Hail Piggers' Guide!

ONE of the greatest aides to convenience on the campus is the annual student directory, commonly known as the "piggers' guide." For the benefit of students who are new on the campus, it might be said that this book contains names, occupations, and phone numbers of every individual connected with the University of Oregon.

This year a record has been set. The directory has been placed on the market only one week following the close of registration. This date is much earlier than the book has been issued in previous years, which fact, obviously, adds much to the convenience of students and faculty. At the beginning of each school year "citizens" of the University are less acquainted and feel the need of some such introduction. This year the directory has been published at a most logical time and we are congratulating officials for their speedy work.

Dressed in bright red, the book is of a higher type. University local phone numbers are listed; in fact, the entire exchange book is duplicated. The directory is paid for in part by advertising sold to down-town merchants. The Emerald feels that this is more of a convenience than detriment to the appearance of the book. Also funds secured from this source will dispense with a deficit experienced in former years.

Consult the directory and get acquainted.

Pitfalls For Independents

TODAY we are going to be honest with ourselves. Today we are not going to boost a plan which we think may be effected into something very worthwhile. Instead, we are going to sit tight on the side-lines and watch.

An organization for independent men on the campus is proposed, and we think it a very good thing. Social unity is desired for these men, and we desire that, too. Conflict with established organizations plays no part in the plan, and we wish it to play no part.

But like starting anything of value, starting such an organization will have hard sledding. First of the obstructions will be the jealousy of those who themselves have recognized the need, but who subconsciously have so much pictured themselves as the originators that they doubt the ability of others.

First pitfall will be the discouraging experience of leaders, who will sometimes find their own fire unmirrored in the members. A memberless meeting or two may too early invite abandonment.

First danger will be merging of interests and personnel with some other group such as the Y. M. C. A., which, though excellent in itself, has not the same problems. Subordination might be fatal. And last, but of most general import, will be the suspicion prevalent among students that such an organization will play its most important part with its vote in campus politics. There may be no evil in that, but as a motive it would be sure to be frowned upon.

So today we are honest with ourselves and with the men who are calling the independent meeting. We believe their purpose excellent, but their path rough. If they succeed they will have done much good; if they fail they will have done much harm. Since our approval is confined to the purpose, we cannot applaud the undertaking until it is complete.

But—best wishes!

Who said that Oregon men and women didn't yell at the game Saturday? Who said that they didn't set the streets alive with spirit? Who said that Oregon's attitude wasn't right? Nobody!

Said the hare to the pack of dogs close to his heels: "Oh, could I only be Johnny Kitzmiller for one small moment."

The Sigma Nu siren has disappeared. Three guesses where it has gone.

From Our Neighbors

OUR OREGON BROTHERS

George Cherry, president of the Oregon student body, and Vinton Hall, editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald, recently conferred with George Knutsen, our student proxy, and an executive of the Barometer, regarding relations between the two institutions. The four talked over problems of their student bodies in a spirit of real friendship and cooperation.

Instead of trying to express the sentiment of the student officers, we are reprinting an editorial from the Emerald which we believe shows the spirit of Oregon and Oregon State excellently.

We know the editorial is sincere and that petty controversies will have no place in the student administration of either school. Instead, an attitude of cooperation and brotherhood will be shown this year and as long as the Oregon

The Safety Valve

An Outlet for Campus Steam

To the Editor:

As I sat in the stands Saturday afternoon and watched with two score thousand others the band men of the Washington game, I was struck by the contrast between the two musical organizations. At one end of the field there was a flash of color marking the pleasing appearance of the Washington band, and at the other a somber mass relieved only by the outlandish white busby atop the rigid head by the drum major which represented Oregon.

What has become of the old green and yellow uniforms? There was even some doubt as to the merits of the old suits, but I feel that they were infinitely better than those presented Saturday for at least the band was then the living embodiment of the Oregon colors.

If the Oregon band is worth training and worth presenting at athletic contests, then certainly it is worthy of uniforms bearing out a motif in harmony with and as an abatement to the spirit of the school. Would Oregon students rather see the band playing "Mighty Oregon" in khaki or in green and yellow? The military uniforms have their place on the drill field, but they do not belong on the athletic field where color, not drabness, must be used to meet color.

—MERLIN BLAIS.

"GIMME A BROMO," AND OTHER EXPRESSIONS OF POST WEEK-END GREETINGS. AFTER THE GAME OUR OLD UNIVERSITY ISN'T SO BAD, EH? WHICH LEADS LITTLE AURELIUS TO BREAK INTO THE NEW PHONE BOOTH SONG, "WE'D DIAL FOR DEAR OLD OREGON!"

WEEK-END STUFF
A blasted liar

She says, "I spent
My nights at home."

WHAT'S THIS WE HEAR ABOUT THE SIGMA NU SIREN BEING LOST IN PORTLAND?
Sun still shines
And skies are blue;
Hunt a new sweetheart
For old Sigma Nu.
Creech comes tripping in with the indignant statement that it was a fire whistle, not a Lorelei.

Well, if that's the case, we'll have to alter our original sentiment as follows:
They've got the heat,
They need the whistle;
When Stadelman reads this,
Won't he bristle?

ANYWAY, WE'RE GLAD THEY GOT RID OF THE BLAMED THING.

What's this we hear about the Spee's getting so exclusive that they went over the Washington line to have their fun. Tut, tut, you little rascals, we saw you.

Week-end's favorite criticisms: and Oregon State student bodies progress.

The Barometer, as spokesman for the Associated Students of O. S. C., wishes to thank Oregon's leaders for their helpfulness and encouragement and to extend to the University warmest wishes for a successful year in all that it undertakes.

This paper feels sure that the Oregon State student body as a whole will follow the attitude of its leaders in its contacts with the University, and that a repetition of a "strained relations" feeling is almost impossible with such a spirit existing.

Well, the Phi Psi's managed to achieve their ultimate goal. As a bit of clever rushing they got their picture in the paper with their contraption which was a cross between a fire truck and a float representing the spirits of Liberty (belle and all). Which reminds me of their new sweetheart song: "Will you come back to me, Phi Psi for you."

People are wondering how much the A. T. O.'s paid "Slug" Palmer to sing in their trio at the Paramount. The Kappa Sigs really ought to protest because good rushing mediums like that aren't so plentiful these days that they can afford to be lending them gratis to the other tongs.

Poor little Nicholas! He was such a mixture. Half Scotch and half bromo-seltzer.

WE WON'T ANSWER THIS ONE
Little Christina would like to know why most of the Washington students were like the Scotch race.

AND THEN, IN CLOSING, WE WISH TO TENDER THE THANKS OF THE UNIVERSITY TO THE TWO SIGMA HALL MEN WHO HELPED WIN THE GAME BY SLEEPING IN THE ROOM NEXT TO THE HUSKY FOOTBALL TEAM AND KEEPING THEM AWAKE HALF THE NIGHT. THEY LATER GOT BOUNCED OUT ON THEIR EAR, BUT IT WAS ALL FOR THE DEAR OLD SCHOOL. IT IS OF SUCH STUFF THAT REAL PATRIOTS ARE MADE.
