

The Emerald SCORE BOARD

By Jack Burke

WOOD VS. ALMQUIST DRAWS OUR ATTENTION—

As if in honor of our newly registered tennis player, Sidney Wood, the skies cleared for the moment yesterday and allowed Wood and Stan Almquist to sport on the court for the benefit of a handful of spectators.

It is to be regretted that there was no announcement of the match for those that did attend were treated to some brilliant displays of tennis in spite of the fact that Wood seemed to be holding back and was not particularly interested in the game.

In all probability if the weather continues to be such as it was yesterday the two players can be persuaded to play a real match. In case they do a real treat is in store.

SOLDIERS' FIELD POORLY LIGHTED—

From all reports on the lighting of Soldiers' field in Chicago, Oregon may well be proud of the facilities for the night game that are available on Hayward field.

According to some of the players who were in the game in the Windy City, the field was so dark that the Drake coach thought it would get by to have a player spend most of his time flat on his stomach near the sideline in the hopes that he might sometime be able to get away and receive a pass.

Anyone who has seen a night game here may well realize the impossibility of pulling that off here as there would be less chance at night than there is in the day.

ALL SPEARS COACHED TEAMS PLAY THIS YEAR—

Rather a striking coincidence takes place this fall in that every team Doctor Spears has coached in this country of ours is scheduled to play an intersectional game with a member of the Coast conference whose latest coaching addition is the good Doctor himself.

On the 27th of November in Chicago, for no apparent reason, Paul J. Schissler's Oregon State team meets West Virginia which college Spears coached after a number of years at Dartmouth, and which team in turn takes on Pop Warner's Redskins at Palo Alto two days later.

The third team of Minnesota will be met by the same Crimson Tide this week-end at Minneapolis making the whole picture complete.

WHAT IS THE STATE OF SWIMMING—

We hereby predict that interest in swimming will be a lot greater this year than it was last season. If we remember correctly there were three meets last year with two opponents and because of this fact letters were handed out right and left.

We had no coach in the real sense of the word last year, although Johnny Anderson filled the double role of coach and captain as well as anyone might. However, this year we have a coach, Jack Hewitt, and if pre-season dope means anything a lot of good material for a team. What will happen to the interest aroused in the sport some two years ago by "Abby" Abercrombie remains to be seen.

If somebody gets going and arranges a schedule, that is a schedule, all will be well. But, if things were as they were last year as to meets they might just as well give up the sport, at least as one of the major sports on our program.

A bit of semi-classical was thrown in when Harold Moulin brought along his xylophone and played several Victor Herbert selections.

In fact the program was entirely successful in every way and student approval was evident on all parts of the campus. The second Emerald-KORE program is scheduled for Sunday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock, and an all-variety talent program is being arranged by Manager Potwin for the broadcast.

Second Team To Mix With Frosh Squad

Scrimmage With Varsity Ends Practice for Tonight's Game

Yearlings Score Against Regulars; Spears and Callison Vie

In the last practice before their game with the super-varsity tonight at 8 p. m. on Hayward field, Prink Callison's freshman football eleven had their hardest workout of the season yesterday when they were sent against the Oregon varsity squad.

Yesterday's scrimmage was held with regular rules as far as penalties were concerned. The game lasted until after dusk and the arc lights had to be turned on during the last hour, giving the frosh their first taste of night playing.

Varsity Scores Thrice

The yearlings not only succeeded in holding the varsity to a trio of hard-earned touchdowns, but in the last minutes of play put over a score of their own on a series of long passes and line bucks.

Coach Callison and Doc Spears vied with one another in seeing who could "out-bawl" their men with the result that both squads played a brand of football that was worth paying to witness.

The practice was held behind locked gates, but a large crowd of fans gathered outside the wire fence to watch the frosh hold the varsity to small gains time after time. Whether the varsity was in a slump or not is hard to say, but the touchdown made by the freshman was certainly not a fluke.

Colored Boy Plays

Included in the yearling lineup was a newcomer, a colored boy by the name of Joe Lillard, and who hails from Minneapolis, Minnesota. While playing for his high school in Iowa and for the park system in Minneapolis, he played quarterback on the grid squad, pitched for the baseball nine, ran the quarter-mile and broad-jumped on the track team, besides playing center on the basketball five. He came from the East with Coach Spears and will major in physical education here.

ter carnival. He is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary, worked on both the Emerald and the Oregon in his freshman and sophomore years, and has been a member of various committees throughout his three years in the University.

Last year he was one of seven students to win a summer scholarship in advertising, which enabled him to work in the advertising department of Meier and Frank, Portland, during the summer months. Among his present activities he is senior manager of golf. His home is in Portland.

