

The Emerald SCORE BOARD

By Jack Burke

WHAT PRICE FROSH VS. VARSITY—

In our humble opinion the price paid for Monday's varsity-frosh scrimmage was a bit too great.

It is easily understood how a bunch of freshmen turned loose against their supposed superiors will try to demonstrate that the superiority, if any, is small. It is also easy to imagine the mental frame of mind of the varsity players as they played against their supposed inferiors.

Put these two factors together and you have a psychological situation which is not at all good for the continued well-being of a varsity squad at a time such as this but a scant few days before a contest which is not only Oregon's first conference game but is always one of the games for which all of the possible strength of the Webfoot team should be available.

We haven't a thing to say about it, but it would seem that the risk of injury to such a player as Watts far overshadows any possible value such a program might have.

CONFERENCE RULING WILL AFFECT WATTS—

Speculation is rampant on the campus as to whether or not Don Watts has had what constitutes a year of participation under the rules of the Pacific Coast conference or whether he will be eligible for three years more, not having played in a conference game.

For your enlightenment we quote from Section 21(b), Definition of Participation:

Representation of an institution in any recognized athletic contest shall be considered as a season's participation in that sport. All athletic contests in which an institution is represented by a freshman or varsity team are "recognized athletic contests."

From this section of the rules it would appear that Watts will have but two years' competition left after the close of the present season.

HOW ABOUT SOME TUMBLING YELL LEADERS

It has been suggested that we start a movement. We always like to start things. Anybody does so here goes.

Over at the men's gym they have been training a bunch of tumblers for the entertainment of basketball crowds this winter. With this as a starter it has been suggested that this particular class in tumbling and the regular yell school, which is already established, be combined with the idea in mind of producing a set of yell leaders such as Idaho and many other Universities boast.

This is not a pipe-dream in any sense of the word as we have taken the liberty of investigating a bit and find that E. R. Knollin of the P. E. faculty is willing to teach, and John Creech, yell leader, is among those willing to be taught. We shall await developments.

MEEHAN ALSO MAKES A BREAK—

We feel a whole lot better, finding as we do that Chick Meehan, coach of the New York university Violets, and a predictor of no mean ability took a chance on 14 games last week and failed in these three games being the same as we did, and all far western tilts.

Meehan's attitude is easily explained as he spoke of U. S. C.'s winning as usual, or rather that the Trojans "would win as usual." This supposed power of California football is going down hill. And in one of these cases it couldn't have been the weather as Pop Warner was held to a scoreless tie with the temperature being 92 degrees.

It begins to look as if the time, when there shall be no division implied when western football is spoken of, is not far off.

Londahl Gets Watts Birth In Backfield

Precision Is Lacking at the Afternoon Session Of Ball Team

New Backfield Shows More Power But Lacks Old Speed

After the massacre of Monday night, Doc Spears put his men through what was a comparatively easy session last night, running through dummy scrimmage only, and using the scrubs as opposition with Washington plays as the basis of their attack.

For the greater part of the afternoon Johnny Londahl was in the position formerly occupied by Don Watts. With this change the backfield was made up of Johnny Kitzmiller, Ed Moeller, Al Browne, and Londahl.

Precision Lacking

Although precision was lacking in this new formation due to the change of Londahl from the position he is used to, that of Kitzmiller, it showed possibilities and while it may not be as fast a combination it is perhaps an even more powerful one.

Alternating with Londahl was George Currie, who is the usual substitute for Watts. He and Jack Erdley were used somewhat throughout the session with Erdley alternating with Browne in the "blocking back" position.

In the line one change was noticeable as Marion Hall was replaced for a portion of the work-out by Bill Morgan, husky sophomore tackle.

Lineup Unchanged

With the exception of the changes mentioned, the team lined up as it did the night before, with Orville Bailey and Steve Fletcher at ends, George Christensen and Bill Morgan, tackles, Austin Colbert and Irv Schulz at guards, Eric Forsta at center, and the backfield as mentioned above.

When asked about the effect Watts' injury would have on the team, Spears stated that the squad was hard hit by injuries and also that the trip East had done the team a great deal of harm.

garded as an indispensable aid not only to the school, but to the profession in Oregon and adjacent states.

Although every year hundreds of applications for admission are received from qualified candidates, only 226 were actually enrolled last year. Of this number all but 16 are residents of the state of Oregon, although of the number of applicants, nearly half were from states other than Oregon. The enrollment is strictly limited to the facilities in the school, and such a high quality of scholarship is insisted upon that the institution ranks among the outstanding leaders in the entire United States.

Community Chest Drive on Campus Progresses Well

The campus division of the Community Chest movement is comparing very favorably with the drives instituted in other parts of the city, according to R. C. Hall, director of the Community Chest drive on the campus.

At a meeting of the chairmen of the various divisions of the drive Monday noon, the campus division was awarded a flag for the most progress made to date.

Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars have been pledged so far and this is quite a large percentage of the total to be pledged so soon.

Mr. Hall says that if everyone continues to cooperate with him as they have done, the campus will make a very creditable showing.

