Dorothy Eads Appoints Big Sister Heads

Fifteen Captains Named by Chairman To Serve Next Year

Older Girls Asked To Sign Up To Aid Freshettes

Plans for next year's Big Sister organization, part of the program of the Associated Women Students, is well under way with the appointment of 15 captains by Dorothy Eads, chairman of the committee.

In addition to choosing captains, Miss Eads has representatives in every women's living organization who are signing up girls to be Big Sisters next year. All independent girls and girls living in Eugene are urged to sign up at the office of the dean by the end of next week, the chairman said. At least 400 girls are wanted by the committee to act in the capacity of Big Sisters to the new freshman girls.

Addresses Are Supplied
Big Sisters are supplied during the summer with names and addresses of prospective freshman girls. They correspond or communicate with their little sisters, and advise them, if possible, about courses. All Big Sisters meet just before registration week and are given final instructions about registration procedure, so that they may help their little sisters register. Incidentally, Big Sisters get their own registration material early. They also function at the Get-Wise party, held for freshman women the second or third week of school.

Macduff Has Eugene Girls
Betty Anne Macduff has been appointed by the chairman to take charge of work in Eugene in connection with the Big Sister program. Marian Chapman will be her assistant.

Girls who will be captains of groups of Big Sisters are: Marian Fluke, Alice Wingate, Rena Egerdoff, Adele Wedemeyer, Orpha Ager, Jessie Judd, Nora Jean Stewart, Louise Webber, Carol Werschkul, Dorothy Turney, Frances Humphrey, Maryelyn Bradford, Margaret Walstrom, Amy Hughes, and Elizabeth Scruggs.

Polyphonic Choir To Give Concert Sunday Afternoon; Russian, Negro, And Modern Compositions Featured

In its first appearance of this term, the University of Oregon Polyphonic choir, organized last fall by Arthur Boardman, director, will give a 4 o'clock concert Sunday afternoon at the music auditorium. The program will include early church music, Russian polyphonic literature, negro spiritual music, and modern polyphonic compositions. It will be similar in nature to that given here a winter term by the Smallman a-

Capella choir, which the Oregon group resembles.

Since the polyphonic choir is one of the few amateur music organizations of its kind on the Pacific coast, the interest of townspeople as well as students and faculty has been particularly keen. Sixty trained voices make up the membership of the choir under Mr. Boardman's direction.

Sunday's concert is one of the last to be given this year, and will last about forty-five minutes.

Clark Talks on Foreign Policies Of United States

International Relations Club Hears History Head's Address

Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the history department, held a very interested audience at a meeting of the International Relations club yesterday with his talk on the foreign relations of the United States in connection with the recent London conference.

A brief review was given of the policies of the United States government; the part it has taken in recent international conferences on disarmament, trade, health, and education; and the achievements of the Hoover administration regarding foreign relations. The provisions treaty made at the London conference in January was discussed.

Stops Naval Rivalry

Dr. Clarke declared that the declared that the greatest result of the conference is that it stops the naval rivalry between the world powers, even though it makes for decreased naval armament only for Great Britain. It was declared that the United States was deriving all the benefits of the League of Nations without bearing the burden of expenses necessary for its support, but any hostility in the United States against the league seems to be dying out.

Discussion Is Held

An open discussion followed Dr. Clark's talk. Calvin Bryan, president of the International Relations club, declared that last night's meeting was the last one of the term. Plans were discussed for making the organization larger next year with regular business meetings at which good speakers will talk to students interested in international relations.

More Caddies Needed For Golf Tournament

Although 80 caddies have already been provided for the Oregon state golf tournament to be held next week at the Eugene country club, a general call has been made by George P. Hitchcock, president of the Eugene country club, for at least 40 more. For fear of interfering with a student's amateur athletic status, caddies for the matches will not be paid; however, a free gallery ticket will be given those working Monday and Tuesday, and the week following the tournament greens fees will be refunded those whose cooperation has been received.

Campus golfers will not be permitted to play on the Eugene course until after the tournament, May 31. All prospective caddies should sign up on the bulletin board in the Journalism building.

Co-ed Braves Death in Waters Of Tricky Race

"Help!" a terrified feminine voice cried. Genevieve Pilluso, senior in the University, yesterday afternoon had fallen into the mill-race, and poor Genevieve could not swim.

"Help!" But much to her dismay her friends only stood on the banks and stared at her. No one dived to her rescue.

Those memories and regrets that come to all drowning persons came to Genevieve. She uttered one last, desperate "Help!" and closed her eyes. Thud! She struck the bottom. Slowly she stood up—and found that she had been "drowning" in three feet of water.

Music Professors Enjoy Chuckles At Summer's Travel Experiences

By JESSIE STEELE

"I toured the seas with him once before and we're still speaking. We even shared the same stateroom, and let me tell you, that fellow can think up more irritating remarks in two minutes than I could in two hours. When they are sharp and clever enough, he sets them to music and the limericks are so good I almost forget their sting. That's where I got my good disposition—tolerating his wise cracks." And as he said all this, John Stark Evans' mefry blue eyes twinkled almost as much as Dean John Landsbury's brown ones, if that is possible.

The two musical cronies were chatting about their vacation plans for this summer. Dean Landsbury had just expressed his desire to go to the South Seas, and Mr. Evans disclosed tentative plans to go along. Before that, however, Mr. Evans plans to leave the afternoon following commencement for the Middle-West, where he will visit friends in Michigan and Illinois, returning by way of Seattle and Puget Sound, with a possible sojourn at his summer home near the beach.

"I don't know when or where I'm going, but I know it's going to be as far away as I can get, and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if this prof goes with me. If I stood for him one summer, I suppose I can endure another," said the dean. And chuckling about their mutual attachment, the two parted and left a freshman reporter with a new view on famous musical personages.
