Brilliant Cellist To Give Concert

Steiner Will Open Season Music Program Sunday

If football lingo circulated in polite music circles, Ferenz Steiner, cellist, could be called a "triple threat man." He is an artist of international recognition, with a long list of successful concerts in Europe and America. He is a composer of favorable renown.

Mr. Steiner, who has joined the faculty of the University of Oregon school of music this year, will be heard in concert here Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the music auditorium, opening the year's programs sponsored by the school of music.

Even a Queen Must Answer The Doorbell at University

By LOIS NELSON

Even queens can't hedge on the doorbell job when they're frosh at the University of Oregon.

And Queen Caroline, ruler of Rosaria—who has given up the royal robes to wear a raincoat and pack a notebook down here on the campus—does not.

She hopped "pronto" when the doorbell buzzed yesterday afternoon at the Gamma Phi Beta house where she was being interviewed. And she listened for five minutes to a pep talk, given by Larry Bay, last year's frosh prexy, who was calling to see to it that all Gamma Phi's sent the Emerald home to the folks.

Pigger's Guide on Way to Aid Men

Students With Address Changes are Warned

The "Pigger's Guide" is on its way. Soon it will be here with names, addresses, and phone numbers to help poor men find better dates.

But what if the wrong address or phone number should follow your name? What a calamity it would be. No dates to look forward to—no phone calls.

And yet, according to Doc Robnett, associate graduate manager, many students may find themselves in just such a predicament. Students, who since registering, have changed their address or have not recorded a permanent one have been warned to report to the graduate manager's office.

Students Guests On Church Night Friday Evening

Members, Non-Members Invited To Join In Parties

Walter Meyers of YMCA In Charge of Plans

Church Night, which is one of the biggest events for incoming students, will be held tonight under the supervision of the Y. M. C. A. Walter Meyers of the Y. M. C. A. is in charge of arrangements. Other students besides new ones are cordially invited.

This affair is not formal, but is strictly social in nature.

The Baptist church is sponsoring a hit and run college registration day in its church parlors on High and Broadway.

The Catholic church will have a reception and dance at St. Mary's hall, 11th and Lincoln, at 8:30 p. m. All other churches are holding their entertainments from 8 until 10 p. m.

To Have Colonial Party

A Christian Colonial party, non costume, will be held at the church parlors on 11th and Oak.

The Episcopal church will hold an informal reception at the parish house on 7th and Olive.

The Lutheran students are invited to a Lutheran reception at the Y. W. C. A. Bungalow, which is on the campus.

Games and refreshments will be in order for the reception given by the Wesley club church night party which will be held at the Methodist church social parlors on 12th and Willamette.

Open house will be held by the Presbyterians. Music and refreshments will be the order of the evening and everyone is especially invited to come to meet the new minister. The gathering will meet at the Westminster house at 14th and Kincaid.

The Unitarian reception will be held in the church parlors at 11th and Ferry.

show to officiate at important civic ceremonies. So she's really giving up a high position in order to become an Oregon frosh.

Right now the queen is much more concerned about the number of courses she is taking than with her royal rank. She can't figure out whether she's majoring in journalism, English or business administration because, in order to get the advertising course she wanted, she had to go to all three divisions of the University.

There's something mighty lovely to watch about this "royal frosh." It's not exactly in her beauty, though she has plenty of that. There's a quiet charm to her that grows on you as she talks and you'd notice it if you'd never seen or heard of her before.

"I like it here awfully well. I want to finish in advertising and then go into that kind of work," she explained yesterday.

Frosh Given Big Welcome At Assembly

Dr. Hall, George Cherry, Frank Jenkins Extend Official Welcome

Dean Straub Unable To Hold Customary Role As Presiding Officer

Members of the class of 1934 were officially welcomed to the University of Oregon yesterday morning at a special student body assembly at McArthur court. Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University, Frank Jenkins, editor of the Eugene Register, and George W. Cherry, president of the associated students, were the principal speakers.

Dean James H. Gilbert, of the college of literature, science and the arts, presided at the assembly in the first absence of Dr. John Straub, dean emeritus of men.

Dr. Hall greeted the entering freshmen with a challenge to begin their university careers with ambition, a definite objective, a desire to develop personality, and to be creators rather than creatures of the forces of destiny. President Hall also stressed the importance of the Oregon traditions of democracy, simplicity, chivalry, and a spirit of general concern for the well-being of the school.

