Annual Meet Of Scientists To Be In June

Conference Is Designated
As Most Important of Entire Year

Sound Films Are Feature Planned for Session

Leading scientists from all over the United States will take part in the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Pacific division, which will be held at the University of Oregon June 18 to 21, according to a partially completed program announced by O. F. Stafford, head of the chemistry department here, and in charge of the arrangements for the session. The conference, which is declared to be one of the most important of the year on the coast, is expected to bring hundreds of scientists and those interested in science to Eugene.

Dillehunt To Speak

A review of the progress of research on the Pacific coast and in the far west will open the session Wednesday afternoon, June 18. Dr. Richard B. Dillehunt, dean of the University of Oregon medical school in Portland, and Dr. C. E. Lipman, University of California, will survey the field of life sciences. Dr. J. A. Anderson, Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, and Dr. R. B. Brode, University of California, will describe the principal noteworthy accomplishments in the physical sciences.

Of particular interest is the fact that the sound film of Sir William Bragg, "Arrangement of Atoms and Molecules in Crystals," and the one-reel film by C. W. Hewlett on "Radioactive Rays," both of which are considered outstanding achievements have been secured for this opening session.

To Discuss Land Plants

The origin of land plants will be the topic of the annual president's address by Dr. Douglass H. Campbell, of Stanford university, and world famous botanist, which will be given Wednesday evening. Dr. Campbell has studied here and abroad, and is the author of a number of books on scientific subjects.

What is believed to be one of the outstanding features of the meeting will be the symposium on trees, which is scheduled for Thursday morning. Dr. Wilson Compton, secretary-manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers association, Washington, D. C., one of the highest American authorities on wood utilization, will represent the consuming side of the wood situation. Dr. Compton is the brother of Dr. Carl Compton, winner of the Nobel prize for physics, and recently elected president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A number of experts in tree propagation, forest conservation, insects, etc., will attend the symposium to present this side of the situation. Among these will be Dr. Thornton T. Munger, Portland, director of the Pacific Northwest Experiment station.

Through the study of tree rings, the horizon of American history has been pushed back to at least eight centuries before Columbus. Instrumental in this study has been the work of Dr. Andrew El-

Polling Gab

By THORNTON GALE

Jesse Douglas was the first man to cast his ballot after the polls were opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Tom Stoddard, student body president, was the second to finish marking his ballot (borrowing the reporter's pen) and he did not vote a straight ticket.

Cars with Cherry leaves tied on to them paraded up and down 13th street yesterday, gathering in the stray voters.

The Sigma Chi house was locked all day yesterday from 6 o'clock in the morning until the final vote was cast at 3 o'clock.

Six or seven students who came to the polls found that their ballots had already been cast. At 3 o'clock they were allowed to vote upon proper identification. This will not invalidate the election, declared Dick Horn, unless the vote is very close.

Ballyhoo bulletins, issued by both sides, were distributed to every voter attending the polls.

Over 100 cars owned by both sides paraded up and down the streets, carting independent and hall voters to the polls.

The prayer of many fraternities has now become, "Oh, Laird, give us this day our daily bread."

One house threatened to tub its house manager if he served Cherry pie before the election was over.

In almost all of the 10-minute intervals between classes, between

Retiring President Issues Call for All A. W. S. To Be Present

"Since this is the last mass meeting of the A. W. S. this year, I'd like to urge everyone to be sure to come," Helen Peters, retiring president of the organization, is quoted as saying in what is probably her last official statement.

Installation of officers will be one feature of the meeting, which is scheduled for alumni hall in Gerlinger building at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

In addition to the installation ceremonies, Bishop Walter Taylor Sumner, of the Episcopal church, will give a 20-minute talk on "Women's Power Consciousness." Bishop Sumner, who is making his annual visit to the campus, has for 16 years, since he came to Oregon, been extremely interested in the students of the University.

He will be available for conferences at the Y. W. C. A. bungalow from 11 to 12 in the morning, and at the Y. M. hut from 4 to 5 in the afternoon. Arrangements for conferences with the bishop may be made through Max Adams and Dorothy Thomas, secretaries of the respective organizations.