Campus Marks Anniversary of Far-famed Poet

Vergil Topic of Address By Professor Dunn At Assembly

The University of Oregon is joining the rest of Indo-Aryan peoples this week in celebrating the two-thousandth anniversary of the Roman poet Vergil. On the evening of Thursday, October 16—the nearest date available in the local calendar—Phi Beta Kappa will call a general assembly in the auditorium of Villard hall to hear an illustrated address on "Vergil's Bequest in Art," by Prof. Frederic S. Dunn, chairman of the Latin department. Professor Dunn is also serving as a member of the national committee for the promotion of Vergilian celebrations under the auspices of the American Classical League. Dean James H. Gilbert will preside as president of Phi Beta Kappa.

"Rare indeed," writes Professor Dunn, "is the man whose birthday is counted back through a few centuries. Yet the international festivities celebrated this year in honor of Vergil ante-date even our Christmas by 70 years. The world is ringing with eulogies for a bard who is credited with having foretold the birth of the Christ, yet missed the fulfillment of that prophecy by 19 years."

Professor Dunn, in the first year of his experiences as an instructor on the faculty of Willamette university in 1895, began to follow up a fascinating quest, the collection of pictures based on Vergil's Aeneid. This collection, wholly revised, and much enlarged by the addition of recent works of art, forms the basis of his present address.

Last week, apropos of the Vergilian bimillennium, Professor Dunn addressed the Marion County Institute at Salem, while on October 13 he spoke before the Book club of Eugene, on themes connected with Vergil's life and poems.

enspiegel," with its wild and weird swift passages, and its grim death-march, was splendidly played. The audience's favorites were among the encores, including "Mother Machree," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Road to Mandalay," and others. An encore full of interest to those who heard Von Hoogstraten's orchestra last year was the "Bee," arranged for the band, yet retaining the "buzz," which was done by the woodwinds instead of violins.

3100 Enrollment Expected Before End of This Term

Increase Now Over 100 Compared to Last Fall's Record

An increase in registration of at least 100 students for the present term is now assured at the University of Oregon, it is announced by Earl M. Pallett, registrar, following compilation of figures today. Actual enrollment is now 3,063, a new high record for this time of the year, and an increase of 66 over the total of last year for the fall term. A few more registrations from graduate students and students in the school of sociology will swell the increase to over 3,100, it is expected.

The most marked increase is seen in new students. These now total 1,234, as compared to 1,128 for the fall term last year, or an increase of more than 100. Due to economic conditions many former students were unable to return this term, yet plan to come back for the winter and spring terms, and this will swell the increase to still higher records during the year, Mr. Pallett points out.

Cross Country Aspirants Train in Daily Trots

Two Lettermen Return to Bolster Oregon's Chances

Last night the aspirants for the varsity cross-country team covered the regular course of about three miles. From now on three or four times per week on the course will be the regular schedule.

Two lettermen, Hill and Steele, are back. Bechel and B. Long, 1928 frosh numeral winners, are out again, the latter having been injured last season. R. Hall, Tinnerstet, and Eddy, last year's frosh men, are showing good form for early season workouts. A 1928 varsity track man, McKitterick, has also turned out for cross-country.

About twelve frosh, who have been out but a few days, went part way around the three-mile course with the varsity men.

German Professor Relates His Experiences as Student

In the last 12 years, the life of Dr. Meno Spann, new assistant professor of German, has been what he terms the typical life of a student of a generation which grew up after the war. Perhaps it is typical, but at the same time there seems to be something of the unusual in his experiences.

Working in a shipyard in Bremen, where many large ships are manufactured, Dr. Spann, as a student, was able to earn money in the summer to help pay his way through college. Due to the inflation that has been prevalent in Germany since the war, the only way to get a little money was to do hard, strenuous work, he said.

His main source for earning his university expenses, however, was tutoring people for their doctor's examinations.

Dr. Spann comes to Oregon from Cornell, where he taught two years before coming here. He received his doctor's degree from the University of Marburg in 1928. His university education began in 1922 when he commenced studying at Goettingen. Later, he studied in Berlin, before going to Harburg.

When the World war began, he was living at Nuernberg, an orphan boy of 11, whose actor parents died when he was only two years old. He had been adopted by other actors.

"The thing I remember most about the war," he said, "was being hungry."

Before the war was over he was 15. If he had been a few years older or if the war had come a few years later, he might have gone into battle like the young students of Remarque's book, "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Speaking of this book, he said, "The fundamental point is not to show how the German nation as a whole faced the war, but to show how boys of good education who should have become artists, spiritual leaders, scientists, and philosophers, but not born to be fighters, were ruined by the war. For Remarque, it is a greater tragedy if war breaks a generation of able, young, sensitive men than if it kills them. The coming leaders of peace times have been destroyed."

Y.W.C.A. Slates Campus Pageant For Frosh Girls

Program To Give Portrait Of Various Phases Of Y.W.C.A.

Beginning with tea and a reception, and continuing with a program designed to show freshmen women what they can do in the Y. W. C. A., the frosh commission has scheduled its pageant for this afternoon from 4 to 6 at the Y. bungalow.

The pageant is a new idea in the frosh commission program. Various phases of Y work and play will be brought out by the several stunts which are to be given. The many opportunities for interesting activities which the Y. W. and frosh commission afford will be brought out by the pageant.

All freshmen women are invited and urged to attend the pageant this afternoon.

To the Editor:
I have not yet seen the campus movie, and there are reasons to believe I am not alone. Wouldn't it make a good feature at the Colonial or a "revival" at the "Mac"?