Mr. Jenkins extended a welcome to the yearling students from the city of Eugene stressing the fact that Eugene "is the outstanding city of the state of Oregon because of the University." Students who make Eugene their home following graduation provide the needed leadership which makes the city prosper, Jenkins said.

A welcome from the old students to the new members of the student body was extended by Cherry. Numbers by the University band were also on the program.

Many Changes in Chrysanthemum Sales Scheduled

Orders Taken and Paid for Here, Flowers Received In Portland

Co-eds Will Wear Flowers To Husky Game

The first of the chrysanthemum sales being planned this year by the Associated Women Students will be held for the Oregon-Washington game at Portland, October 18.

A new plan for handling the sales for Portland games will be used this year, according to Ann Baum and Alexis Lyle, who are in charge. All orders for chrysanthemums will be taken and paid for in Eugene, by representatives in various living organizations.

Tommy Luke in Portland is supplying the flowers, and students will go to his shop when they reach Portland, present their receipts, and receive their flowers. There will be no money transactions in Portland.

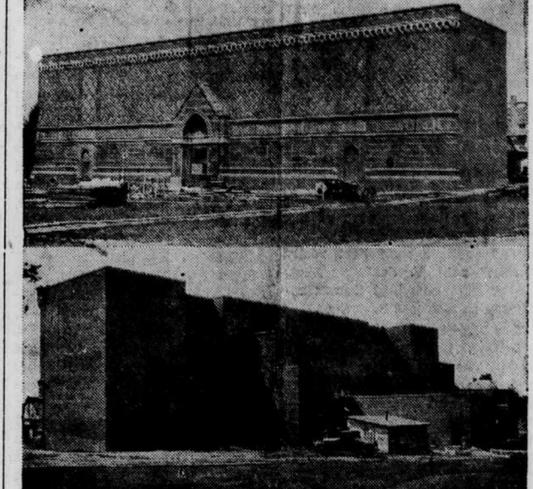

Chrysanthemums will be sold at 50 and 75 cents apiece, and $1 and $1.50. The 50-cent ones will be small, 75-cent ones larger; those for $1 will have green "O's" in the center, while the $1.50 variety will have small rally dolls in the center.

The A. W. S. is realizing 20 per cent profit on all sales made this year. The chrysanthemum sales have been traditionally a project of the organization.

Monday people will be sent to all living organizations to tell the students about the sale. Representatives will be appointed in all organizations to take orders. Monday at 4 p. m. all representatives will meet in the women's lounge of Gerlinger hall to receive instructions and hear plans for the sale.

Kathryn Perigo and Betty Jones are assisting Miss Baum and Miss Lyle in the arrangements.

All Ready To Occupy

This week will see the completion of all the finishing touches on the new Murray Warner Art Museum. Mrs. Murray has been in the East studying arrangements of museums there, and is returning to the campus soon, in order to arrange for moving into the new building.

Murray Warner Museum To be Completed This Week

Oregon Craftsmen Design Interior Decorations For Building

Construction of the Murray Warner art museum will come to an end this week, just a little more than one year after noisy blasting began one of the outstanding building jobs ever attempted on the coast. The new structure has had the attention of art authorities throughout the nation.

Installation of doors to the main entrance and of six panels in the court are all that remain to be done, according to E. F. Lawrence, dean of architecture and allied arts, who discussed the work completed during the summer months yesterday.

Mrs. Murray Warner will return shortly from the East where she has made a study of museums and will commence the work of planning arrangements for the new building.

Keenly gratifying to Dean Lawrence and other University officials is the amount of work in the new buildings that has come from the hands of Oregonians engaged in various arts and crafts.

Panels Symbolic

The panels have been made by R. W. Bock, of the art department and the Pans on the court fountain were made by Oliver Barrett, of the department. The panels symbolize tolerance, kindness, steadfastness, honor, aesthetics, and learning, and are in cast stone. The panel over the entrance to the court represents light triumphing over darkness and is in Indiana stone.

