

WHAT SHOW TONIGHT?

McDonald — "Her Wedding Night," with Clara Bow.
 Hellig—"Recaptured Love," with Belle Bennett.
 Rex—Lupe Velez in "The Storm."
 Colonial—"White Cargo."
 State—William Haines in "Navy Blues."

"White Cargo" Continues
 "White Cargo," intense drama of tropical Africa, continues today and Saturday at the Colonial theatre. It is the story of the battle of white men against the climate of the tropics; a tragic fight that they are foreordained to lose. A splendid cast includes Gypsy Rhotma as Tondelayo. It is a splendid play.

theatre Sunday with Robert Montgomery in the featured role. One of the song hits, "Go Home and Tell Your Mother," is rendered during a rainstorm on a golf links. Charles F. (Chuck) Reiser directed, with the cast including Dorothy Jordan, Benny Rubin, Dorothy McNulty and J. C. Nugent.

Haines at State
 William Haines, exponent of wise-cracking roles, mixes whimsical humor with a deeper note of drama in his debut in his first all-talking picture, "Navy Blues," now showing at the State theater. Haines is as comical as ever in his role of a gob aboard a destroyer, but he tempers his comedy with a bit of serious acting in which he makes of his love affair a tensely dramatic thing. Clarence Brown's direction has injected many deft human touches into the star's adventure at sea, and the result is entertainment that gives one a new idea of the versatility of the star.

"Navy Blues" is the story of a sailor and his sweetheart, a misunderstanding and a reconciliation, mingled with adventures aboard ship, the comical side of navy life, and a deal of wholesome fun.

The Bow in New Comedy
 Clara Bow, the Brooklyn Bonfire, will hold forth at the Fox McDonald theater Friday and Saturday in her latest farce comedy, "Her Wedding Night," a story of mistaken identities among American visitors in France.

A young composer, annoyed by the attention of admiring women conceives the idea of having his best friend use his name in order to rid him of the odious handshaking and such. But when they spend the week-end in the country, and are married by mistake, due to their ignorance of the French language, a series of highly amusing complications bring the story to an uproarious climax.

Clara is supported by two of the screen's favorite comedians, Skeets Gallagher, and Charles Ruggles, and these two especially add to the fun and laughter.

Lupe Velez Returns
 Lupe Velez, fiery little Mexican actress featured in Universal's stirring drama, "The Storm," starting today at the Rex theatre, became a motion picture sensation by her work as Fairbank's leading lady in "The Gaucho." She began her dramatic career in Mexico City where she danced in a musical comedy. William Boyd and Paul Cavanaugh support her in "The Storm."

Hellig Play Held Over
 "Recaptured Love," with Belle Bennett, is being held over for Friday and Saturday at the Hellig. It is one of those picturees interesting throughout. It not once lets one down, there is no slowing of tempo, and there is an entertaining mixture of drama and comedy. The complicated situations that arise when the staid business man falls in love with the musical comedy type of siren are the most amusing we have seen for some time.

Golf Show Coming

Roman Poet Given Shelf in Library

Vergil's 2000th Birthday Being Observed

Vergil, the greatest man of the first century B. C., was remembered at the library during the past week by the dedication of a special shelf to him. Yesterday, October 15, was his 2000th birthday.

Of the numerous books on this shelf some of the most important were: "Vergil and His Meaning to the World of Today," "Studies in Vergil," "The Roman Poets of the Augustan Age," "Master Vergil," "The Life of Vergil," "Daughters of Troy," and "Harvard Lectures on the Vergilian Age."

The two top rows of the shelf were turned over to pictures and manuscripts of the Vergilian age.

In observance of this week the library published a pamphlet concerning Vergil's history and his most famous works.

Alumni Sponsors Ervine Tragedy

Moroni Olsen Players Plan Farewell Tour

The Portland alumni association of the University are sponsoring a presentation of "The Ship," a tragedy by St. John G. Ervine, on October 23, 24, and 25, at the Studio theatre, Portland.

The Moroni Olsen Players, the company presenting the play, are on their farewell tour of the Northwest and Pacific coast states.

