Little Bear Visits Campus But Fails To Find Brother

THE little brother to Andy, the black bear of Amos Burg's that caused so much interest on the campus a few weeks ago came through Eugene on his way to Corvallis, but was unable to play once again with his long lost brother who is now traveling in northern Canada.

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at Corvallis adopted the small bear cub and when a number of the fellows came over to the Alpha Beta Chi house for dinner Sunday they brought the cub along to see his brother which was not here. "Pike" may be his name, but yet that still is a big problem. The third bear brother remains in the McKenzie Pass.

Year's Concerts To Have 'Finale' Sunday Afternoon

Orchestra and Polyphonic Choir Will Appear Together

Underwood and Boardman To Direct

Coming as a "grand finale" to a year of unusually brilliant Sunday afternoon concerts, the University of Oregon orchestra, with the University Polyphonic choir assisting, will appear at the music auditorium next Sunday afternoon.

A program on quite magnificent proportions has been lined up for the University organizations in their concert, which holds two-fold interest in music circles. It will mark the first appearance of the two groups together—and the combination is thought to hold splendid possibilities. Moreover, the two organizations are to devote half of the program to opera in concert form, an infrequent thing in music.

Special Music Ordered

Both Rex Underwood, conductor of the orchestra, and Arthur Boardman, director of the choir, are keenly impressed with the possibilities of developing some very interesting work in opera singing with the two groups. Mr. Underwood has already ordered special music from Germany for future work. Though they have not yet disclosed the selections for Sunday, they said yesterday that the program will be from Wagner's operas, which are particularly adaptable, in their rich tonal beauty and dramatic quality, to concert use.

To Charge Small Sum

There will be a 25-cent charge for the Sunday program, the only one of the year for which an admission fee has been asked. The money will go to an orchestra fund, explained Mr. Underwood. The expense of fine instruments, necessary for further development of the orchestra is very heavy and the organization has planned the concert as a means of improving the equipment.

Roy Bryson, baritone, assistant director of the choir, will be the soloist with the orchestra and choir. The orchestra will play two numbers alone and there will be two of the joint operatic numbers.

Paper Damsel To Have Lead In Child Play

Co-ed To Take Heroine's Role in 'Steadfast Tin Soldier'

TO OPEN TOMORROW

'Knave of Hearts' Also on Bill for Youngsters' Amusement

Jewell Ellis, the girl with the orange dress and flaming hair, in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," and Louise Marvin, dancer, will, on separate nights, play the part of Lysa, the crisp paper lady in the "Steadfast Tin Soldier," children's play which will be given on Wednesday evening and Thursday matinee at 4:15 o'clock.

On Wednesday the program of children's plays will begin with a matinee performance of "The Knave of Hearts," where we learn who won the queen's heart, the knave or the king. Wednesday night there will be a joint program of the two plays.

Tickets on Sale

The admission price is 25 cents for matinees and 50 cents for evenings. Tickets are now on sale at the box office at Guild hall theatre. The seats for the evening performances will be reserved.

In these plays girls take many of the male parts... wear beards... talk in a deep baritone. Dorothy Esch and Zora Beaman are two of these, both playing the part of the crockety old chancellor in "The Knave of Hearts."

To Fight Duel

Just like one of the creatures that haunted the evil dark when you were very young is Garro, of "The Steadfast Tin Soldier," the wicked goliwog, who is really a jack-in-the-box. He keeps popping out of his box, frightening everyone. The climax of the play is reached when he jumps out of his box and fights a duel with Monte Mac, the tin soldier with the wooden leg.

Miles Shaw and Ty Smith both play Garro. Both of them love Lysa.

A great deal of preparation has been made for these two plays. Costumes and setting have been in preparation for several weeks and promise to give to the children of Eugene a very great treat, although the plays are ones that adults as well as children will enjoy.

Vice-President Gives Statue

While the statue is to honor his own mother, Elvira Brown Matheny, the memorial is to be dedicated to all Oregon pioneer mothers. Above, Mr. Proctor; below, Burt Brown Barker, the donor.

Hula Girls to Appear

The well-known association of surf-riding with Hawaii will be carried out, as some surf-riding is promised on the program. Sh! It's a secret, but there'll be real Hula Hula girls, with their grass skirts, and their leis there. The leis are presented to the Americans as the boat leaves—the Hawaiian token of friendship, at the end of the pageant.