Oregonian firms and craftsmen who have had important parts in creating the new building follow: Ross E. Hammond, Portland, general contractor; Bailey Electric Company, Eugene, electricians; Urban Heating Company, Portland, heating; Portland Heating and Plumbing, plumbing; Wolfgang, Portland, cork floors. The grilles to the court were constructed by the Eugene foundry. I. K. Tuerck, master craftsman in Portland, will do the wrought iron work for the front doors. The brick came from the Willamina Pacific Brick Company.

Mosaic in Dome

Setting of the glass mosaics in the dome and installation of the cork floor in the galleries are among the building jobs completed during the summer.

The elaborate lighting system has been completed. The front door, to be of steel and bronze will not be in until the middle of October and the wrought iron panels, now being made by Mr. Tuerck will not be finished for several months. Capitals for the columns of the building were made by Mr. Bock and his students, Dean Lawrence explained.

Grading and pantation of the grounds around the building will begin either late this fall or early in the spring, he said.

Oregon Students Get Scholarships

Seven Make Success of Summer Advertising

Summer scholarships were awarded to seven Oregon students this year by W. F. G. Thacher, professor of advertising. These scholarships consist of summer jobs with large companies in Portland, and are given each year to the students who are judged to be the most capable in the advertising field.

All of those appointed accepted their jobs, and were successful in the work given them, according to Professor Thacher.

Anton Peterson worked for the Oregonian; Ed Sullivan, the Oregon Journal; Harry Van Dine, Foster and Kleiser; Francis Mullins, Edward Bechtold and Associates; Mary Elaine Henderson, Bedell's; Harold Fraundorf, Meier and Frank; and Ruth Newman, Olds, Wortman and King.

"They Buy Floorlamps Where There's No Juice, In Alaska"

By CAROL HURLBURT

"When we got up there all the Indians were wearing cork-soled coats for underwear," said Thornton Gale, assistant editor of the Oregonian, in telling of his trip to Alaska with Lester McDonald and Ralph David and the two and a half months they spent in Juneau.

"The Indians," he explained, "come in after the fishing season with a couple of thousand dollars and buy davenport. They put them on their little tiny fishing boats. There isn't any room on the inside and so they tie them on the outer deck. No foolin'." Gale nodded his head emphatically.

"And then they buy a lot of these tall floor lamps. There isn't any means of lighting them, but they stick them around the cabin.

"They sell lots of Sox up there, this Real Silk hosiery, you know, but nobody wears them, and so they use them for skin for the native boloney.

"And in the drug stores they sell gallon bottles of vanilla for $2.50. Lots of Indians buy it."

At this point Gale set back in his chair, twiddled his thumbs, and laughed. "It's a great racket up there!" he exclaimed.

Oregon Grid Team Primed For Bulldogs

Lemon and Green Eleven Works Out En Route To Chicago

Game To See Drake Squad In Action First Time This Season

Ducks and Drakes will fight for the supremacy of the pond today when the Oregon Webfoot football team meets the Drake eleven of Des Moines.

At this time, but a few hours before the opening whistle, the strength of the eastern eleven is unknown, and what the Spears machine will accomplish remains to be seen.

The Oregon team will enter the Chicago game at the usual disadvantage claimed by the traveling team in any inter-sectional contest, that is, they have the misfortune to start the game in a weakened condition due to enforced rest caused by the necessity of a long train trip. However, Doc Spears has minimized this phase, having arranged for three workouts en route to the game.

Drake, too, will be at a disadvantage in that this is their first game and first night tilt as well. Oregon has, on the other hand, two scamps hanging from its belt and has the added advantage of having played Willamette under flood lights.

Outcome Doubtful

How these factors favoring and hampering the two teams will offset and amplify one another will be seen only when the final score is chalked up on the board tonight.

Led by Johnny Kitzmiller, the Oregon team should be at its strongest. Only two men, Ed Moeller and Jack Ruslow, were suffering from injuries of any kind at the start of the trip, and according to word received from Chicago these minor hurts have been nearly removed by Hill Hayward, who accompanied the squad east as trainer.

With this announcement the full strength of the Oregon team will be available for use in the game and it is expected that many men will be used during the course of the evening.

Starting Lineup Vague

No word has been received from the Oregon coach at Chicago as to who will be used in the starting lineup, but according to an unofficial wire from Sam Wilderman, the lineup will contain no radical changes from the list which represented the Lemon and Green against Willamette in their last appearance before going east.

This lineup, including as it does, Kitzmiller at quarter, Moeller at (Continued on Page Three)
