Andy Proves Homesick Pal For Amos Burg

A NEW Amos and Andy combination has just appeared on the Oregon campus. Amos Burg, Oregon's famed globe-trotter, has acquired a mascot, a little bear-cub named Andy. Andy, who hailed from the McKenzie river region until yesterday, is quite at home at his new residence, although he seems to be somewhat of a burden on Amos's hands. Last night Andy evidently was homesick and whimpered and cried just like a baby. A bottle of milk was quickly put into a tin to soothe the cub. Andy voiced his determination care for it properly.—we'd suggest a course in home nurs-

Keen Competition Expected Keen competition is expected for the two silver loving cups and second and third prizes being offered, according to carnival officials.

The canoe race is but one of the events being planned for the water carnival. A men's and a women's swimming race are being planned, in addition to canoe tilting and other features, Hal Fraundorf, general chairman said.

Sophomores Schedule Class Nominations

Stipe Sets Assembly for Thursday, May 8 In Villard

MORE BUSINESS PENDS

Candidates for the Junior Class Offices Will Be Chosen May 13

With the announcement by Jack Stipe, president of the sophomore class, that the assembly for the purpose of nominating candidates for the positions of junior class officers for next year, would be held Thursday, May 8, politics will again hold the attention of a portion of the student body. Stipe, in calling the assembly which will be held at 7:30 in 107 Villard, added his hopes that a large number of the second-year class attend the meeting as there are other items of interest to the class which will be discussed at this gathering.

"One thing we must settle," Stipe said, "is whether or not we will have a sophomore picnic, and if not, what we will substitute for it. This function is one of the last functions the class will sponsor," he continued, "and it is a matter of interest to the whole class."

The chairman of the election board and the members of the board will be announced in the near future, the day for the election of the junior president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer having been set as Tuesday, May 13.

Band Gives First Outdoor Concert Sunday Evening

Selections of 'Rose Marie' Are Popular; Large Crowd Attends

With a pleasant spring evening favoring them at last, members of the University of Oregon band, directed by John H. Stehn, gave their first Sunday evening outdoor concert over the week-end and made of it a most successful occasion. There were several hundred listeners, many sitting about the lawn and many in cars near the tennis courts where the program was given and the outdoor concert plan, an innovation here, appeared to be very popular.

The band's program was a nicely varied, lively one, handled with much ease and vigor by the organization, which gave further evidence of its steady development under the direction of Mr. Stehn. The selections from the tuneful "Rose Marie," by Friml, were particularly popular.

Music Honorary Chooses Seven

Phi Beta Also Elects New Officers

Seven women have recently been elected to Phi Beta, national professional music and dramatic art fraternity. Dorothy Esch, Freda Stadler, Gretchen Wintermeier, Ruby George, Charlotte Brossius, Geraldine Thompson, and Elizabeth Prindle are the new members who will be formally pledged on Thursday.

New officers who were elected at the beginning of the term are: president, Estelle Johnson; first vice-president, Constance McKenzie; second vice-president, Roma Gross; secretary, Jean Williams; and treasurer, Norma Lyons.

This organization plans to give a scholarship at the end of the year in either voice, violin, or piano, to some student majoring in the school of music.

'Art' and 'Slug' Give Emerald the Air

Inauguration Of Officers To Be Colorful

Songs, Dancing, and Short Program To Feature Installation

TO AWARD ATHLETES

Stoddard To Give Analysis Of Financial Status Of University

All singing, all dancing, all in natural colors. Bigger and better than ever before. That's the promise of the present administration in announcing the inauguration of student body officers to take place Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in Gerlinger hall.

None of the formal beauty of the old-style installations will be lost, according to Tom Stoddard, president of the associated students, but with the aid of certain numbers from the defunct Junior Vodvil, a new note of interest will be injected into the ceremonies. Complete plans have not been announced, but something new and different is promised, and those in charge expect to pack them in.

Blankets To Be Awarded In addition to a short program and the official inauguration of officers, the senior awards of blankets will be made to the three-year lettermen, and the golf team will be awarded gold trophies for having won the Pacific Coast championship last year.

The tennis team which tied with the University of Texas for the national intercollegiate championship will also be given awards.

Council Members Honored Through a special vote of the executive council, the student members of the council are to be presented with a small award for their work on the campus during the past year. In view of the fact that this is the only branch of student activity which has hitherto received absolutely no official recognition of any sort, it was the belief of the council that some small compensation should be made.

Tom Stoddard will present an interesting analysis of the financial condition of the associated students at the present time. Every student will be expected to attend.

Pauline Guthrie To Present Vocal Recital Tonight

Wide Selection Is Made From Handel, Mozart, And Debussy

A program covering an unusual wide range of music has been chosen by Pauline Guthrie, graduate voice student, who will be heard in recital tonight at 8 o'clock at the music auditorium, with Doris Helen Patterson, organist, assisting. Miss Guthrie is the student of Prudence Clark, and Miss Patterson studies with John Stark Evans. Miss Guthrie is well known in campus music circles.

Miss Guthrie's first group will be from the French and from Handel (the Messiah, Acts and Galathea and the opera, "Semiele"). Her second group is from Mozart and her remaining two from Brahms, Saint Saens, and modern writers. Miss Patterson will play Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun."

The membership of the school includes: Freeman Young, Ed Wells, John Creech, Jim Gilbaugh, Kelsey Slocum, Phil Bell, John Penland, Dave Winans, and Ben Vitou.

Evans, Hopkins Given Praise In Joint Organ, Piano Recital

By LOIS NELSON Bored critics, who think the day of sparkling, animated concerts is fading, must have found new zest in living had they heard the piano and organ concert given at the Music auditorium Sunday afternoon by John Stark Evans, organist, and George Hopkins, pianist.

Here was a concert that came near to the ideal. It was given before an alert audience that filled the building. The program had been picked with skilled attention to proportion and variety. It was played by two men whose ability puts them in rank with the finest American musicians and educators. It had the vital spark that distinguishes the "chosen few" from the "would be." And, to boot, it had the added flavor of true newness.

Generally thought harmoniously unfriendly, the organ and piano combination was shown to be instead a magnificent one, when undertaken by able musicians. One is conscious of two definite characteristics of the combination. There are times when it seems merely to strengthen the beauty and power of one or the other of the instruments, whichever has the principal voice at the time. And there are times, of even more interest, when a distinctly new instrumental form seems created. The sharp, definite outline of the piano against the softer, richer (Continued on Page Three)

First Fire Burns in Peter's Lodge on Philomelete Picnic

Clash of steel on steel! Shuffling of quick footsteps! Panting of hot breaths! Short, muffled exclamations!

A duel in the forest? No, merely members of the Arts and Crafts group of Philomelete roasting wieners and toasting marshmallows on barbecue rods before the first fire which ever burned in the great fireplace of the new A. W. S. retreat, Peter's Lodge on the banks of the McKenzie.

Saturday afternoon the members of this organization held the first picnic to be given in the newly built cabin. When they arrived they found the lodge to be a very new, very empty place of yellow, unpainted lumber, with two rooms, both quite empty of everything but a pile of shavings, a barrel of old paper, and a pile of wood.

They played Indians and Pioneers all afternoon, carrying up water from the creek which flows near by, laying a fire in the wide, unused fireplace, hunting for nails among the shavings and for boards among the wood piles and pounding together several odd locking specimens of furniture which served as tables and chairs.

When they departed they left the cabin rather more cheerful and habitable than when they came. The ashes of their fire were gray upon the hearth; and grouped around it, settle-wise, were three wooden benches, and on one of them an orange cushion.