Janet Young, '14, of the University of Oregon, has the part of the grandmother, in the story which concerns John Thurlow's passion for the ships that he has built, and his son's determination to break loose from the machine-driven civilization and go back to the soil. Other characters include: old Mrs. Thurlow, a kindly and witty old lady; Janet, wife of the ship-builder, and rather a fussy person; and Captain Cornelius, who wants a "cushy" life of ease.

Department Aids Paper Industry

Agreement Is Made With Pulp and Paper Ass'n

The chemistry department has entered into an agreement with the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry for the purpose of aiding the industry. The association is interested in the promotion of research concerning the subject, and the University experts, as well as men from other universities on the Coast, will assist them.

The Pacific Coast section of the committee is headed by Dr. Leo Friedman, assistant professor of chemistry here, who has been named to the national committee on fibrous raw materials, under the auspices of the association. The organization will take up the problems of storage, sources, economics, and specifications of such materials as wood, rags, old papers, and straw.

Dr. Friedman is working now gathering data concerning the storage of wood, the application of Western woods for paper manufacture, and paper permanence.

"I believe the Oregon paper industry will be materially benefited by this project," stated Dr. Friedman.

It's Time To Go Into a "HUDDLE!"

And talk over this matter of clothes to wear before, during and after the game. It takes something really good to compete in interest with this Oregon-Washington game, and yet doesn't every smart young person who follows the team not only hope to see but to be seen? And with clothes more feminine and beguiling than they've been for many moons the young modern—dressed by Chumley—plays the game to win! Armed with the knowledge that she is smartly and appropriately dressed, she is prepared for any contest.

Just tell the boy friend—or the girl friend—to meet you at Berg's—before or after the game—Saturday.

Mobilize the Cheering Section!

Pardon us if this cheering seems a bit too soon . . . but we're feeling exceptionally cheerful all because of this 3-piece needle point sports suit sketched. . . . We can't say just what it's done to deserve such notoriety—it's really no smarter than dozens of others in our Chumley Sports Shop—but we couldn't sketch them all . . . and this one is adorable. You may choose in bison — glade — ruby-tone — black — corsair — or navy.

Yea—Team! and a jolly little hat of black strip felt tip-tilt and long on the side—bobs up to cheer. $15.00.
 Millinery Shop—Second Floor

"The game's in the bag," says the Chumley girl, and displays a new crepe fantasy. $4.95.
 Hosiery Shop—First Floor

The Chumley girl's defense against cold is a pair of new light weight silk and wool hose. $1.95.

Chumley Scores a Touchdown!

Down the field and capturing all tea honors without opposition goes this clever two-piece black flat crepe with flared peplum and skirt flaring below knees in the same manner. Three white gardenias finish front of belt and, as many admiring (and green-eyed) glances are sent their way, the Chumley girl remarks to herself: "There IS distinction in wearing Chumley clothes!"

One Down and Three to Go!

Chumley roots for Oregon and scores a touchdown in FASHION at the end of the first quarter. One down and three to go! But you won't be one of the three if you combine warmth with swank. It has flaring revers . . . of course . . . a belt, and slashed pockets with chic—no end! It defies the chill of any stadium.

We'll "dye" for dear old Oregon and Washington too. "Any shade you want," say these seamless opera pumps of silk ray. $8.50 (dyeing free).
 Glove Shop—First Floor

The orchestra just can't refuse as these 16-button length kid gloves clap wildly for "more" at the formal. In white and black $8.50—pastel shades $10.00.
 Shoe Shop—Second Floor

The signal for admiring comment is this adorable rhinestone necklace and bracelet to match. $2.95 each.
 Treasure Shop—First Floor

Hail . . . Hail . . . the Gang's All Here!

From being a cheering, excited spectator, the wise young modern transforms herself into a gracious lovely lady, for the dance with which she celebrates victory. It's partly with a long trailing frock of white crepe with rhinestone buckle and a blue velvet bow at side back. The other part is the consciousness of being perfectly dressed which comes from wearing a Chumley frock.
