All Pacific Coast conference elevens will be in full swing when Oregon and Stanford play their first conference games today at Portland and Palo Alto, respectively. Both Oregon and the Huskies, their opponents, have played three games, Washington downing both Montana and Idaho 27-0 in conference games. If Oregon can defeat the Huskies today, they will assume the latter's position in the 1.000 pct. rating.

Stanford vs. Beavers
Stanford tackles the Orangemen who dropped a game to U. S. C. two weeks ago. The Washington State Cougars will have a breathing spell today in taking on Gonzaga after having struggled to a 7-6 victory over the Trojans.

Southern California vs. the Utah Aggies. Need we say more?

THERE YOU HAVE IT. WE ARE IN FOR IT NOW. ALL YOU HAVE TO DO NOW IS READ SUNDAY'S PAPER AND FIND OUT HOW WRONG WE ARE. HOWEVER, THIS WEEK THE JOB IS NOT SO HARD AS USUAL SO WE DON'T MIND IT.

ASK YOUR DAD DOWN NEXT WEEK—
By the way if your dad hasn't decided to come down for Dad's day next week, now is a good time to put in a word and get him down. You can tell from what happens today that what happens against Idaho will be interesting to say the least so tell him to take a chance and come down. The whole campus will unite with you in making the day a big success for him.

Ask Dads Down To Big Week-end

WHILE your dad is still feeling good over this great Oregon victory slip him the works and ask him to come down for Dad's day. Make it a special invitation—go up and say to him, "Listen, Dad, I want you to come down on October 25 for one of the biggest celebrations ever to be held on the Oregon campus, and that's what Dad's day will be this year."

Beside the football game with Idaho your dad will be entertained with a big banquet and features—something doing every minute. That's a promise. Don't get the idea that Idaho is any set-up. It isn't. They have one of the fastest, flashiest outfits in the conference.

Besides, if your dad stays with you at the fraternity house or hall he can see why you need that extra ten to buy meals at the College Side Inn.

In discussing the wonders of this noted area, Dr. Hodge pointed out that this caldera is the largest of its kind in the world; that the glacial field in this region is the largest of its type in North America; that the recent McKenzie lava flow was also the greatest of its kind in North America; and that the South Sister contains the highest crater lake in the United States.

These phenomenal features had not hitherto been recognized, and a description and explanation of them a few years ago by Dr. Hodge created wide comment in

Geology Professor Points To Opportunities for Winter Sports

Dr. Edwin Hodge, noted University geology professor, in a lecture Wednesday night before the Garden club of Eugene, discussed the Three Sisters region, and presented evidence for and against making it into a national park.

Dr. Hodge through his investigations in 1925 and publications, especially "Mount Multnomah," brought international attention to one of the most interesting areas in Oregon. He was the first to discover that the Three Sisters are remnants of an old volcano whose top was destroyed by a

WASHINGTON-OREGON GAME ON—
As you are reading this you are probably sitting in the stands at the Multnomah stadium in Portland about to watch the opening kickoff of the Washington-Oregon game.

Probably all the preparation that you made for this game was the doing of Monday's problems and with that out of the way came to Portland. However, this game is the culmination of weeks of preparation on the parts of Doc Spears, Jimmy Phelan, and the respective teams of Washington and Oregon.

Jack Burke way came to Portland. However, this game is the culmination of weeks of preparation on the parts of Doc Spears, Jimmy Phelan, and the respective teams of Washington and Oregon.

THIS GAME NEEDS A LARGE BACKGROUND—

To get the true picture of this game a background is necessary as the story goes way back to the time when Phelan ruled the destinies of Purdue and Doc handled the reins at Minnesota. Doc won in the last start if we aren't very wrong and Jimmy wants a win.

From the statements of the two coaches and captains printed elsewhere in this paper it can be seen that neither staff is confident of a win. Many causes are responsible for this. First injuries have hit both squads and the coaches are a bit worried. Second each one has through past experience learned to respect the system of the other. If you don't follow us or if you have quit reading because the game has started we will finish in a hurry reminding you that you are about to witness a real game and no matter who wins they will know they have been in a fight.

We have been trying to get out of making a flat statement as to who will win but here and now we pick Oregon. We haven't had a chance to figure by how many points or go into the details but that is what we think.

OTHER TEAMS GET UNDER WAY—

Also on today's program we have:
Stanford vs. Oregon State at Palo Alto with the Cardinals having an edge.

Washington State vs. Gonzaga with the conquerors of the Sons of Troy way ahead although the spirit of the Bulldogs may keep the score way down.

Idaho vs. Whitman with a heavy Vandal flavor.
Montana vs. Montana State with the favor, if any, going to the university by virtue of their stand against the Huskies two weeks ago.

California vs. Olympic club with the edge given to the Golden Bears because any team that can beat Slip Madigan and his Gaels

Outlook Is Good For Interesting Ball Tournament

With 16 living organizations on the intramural basketball roster and over a week in which to receive new signatures, the outlook is bright for as interesting a tournament as last year's. Entries are not due until October 24, but Earl Bouchey, director, requests that applications be filed as soon as possible. It is expected that play will start the first week of November.

Three of last year's finalists, Sigma Alpha Mu, S. A. E., and Delta are again participating and there is a possibility that an independent team will replace the strong free lance quintet that blasted the hopes of several strong squads.

Although the Deltas are present champions, it is highly probable that they will be among the "also-rans" when the schedule is completed. Hoag, Jost, and Stahl will be missing from their lineup, leaving only the sharpshooting Bell brothers. On the other hand, the runner-up, Sigma Alpha Mu, retain Rotenberg and Director, while Max Rubenstein may be allowed to compete for them. Rotenberg was ineligible for the Frosh squad last year, and will again be a valuable aid if football does not occupy all his time. In addition to this array of talent will be Isaac Donin, Lincoln high school star. "Cap" Roberts will not be playing center for S. A. E., but another Portland prep star, Jack Robertson, should fill his position.

All American!

An injury to Merle Hufford, Washington triple threat man, may keep him out of the annual Oregon-Washington clash, but fans can still see Johnny Kitzmiller, Oregon's candidate for all-American honors.

scientific circles. The result was that Oregonians began to realize the superb beauty of that region and the possibilities for an ideal summer and winter recreational area. The latter feature is now being developed by the Obsidian club of Eugene.

Dr. Hodge said that the University students have not fully appreciated the wonderful opportunity for winter sports in this region. That on the basis of phenomenal features and beauty, the Three Sisters region has long since demanded as its natural right to be named as a national park.

He stressed in his lecture that Eugene is not taking advantage of such an opportunity to obtain the tremendous income that would result from the Three Sisters region being made into a national park. Dr. Hodge closed by saying that the lack of proper interest on the part of the citizens of Eugene is the only obstacle in the way of making Oregon's most interesting and attractive region, the Three Sisters, into a national park.

Faculty members of the Princeton Theological seminary have denied charges that they are "modernistic."

Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, will be the principal speakers at the third annual Southern Conference on Education at the University of North Carolina, October 30, 31, and November 1 and 2.

Experience is a great asset—we believe Jimmy Phelan's Huskies will get lots of it when they clash with Doc Spears' fighting Web-foots today. Washington will return to Seattle a much wiser team after meeting Oregon.