Prom Queen To Be Named By Balloting

Campus To Vote Today for Choice of Co-eds To Preside at Hop

SORORITY WOMEN UP

Houses in Rivalry To Get
Their Candidates in Beauty Post

Today will decide who will act as queen of the Junior Prom. The election for the pretties girl in the junior class to rule over the evening revellers, who will gather the night of May 10, at the annual junior dance, will be open to the campus today.

Every student in the University is entitled to one vote in the choosing of the queen, which is to be conducted in the living organizations by assistants working under the queen committee. Independent may vote for their choice at a booth set up at the Y hut, which will be open between the hours of 9 and 5.

From the 18 candidates chosen from the women's living organizations will be elected one girl to officiate as queen, and the four next highest will act as her maids of honor. A good deal of rivalry, according to Miriam Swafford, who is in charge of the election, is being shown for the position of queen, and a great deal of electioneering is being done by the women among the men of the campus.

The Junior Prom, as planned by Cal Bryan, press director, will have an elaborate and impressive pirate setting, with a grand march and coronation ceremonies as well as opening events. Features, which are being arranged by Orpha Ager, will be in keeping with the pirate setting. Plans are being arranged, with a special section which will be open to the mothers who will be on the campus for Mother's day.

Candidates Listed

The list of prom queen candidates as listed on the ballots is as follows: Janice Strickland, Alpha Chi Omega; Lois Joy Hanson, Alpha Delta Pi; Gladys Haberlach, Alpha Gamma Delta; Dorothy Teepe, Alpha Phi; Orpha Ager, Alpha Xi Delta; Maida Ehlers, Chi Delta; Glay Joy, Chi Omega; Hope Holland, Delta Delta Delta; Sally Addleman, Delta Gamma; Louise Smartt, Delta Zeta; Maxine Glover, Gamma Phi Beta; Mildred Dobbins, Zeta Tau Alpha; Margherita Hay, Kappa Alpha Theta; Peggy Turney, Kappa Delta; Gwen Panton, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Mary Caniparoli, Phi Mu; Virginia Sterling, Sigma Kappa; Lorena Wilson, Susan Campbell.

Students to take charge of the polls at the Y. W. bungalow today are: 9-10, Gracia Haggerty and Henrietta Steinke; 10-11, Lucille Bowman and Gladys Mack; 11-12, Naomi Cobb and Beatrice Takke; 1-2, Mary Agnes Hunt and Mary Louise Bodine; 2-3, Edith Thompson and Dorothy Eads; 3-4, Helen Ashliman and Jane Cullers; 4-5, Beatrice Hurtt and Louise Rickert.

Election at Convention Held Last Week

Daphne Hughes, president of the local Y. W. C. A., was elected president of the national Y. W., at the conference of representatives from all over the United States, which was held in Detroit during the past week.

This announcement was made to Dorothy Thomas, secretary of the Y, yesterday, in a wire from headquarters. In being elected to this position, Miss Hughes automatically becomes head of the National Student assembly, and chairman of the executive group of the national student council.

"This is the first time an Oregon girl has ever been awarded this honor," Dorothy Thomas declared, "and it is only the second time that a girl from the West has been chosen. Two years ago, Dorothy McCloud, of Washington State college, was elected chairman of the executive group."

Miss Hughes will preside at the national convention of Y. W. which will again convene in two years.

Robinson Chalks Up Win in First Rounds of Match

All Competitors in First
Play-off Must Turn
In Card Soon

Chart To Show Progress of Tournament Posted

Bob Robinson won his match with Milo Marlatt yesterday afternoon in the first round of the Emerald's spring handicap golf tournament. Robinson, with a one-stroke handicap over his opponent, was five up with four holes to play. He turned in an 83 for the match. The players are in the first flight.

The first round of the tournament must be played by the end of this week, Faulkner Short, manager, announced yesterday. There will be a state tournament held at the Eugene Country club's links during the latter part of May and all Emerald handicap players must be off the greens.

A chart with the names and handicaps of the players has been placed on the bulletin board in the Emerald copy room. Winners of the first round matches are to telephone their scores to Faulkner Short, Sigma Pi Tau, and he will post them on the chart.