To Select Committee
Fraundorf will spend the next few days selecting the committee chairman for his Homecoming directorate, and will have his choices ready for announcement the early part of next week. The organization will be similar to that of previous years, each member of the directorate acting as chairman of a separate committee, and each committee working as a unit on one aspect of the events of the week-end.

In preparation for the gridiron battle of Saturday, students will stage a big rally Friday night, followed by the traditional serpentine through the city. Freshmen will make their annual contribution to Homecoming by erecting a huge "O" on Skinner's Butte, which will go up as the annual bonfire on the eve of the game.

Luncheon in McArthur
The general campus luncheon Saturday noon will be held in McArthur court. All the visiting alumni, as well as the entire student body, will be served.

Arrangements are already being made for the annual Homecoming dance, to be held Saturday evening. The dance, planned and given in honor of the returning alumni, will be the climax of the Homecoming week-end.

Londahl Gets Big Kick Out of Trip to Chicago and Return

"From the bench it was a great game, but I think the trip was more entertaining," said Johnny Londahl, varsity halfback, in the course of a chat on the recent trip to Chicago. "It was evident from the first scrimmage that we were going to beat the Drake team, but by what strategy and how long it would take to do it was what kept everyone on edge until the last two minutes.

"The only man on the squad who played the full game was George Christensen. He was in 58 minutes. Colbert stood out in heady line play. On that play about which there has been so much comment on the campus—here's how it happened. The backfield shifted, the line charged just as the referee blew his whistle. But the ball was not put in play. Under ordinary conditions, that would have called for no penalty. But the referee ruled that the backs had shifted illegally, and penalized us 15 yards."

Londahl Observes

As Johnny played only three or four minutes of the game, he had a chance to see how the team will look to Oregon supporters when it faces Washington in Portland, October 18. His prediction is, that Oregon will be a strong second-half team, and that only a super-defense can keep the Oregon backs from romping all over Washington territory.

Short signal practice was held at Pocatello Monday afternoon, while the train waited 45 minutes. The field was the best of any seen on the trip, if Johnny Londahl is any authority on football fields. The turf was harder and faster than that at the University of Denver, where the team saw Coach Jeff Cravath's first string work out, and superior also to that at Creighton university, Omaha, where the team had two good practice sessions, the first in the morning and the second in the early afternoon.

Omaha Unpleasant

"Omaha is even dirtier than New Orleans, which we visited on our trip to Miami last year," said Johnny.

"Until you have seen the field house at the University of Minnesota, you haven't seen anything. If the University of Washington 'drome looks big, imagine one so big it would hold the U. of W. field house and the Igloo both. Then throw in a tennis court or two. That is the field house of the University of Minnesota."

"It is a wonderful monument to competitive athletics for everyone, and it was built by the crowds who flowed into the stands at every game played by the teams of 'Doc' Clarence Spears."

Crisler Unestablished

"We were guests of Coach 'Fritz' Crisler at the Minnesota-Vanderbilt game," Johnny rambled on, "and had seats on the field. It was a good game, but after talking it over with the fellows on the way home, we decided that neither of the two teams could have given us a tougher battle than Drake did. Vanderbilt ran their plays smoothly and consistently, but they would have a lot of trouble if they had to get through Colbert and Forster, or around Moeller and Kitzmiller. The Minnesota team is not the powerful machine that 'Doc' "

Spears developed. Coach Crisler was assistant under Staggs at Chicago last year, and has evidently had some trouble in establishing his system.

Lillie and Moeller Privileged

"We left Minneapolis Saturday night, and arrived in Spokane Tuesday morning at 6:30. 'Doc' ordered 'Kitz' to lead a hike through town. About that time a couple of former Oregon girls, now going to W. S. C., drove up to the station. They had come all the way from Pullman to meet the train, so Jerry Lillie told 'Doc' when he asked to be excused from the hike. The boys all cried 'special privilege,' but Jerry and Ed Moeller saw Spokane from a sedan while the rest of us had to walk."

A big and enthusiastic crowd met the train in Portland, and there was a band, speakers, yells and ballyhoo for the Washington game. The trip from Portland was made on the Southern Pacific. Johnny did not have anything to say beyond, "We're home again, and working like good men to beat Washington. The team doesn't ask much in the way of scenery. We'd rather see 20,000 fans in the stands."

College Nite---

College Nite is strictly for University students. Ted Delmarter and his Cascadians are directly from playing engagements in the East, Middle West, and South, and now are entertaining us with an Eastern "Collegiate" entertainment. Ted Delmarter said, "It is something different—one way, it is strictly a University dance, and the rest is a surprise."

