere; but nevermore.

From now on and henceforth Dr. C. V. Boyer, head of the English department, decrees that no such conduct will be permissible. In order to change from one section of an English course to another, the student must get a petition from the office, and get the signature of the present instructor, the proposed instructor, the adviser and the head of the department. If the petition is granted, cards will be sent to both the instructors and the registrar's office notifying them of the change.

By this change, Dr. Boyer hopes to avoid the confusion that ensues when students transfer and cannot be located.

Hugh Miller Given Praise in Senior Recital; Large Audience Encores Piano Student of John Stark Evans

By BARNEY MILLER

If one were to judge from the remarks of the audience and the enthusiastic and warm applause which marked its appreciation, the program rendered by Hugh Miller, who appeared in his senior piano recital at the music auditorium last night, was a decided success and a distinct triumph for the pianist himself.

In this program, which was interesting enough to please the casual listener as well as difficult enough to hold the attention of the trained musician, Miller displayed a technique which was extremely polished and flashy, excellent interpretive style and splendid execution.

Although the entire program, which was excellently chosen, was well rendered, it reached its real climax in the final number, Rubinstein's "Concerto No. 4, D-minor." In this selection Miller was accompanied on the organ by John Stark Evans, of whom he is a pupil. The combination of the piano and the organ was extremely pleasing and it was in this selection, perhaps, that Miller gave his most outstanding performance, executing difficult runs and trills with professional skill and exhibiting excellent technique.

At the close of the program, the crowd, which was unusually large, called the pianist back for an encore, "Juba Dance," by Nathaniel Dett.

The program was as follows:

- I
- English Suite No. 11, A-minor Bach
- prelude Bach
- Allemande Courente
- sarabande Bournee
- gigue Beethoven
- Sonata Op. 53 Beethoven
- II
- On Wings of Song.....Mendelssohn
- Spinning Song Mendelssohn
- Etude Op. 10, No. 1.....Chopin
- Etude Op. 10, No. 5.....Chopin
- Etude Op. 10, No. 12.....Chopin
- III
- Concerto No. 4, D-minor Rubinstein

will be possible to ascertain the exact location and size of all underground pipe, thus avoiding digging into the ground when new pipe is being added, repairs are being made, or excavation work is being done.

The blueprints now on hand are out of date, as many changes have taken place in the last few years.