Oregon Teams Win Majority Debate Meets

13 Contests Taken and 9
Lost; No-decisions
8 in Number

Women, Freshman Squads
Best Opponents by Slight Margin

The debate teams under the direction of Walter E. Hempstead Jr. and Ralph C. Hoerber have closed a successful season with a total of 13 debates won, 9 lost, and 8 non-decision contests.

In oratory and extemporaneous speaking Arthur Potwin won two first prizes, $25 on his topic, "Kellogg Peace Pact and Disarmament," and $60 on his topic, "The Unfinished Task." In the Pacific Coast Oratory, Arthur Potwin won sixth place on two different occasions. In the Pacific Coast Extemporaneous Errol Sloan won sixth place, Roger Pfaff won sixth place in the State Old Line Oratory, and Charles Jones came in third in the oratorical contest on the National Constitution.

Men Win Seven

The men's varsity debate squad which won seven debates, lost five, and participated in five non-decisions, was composed of Robert Miller, Errol Sloan, Calvin Bryan, Arthur Potwin, Eugene Laird, William Cutts, Walter Evans, and Wallace Campbell.

The women's varsity debate, which won three contests and lost two, was composed of Mary Klemm, Margaret Edmunson, Frances Jordan, Elizabeth Painton, Bernice Woodard, and Bernice Conoly.

The women's freshman debate line-up won one debate, lost one, and had one non-decision. Louise Smith, Jean Leonard, Betty Jones, Dorothy Stringer, and Gwendolyn Caverhill were the freshman debaters.

Whitely Wins Place By Margin of 12; Kibbee Barely Gets Position

By DAVID WILSON

In what was probably the most closely contested student body election ever held on the Oregon campus, 2,222 Oregon students yesterday demonstrated that the day of the "straight ticket" is past by electing two candidates on Chuck Laird's ticket while declaring in favor of George Cherry for president and three of his ticket for the remaining positions.

George Cherry was elected by a count of 1,180 votes to 1,042 for Chuck Laird, a majority of 138. When the first returns were announced at 5 o'clock, Cherry had a lead of 50 votes. This was cut to 40 at the 6 o'clock returns and to 32 at 8 o'clock. He rallied, however, holding a lead of 70 at 9 o'clock and doubling it to his final 138 in the final returns at 10:45.

The race between Bill Whitely and Ted Park for the vice-presidency was the only one in which the lead see-sawed through the evening, but the verdict finally went to Whitely, his 1,113 votes giving him a lead of 12 over Park's 1,101. At 5 o'clock Whitely was leading by two votes; at 6 Park had a lead of 23, which he stepped up to 33 in the 8 o'clock returns. Whitely rallied at this point and had cut Park's lead to 11 at 9 o'clock. He then forged ahead in the final count.

Harriet Kibbee and Phyllis Van Kimmell staged the closest race of all in their contest for secretary, Kibbee finally squeezing out a five-vote lead in the finals. Kibbee had a lead of 23 in the first returns, which she increased to 69 and 81 in the next two counts. At 9 o'clock her lead dropped to 59, but she still had a majority of 5 left when the last votes were tallied.

The race between George Christensen and Tony Peterson for the position of senior executive man was not in doubt at any time. Peterson started off with a lead of 66 votes and increased it successively to 87, 128, 174 and 381, his final majority. Peterson tallied 1,240 votes in the finals to Christensen's 959. Peterson won his office by the largest majority given any of the successful candidates.

Reba Brogdon had little trouble in winning over Wilma Enke, totalling 1,288 votes to her rival's 1,017 in the finals. Her majority of 271 gave her the position of senior executive woman with the third largest majority.

Omar "Slug" Palmer beat out Jack Gregg for the job of junior finance officer by second largest majority of 322, totalling 1,267 of Gregg's 945.

Wallace Baker and Dorothy Jean Murphy, supported by Cherry's party for the two junior positions on the Co-op board, went into office with respective totals of 1,088 and 1,131 to beat out Melvin McCarthy's 962 and Faulkner Short's 993.

However, Harold Short, backed by Laird's party for the sophomore seat on the Co-op board, was chosen over Dorothy York by a total of 1,164 to 988.

As expected, the new constitution had no trouble in gaining the two-thirds vote necessary for acceptance for there were only 104
