Well, the Webfoots are still perched in first place in the Northwest conference baseball standings as a result of a little downpour Tuesday afternoon which caused the postponement of the second game of the Oregon-Washington series. Tyler Christian and the boys were all on hand for the battle but after plenty of debate, Christian declared the field too muddy to play on.

The Huskies boarded a train for home last night and the postponed game may be played off when the Webfoots meet Washington at Seattle. The road trip wasn't so profitable for the Graves coached aggregation as they were shunted out of first place and are now trailing the Webfoots. However, Washington is far from through and the Huskies showed more punch than any team to appear here this year.

Coach Bill Reinhart will gather up his band of tossers and leave on the annual road trip, probably Thursday afternoon. The Webfoots will meet the Idaho Vandals, Washington State Cougars, and Washington Huskies on the journey around the circuit and it will be tough going.

Bill Hayward's track team will swing into action on Hayward field this afternoon when the yearlings will stack up against the Eugene high runners. Bill's squad is pretty much of an unknown quantity and its performance today will be an indication of how it will come out in the dual meet with

DeBusk Writes Booklet

"The Persistence of Language Errors Among School Children" is the title of a booklet which has just been printed at the University press for the school of education. The article was written by Burchard Woodson DeBusk, professor of education.

The Washington Babes here Saturday.

The frosh and Babes will vie at the same time as the varsity tackles the Huskies Saturday on Hayward field. Instead of having two separate meets, Hayward has planned to hold the yearling events right along with the varsity meet. First, the varsity hundred will be run and then the freshman will follow and so on.

Speaking of the varsity meet—a comparison of the records made in the dual Washington-Oregon State meet at Seattle last week with those made in the varsity tryouts here Saturday indicate that Oregon is slightly stronger in the field events, except the shot and discus, while the Huskies have the advantage in the running events.

Of course, these paper indications aren't worth much—any of the men might have an off day but Hayward is confident that it will be a closely contested meet. The Huskies have a great team this year and Oregon is expected to furnish them the best competition of any school in the Northwest.

Vinc Dolp and George Will, premier Oregon golfers, will play a practice round in Palo Alto this afternoon in preparation for their participation in the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate matches at Los Angeles. Both men will strive to retain the championship for Oregon as Don Moe, member of the Walker Cup team now in England, won the title last year.

The Delts and the Phi Psis were the only teams willing to brave the weather yesterday and struggled through five rain-drenched innings, the Delts pulling through with a 2-to-0 win. The victory was a hollow one, however, for the Fijis clinched the championship of League B on Monday afternoon when they battered Arrett and Potts of Sigma Pi Tau for a 6-to-1 score.

Jack Rushlow, track and football star, twirled a nice game for the Delts until Bill Hayward spied him and yanked him from the mound, but it was too late then for a Phi Psi rally. Jost and Reyners poled out the drives that cost Frank Long the game.

Kelley Postpones Closing Date of Yell Competition

Saturday To Mark Close of Contest; Three Prizes Offered

Hal Kelley, yell king, has announced that the contest being conducted to secure new yells, has been extended, the closing date now being Saturday, May 17. This step has been made as there was some misunderstanding as to where the box for contributions had been placed. This receptacle has now been placed in the Co-op and contributions may be placed there until the closing date.

"Several good yells have been turned in," Kelly stated, in extending the time limit, "but there is still plenty of time to win the passes which have been offered by the McDonald theater as prizes."

The yells should be written with their ultimate purpose in mind and it should be remembered that at least the main idea of them should be original.

First prize for the contest is a one month pass to the McDonald good for two persons, second, a one-month pass good for one person, and third, a three-week pass good for one person.

The judges in the contest are Hal Kelley, Russell Brown, manager of the McDonald, Professor Dan Gage, Maxine Glover, and Jack Burke.

Enrollment at Ohio State university reached 8,775 for the spring quarter.

Fraternities Would Benefit From Deferred Pledging; Fewer Men End College Life After Freshman Year

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of interviews on deferred pledging run in connection with the Emerald pledging poll.

By RALPH DAVID

A real advantage of deferred pledging is that it would bring about a more stable membership in the fraternity house during the school year, said Howard R. Taylor, associate professor of psychology, when interviewed yesterday.

"A survey made recently by the personnel bureau of the University shows that only approximately 25 per cent of the people that enter school graduate from the same place. This means that a great number transfer to other schools or drop out altogether. The number that drop out are for the most part from the freshman class," said Mr. Taylor.

Of the freshmen that entered school last fall term approximately 24.4 per cent did not finish out the year. And one-sixth of the total registration failed to complete the school year.

The effect of this great turnover on fraternities is evident. With deferred pledging the fraternity could be reasonably sure that the men pledged would graduate. The financial burden placed on fraternities at the end of fall term, because of so many men dropping out, would be, for the most part, eliminated.

As far as scholarship goes, whether a man lives in a dormitory or a fraternity is of little consequence, believes Mr. Taylor. A fraternity may be able to prod the freshman along so that he makes better grades in his first year. But as soon as he is initiated into the group he slips back into his natural channel.

Oregon Golfers Leave on Trip To Los Angeles

Will and Dolp To Compete In Pacific Coast Tournament

George Will, captain of the Oregon golf team and Vinc Dolp, a member of the team left Eugene yesterday for Los Angeles where they will represent the University in the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Golf tournament.

On the way south, the two men will be the guests of Stanford university and will play in an exhibition match over the new 6,800-yard Stanford university golf course. The exhibition will be played with Ward Edmonds, captain of the Stanford golf team and Ed Crowley, former Oregon golfer and track star, this afternoon.

Oregon's chances of making a good showing in the southern tourney seems particularly bright as the two golfers who will compete for the Lemon and Green have demonstrated against Oregon State and Washington that they are contenders in any field.

'Doc' Spears To Brandish Starting Gun

Oregon will officially open the 1930 track season in a dual meet with the University of Washington which will be held on Hayward field Saturday, May 17.

The Lemon and Green runners have competed in two relay meets this season but Saturday's meet will be the first completed list of events the Webfoots have run through.

Comparative times made by the two teams show them to be fairly equal, and the condition of the track and of the athletes predicts a close contest in the majority of events.

The freshmen of the two fraternities will compete in separate races to be held simultaneously with the varsity races.

Officials for the big meet have been announced by Virg Earl's office, and the list includes: Dr. Spears, starter and referee; Timmers, Art Morris, Jack Luckey, and Gilbert Hermance; judges of finish, Captain Herbert, Walter Hummel, Lynn McCready and Mr. Hurst; field judges, Harry Titus, George Stadelman, George Stager, Nish Chapman, Chuck Reed, and Orville Bailey; clerk of course, Hal Kelley; announcer Bob Mautz; scorer, Rubin' Ross; inspectors, Bill Anater, Gilbert French, Dick Jennings, and Lloyd Ruff; marshalls, Jack Zane, Norman Jessie and Cotter Gould.

Toss of Coin Wins Editor's Job for Frosh

THE coin fell "heads," so Sterling "Emerald" Green was editor of the freshman Emerald for this year. The race for editorship had narrowed down to two candidates, Green and Rufus Kimball. They tossed a dime, and Green won. As second best, Kimball will be managing editor of the sheet.

The paper, which will appear Friday, May 23, will be printed on a paper of bright greenish hue, in keeping with the freshman tradition. Betty Anne Macduff is to be assistant managing editor.