Woods Exhibits His Tennis Form In Short Practice

Almquist, Easterner Play
Before Small Gallery
Of Students

If any sport skeptic harbors the idea that all Eastern styles of playing are inferior to those of the West coast, he has only to watch the canny form of Sidney B. Wood, Jr., to discharge such notions. The two-headed youth of 18, from the courts of the Atlantic seaboard, gave an informal exhibition of his dexterous playing yesterday afternoon on the library courts before an interested gallery of students.

Wood matched his terrific forehands and just as effective backhands with the long range shots of Stanley Almquist, Oregon's ace of last season. However, neither player exerted himself except for occasional flashes. Almquist, when it came to exhibiting a more than average array of shots, was not, by any means, backward. His slashing drives and cutting soft shots were those of an expert, but Wood's backspins and bullet serves and drives were exceptional.

S. Stephenson Smith, tennis mentor, was an interested spectator in the gallery, watching the workout of the pair, whom he will rely on to make tennis history for Oregon next spring.

Lettermen and super-varsity men who will add to the net program of Coach Smith are: Koliski, one of last year's regulars; Sherman Lockwood, who is expected to re-enter school next term, and Jack Rhine, Portland star.

Tournaments To Feature Tennis, Handball Artists

Entries Not Yet Signed Up
For Horseshoes and Golf Matches

All campus tournaments in tennis and handball commence this week-end with six singles and two doubles matches in tennis scheduled, and one single and three doubles tilts listed in handball.

Entry lists for golf and horseshoes are still open with Saturday being the deadline for golf and the horseshoe list running indefinitely until the department receives some horseshoe sets. Two pits are being constructed west of Dean Bovard's office for barnyard golf artists to demonstrate their skill.

As only one first round singles match is billed in handball it is probable that several second round duels will be run off shortly. Don Jennings and Jack Rhine clash in the first round contest, while the S. Director-R. Hughes, W. Cress, J. Stott, H. Benson-J. Eberhart, H. Levoff-H. Breidan, W. Whitely-O. Vanderheit, the winner of the Rhine-Jennings match vs. T. Jensen, L. Johnson-F. Deuel, and S. Laurance-D. Wilson tilts, furnish action in the second round.

The doubles matches are Benson and Whitely vs. Johnson and Jensen and Director and Levoff vs. Cress and Rhine. The Hughes-Eberhart combination drew a bye. The Whitely-Benson duo won last year's fall tourney while Johnson and Jensen edged them out in the spring meet. Their match promises to be the highlight of the tourney.

Tennis Matches Slated
The six tennis singles matches slated are B. Johnson-Jack Bontchard, P. Overmeyer-R. Weiler, L. Buel-J. Rhine, A. McLaren-G. Anderson, D. Gilman-T. Mountain, and T. Tongue-M. Frost. D. Golthwaite, B. Babson, Bud Meyer, J. Downs, E. Madder, F. Deuel, J. Edmiston, R. Adams, B. Ludlow, and Swenson drew byes. Doubles matches scheduled are Weller and Myers-Ludlow and Mountain and B. Johnson and Rhine-Deuel and Swenson. McLaren - Buel and Overmeyer-Adams received byes.

One of the hottest matches in the tourney may be the second round contest between Rhine and Golthwaite. If Rhine overcomes Buel he will be pitted against his old Portland rival in his next match. Several tennis entrants have neglected to give their phone numbers and are requested to file the necessary information on the intramural board in the basement of the men's gym. After this all intramural information and entry lists will be posted on this board.

Oregon Student Impressed By Europeans' Temperance

We were drinking coffee and discussing prohibition. My companion was Kamilla Klekar, transfer from O. S. C., where she played first violin in the college orchestra. She had traveled in Europe two years ago with her family and stayed eight months in Czechoslovakia.

"Did the drinking of the Europeans seem queer to you after living in America?" I asked.

"Oh, no," she answered with an upward sweep of her long lashes. "Everyone over there drinks when he dines. No one ever drinks to excess. I actually saw fewer drunks in my eight months' stay in Czechoslovakia than I saw in one evening at Hoboken, New Jersey. Ah, there it was terrible. New Yorkers drink a lot, too."

"What do you suppose makes the difference?" I murmured.

She sipped her coffee and gazed at me reflectively out of her deep blue eyes. "It is because the Americans gulp down as much liquor as they can get hold of. That is the truth. They do not take time to enjoy it. The average American usually drinks until he loses his head. In Vienna, on the other hand, one sees the natives sipping their wine or beer as they eat. They drink in moderation, and the effect is a gentle glow and a happy frame of mind."