Girls will be dressed as beach girls as a part of the beach setting. In one of the acts Winifred Schoonmaker dances there on the beach for them.

Dancing Scheduled

Another feature on the program will be the torchlight fishing. The tom-tom will have a part in the paddle drill and dancing, giving a deep, primitive touch. In the more direct line of swimming there will be formations, and form and speed swimming. A fisherman throwing a net will conclude the first act.

The pageant this year is in three acts and will be given in the pool of Gerlinger hall.

U. of O. Chosen to Lead Community Forum Movement

Six Valley Counties Send Representatives to Riverside Meet

Philip Parsons To Direct Policies of Project

The University of Oregon was elected to lead the community forum movement in Oregon at a meeting of leaders from six Willamette valley counties, held Saturday at Riverside, Oregon.

Dean Philip A. Parsons of the University school of applied social science, will direct the work, with Professor James M. Reinhardt, of the same school, acting as assistant, it is announced. The two men represented the University at the Riverside meeting and pledged the devotion of the University's resources in developing community work throughout the state.

Dean Parsons, in stating the policy which he will pursue, declared that he will not attempt to superimpose any arbitrary program on the organized forums, but rather will survey all of them to discover the activities which the various units desire to follow and the sort of programs each one will wish and then to devote the resources of the University to giving the people what they want.

"It would be unwise," Dean Parsons points out, "for any institution or person to attempt to dictate to the various units the kind of programs they are to follow. The University realizes that any such course would only result in failure. But the University is eager and willing to cooperate in sponsoring a movement to aid the development of the villages and rural communities of the state."

Certificates of graduation from the basic course in military science will have been received by the sophomores who have completed the course. I. Agule, of the department of military science.

High School Grades Are Stressed — Importance Shown — Personnel Head Gives His Views

That practically all of the students who have made Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Oregon during the past two years were outstanding scholars in high school is one of the arguments put forth yesterday by Dr. Howard R. Taylor, head of the personnel bureau, in refutation of an editorial which appeared in the Emerald Saturday disparaging the relative importance of high school grades.

"Although the writer's plea that every high school student should have a chance to start over again in college is perfectly legitimate," Dr. Taylor said, "when he says that 'High school habits and ways are soon dropped when a student enters the University,' he is expressing perhaps a wish rather than the facts. Student Body Indebtedness Aided by Loan

Burt Brown Barker Gets $125,000 From Eugene Business Man

TO RID BOOKS OF RED

ASUO To Pay Back Money From Building Fund In Five Years

A loan of $125,000 has been secured from a Eugene business man through the efforts of Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University, it was announced Saturday night. The loan is to help pull the A. S. U. O. out of the financial hole it is now in.

Though the rate of interest charged, 7 per cent, is somewhat higher than might have been obtained through the issue of bonds, as was originally intended, it is believed that the loan will in the long run prove more economical, as it will eliminate the necessity of advertising and sale of bonds, and allowances of discounts.

To Pay Big Debts

All but $25,000 of the loan will be used to pay the outstanding debts of the A. S. U. O., and the remaining amount will be used in retiring building bonds used for the construction of McArthur court which fall due next fall.

In explaining why money from the general fund of the A. S. U. O. should be used to pay building debts, Karl W. Onthank, executive secretary of the University last night said that when McArthur court was built a bond issue was floated to cover the cost. Later it was found necessary to put in improvements in the basement which had not been incorporated in the original plans, and to cover this expense money was borrowed from the general fund used ordinarily for running expenses of the student body organization. It was expected that a few good football games would be sufficient to pay this debt, but successful games have been lacking during the last few years.

Owe on Igloo Bonds

The A. S. U. O. owes $36,204 on the rest of the McArthur court bonds, approximately $36,000 which was advanced on the Igloo from the general fund, $30,000 for grading of fields, building bleachers, and other improvements, and the remainder of the $125,000 loan will be used to pay off current obligations. Mr. Onthank explained that money from the building fund will be loaned the general fund until debts of the latter are paid, but that eventually all the money paid by students into the building fund will go directly to that fund, and none will be actually diverted into the general fund.

Of the $26.25 which the student pays every term, $4.25 goes into the general fund, to which is added game receipts of games and other similar receipts. Another $5 of the fees goes into the building fund, to be used for building purposes alone.
