BAGSHAW'S DEATH RECALLS EARLY SUCCESS

With the passing of Enoch Bagshaw passes the ill will and antagonism which the students and alumni of the University of Washington have felt toward "Baggy" for the whole of the past season.

Admirers of Bagshaw, and they are legion, may find comfort in the parallel case of Andy Smith at California. Ask a California graduate of about the year 1920 who Andy was and he will state that he was the greatest coach that ever lived. And yet that same Californian was perhaps one of Andy's severest critics at the time when the Golden Bear was cornered.

So it will be with "Baggy." It is to be regretted that both of these great coaches died at a time when the fortunes of their teams were at a low ebb, but time will indicate in the case of Bagshaw as it has in the case of Smith, how soon what he didn't do will be forgotten and how long will be remembered his successes.

LIGHTWEIGHT TEAMS STARTED AT HARVARD

Two weeks ago 80 men responded to the call for applicants for the newly formed 150-pound football team at Harvard. This college and Yale have started the ball rolling and it is expected that many of the larger eastern universities will take it up.

This plan is but another indication of the movement to make the benefits of participation in athletics available to all men be they small or large. Last spring lightweight crews made their debut on the Hudson, Poughkeepsie, and other eastern rivers with a noticeable increase in the interest of the world at large, in the aquatic sport.

At the present moment this innovation should have little effect on Oregon as there is hardly sufficient material for the "varsity." However, it should be kept in mind as a possible outlet for energy when Oregon gets as big as they tell us it is going to.

USES PISTOL SHOT TO GET BACKS STARTED

We read in the Boston Herald how Arnold Horween, Harvard grid coach, devoted an afternoon of his practice to starting his backs off with a pistol shot. Not a bad idea and it should get the men under way in a hurry.

If Prink Callison could use a little of the same on his frosh they might be even better. We don't mean that they weren't any good Saturday, only they looked at times as though they were in need of a few shots.

ARMY LIMITS NUMBER OF GRIDMEN AT POINT

Here is a funny one in the way of army regulations. The great and good father at Washington has prescribed the number of men that are to be allowed to play football at West Point.

According to the rules there are 38 men on the varsity, 50 scrubs, goofs or what have you, and 67 for the plebes. When a trip is undertaken the quota is raised to 40.

This is one place where regulations as to the number of men allowed to participate has no effect. We have to go after them with a dragnet.

Ducks Waddling Toward Eugene After Viewing Minnesota Tilt

Spears Team Rated Best Of Three Teams by Sports Scribes

University of Oregon Special Train, Glendive, Mont., Oct. 5.—(Special to the Emerald.)—The University of Oregon football team is homeward bound after an impressive intersectional 14-to-7 victory over Drake university at Soldier's Field, Chicago, Friday night.

The Webfoot party spent nearly a day at Minneapolis en route home and all were guests at the Minnesota-Vanderbilt football game. They saw the Gopher team that Dr. C. W. Spears, now head mentor at Oregon, formerly coached, go down to a crushing defeat before the surprisingly speedy Southern eleven, 33 to 7. Last year Doc's Minnesota eleven defeated Vanderbilt.

The Minneapolis sports writers who saw the night game at Chicago and the contest at Minneapolis at this time seems further advanced than any of the other three teams. The Minneapolis press was particularly impressed with the remarkable power attack of the Webfoots.

The score was hardly an indication of the Webfoot superiority as four times the Ducks crossed the goal line, but twice the score was not allowed because of penalties. Several other penalties were handed the Webfoots at crucial moments when within scoring distance, and once a Webfoot back fumbled on the Drake four-yard line after a 15-yard smash through the center of the Bulldog line. Oregon made 16 first downs; Drake 6, of which three were from completed passes.

Johnny Kitzmiller, Oregon captain, was hailed by the press as All-American timber, as he not only covered his position beautifully on defense, smearing many a Bulldog pass, but intercepted a couple of long heaves, making acrobatic catches when the ball seemed to be completely out of reach. Only once, while catching a punt on the fly, was Kitzmiller nailed before making a large return. The other times, his return of punts netted from 10 to 30 yards.

Interference Good Doc Spears introduced something that Oregon has not had for a long time—excellent interference in front of the ball carrier.

The "Flying Dutchman" was most effective in his off-tackle bucks. The Bulldogs were unable to stop him, and some Chicago scribes went so far as to acclaim him the outstanding halfback since Red Grange played for Illinois.

Bill Hayward, Oregon's veteran trainer, was particularly pleased with the physical condition of the team. Although some players are suffering from minor bruises, the Colonel has promised to have them ready when practice is resumed for the Washington game at Portland, October 18.

Soldier's Field, although said to be the strongest lighted in the country, was not as well lighted as Hayward Field. Just as the Drake team got a Enoch Bagshaw, who for five years had a successful coaching career at the University of Washington, died Saturday from an attack of acute indigestion.

Baggy, as the late coach was called by the many football men whose admiration and esteem he won during the years he was head coach at the Seattle school, was superintendent of transportation for the state of Washington at the time of his death.

jump on Oregon this year, leading at half time, 7 to 0, so it did against Notre Dame last year. It was not until the last quarter that Oregon was able to win, and it was not until the last period that the Irish were able to score enough points to beat the Bulldogs. Drake is rated even stronger than a year ago and Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, attended the Chicago contest to personally scout the Bulldogs.

Chi O Frosh Use A.W.S. Lodge First

Retreat Opened for Use Of Women Sunday

Sixteen Chi Omega freshmen arose bright and early Sunday morning (the morning after Open House, too) and took their bacon and eggs out to Peters Lodge, A. W. S. retreat on the Willamette river, to be the first group of girls to use the lodge this year. It was opened for use yesterday.

The Chi O Girls, accompanied by Betty Jones, sophomore, cooked their breakfast on the cook-stove at the lodge, and then sat around the mammoth fireplace or explored the woods around the cabin before returning home.

Any group of girls may use the retreat by making arrangements with Carol Werschkul, phone 2340.

Douglass Names Four Employees

Katherine Karpenstein, '30 Working in Library

The University library will have four new full-time employees this year, according to M. H. Douglass, librarian.

John A. Marsh, of Lawton, Oklahoma, will replace Elizabeth Crawford as first assistant in the reference and periodical department. He was a member of this year's summer school faculty at the University of Oklahoma.

Rose Robinson, of Centralia, Washington, will act as special cataloguer; and she will divide her time between the Oriental Museum library and the main library.

Katherine Karpenstein, who graduated from the University last June, and Mary Ward will work full time.

Medford Is Site Of Rural Survey

Indian Burial Mounds Are Investigated

A spot near Medford was this summer the scene of a two months' survey for the Hoover commission on changes in the rural life of western Oregon and Washington.

L. S. Cressman, of the sociology department, stated that many interesting additions were made to the data recorded up to 1925. Excavations disclosed Indian burial mounds where they found obsidian knives, pipes and otherwise observed community life.

The burial mounds were necessarily very old because there was no trace found of the white man.
