Victorious Webfoots Are Starting Preparations for Game With Vandals

Duck Gridmen To Face Idaho Next Saturday

WEBFOOT HANDLERS KNOW THEIR STUFF

Our most lasting impression of last Saturday's game was not by any manner of means the spectacular catch of Johnny Kitzmiller, nor was it the ensuing run that made possible the score which put the game on ice.

What we were most impressed by was the fact that, although the day was warm and although the game was tough, not one Oregon man found himself on his back for any cause. Of course we realize that Spears doesn't allow his men to lie on their backs when time is being called out, but even with that fact assured we were impressed to see that no wearer of the Lemon-Green was knocked out.

Bill Hayward and Doc Spears deserve a world of praise for the existence of such a condition, made even more interesting by the fact that Kitzmiller, Bailey, Forsta, Colbert, Christensen and Fletcher played 60 minutes of football that afternoon.

GOLDEN BEARS PULLS A FAST ONE

It all worked out fine this weekend and we can again hold up our heads. We went wrong on one prediction, that of the California-Olympic club game, but in this instance somebody played a dirty trick on us because California played their second string against the more experienced clubmen.

This, by the way, only bears out what we said before the California-Washington State game, that Nibs Price is out to beat Stanford at any cost. It seems rather expensive to lose a game to a team in shape for another game, but after all, what does it mean to Price to beat the clubmen who don't belong to any conference, abide by any conference rules or care who plays for them?

BILL REINHART ISSUES FIRST CALL

Basketball starts tonight. We come out with this announcement now, but it will in all probability be a long time before you and the rest of the campus get a chance to see and enjoy any actual games. Bill Reinhart is going to get under way early this year and has fond hopes of getting out a better team in that way. Oregon was handicapped by a lack of size last year and Bill intends to offset this by more work.

TUMBLERS STRUT STUFF AT GAME

We were glad to see some good come of the suggestion that tumbling be combined with yell-leading as indicated by the antics of John Creech, Kelsey Slocum, Ed Wells and Mac Miller at the game. Starting tonight the yell-leaders' school will hold practice sessions twice weekly and anyone interested can gain added information from any of the four mentioned above. We hope the idea takes permanent hold.

Frosh Grid Squad Points for Rooks

Injuries Hinder Yearling Football Team

With only four days left to get his freshman eleven into shape for the coming game with the Oregon State Rooks next Saturday at Corvallis, Coach Prink Callison sent his squad through another three-hour workout yesterday.

Despite the fact that injuries to several men has hindered him, Callison is expected to have a strong lineup on the field next Friday night.

The starting lineup will not be announced until late in the week. On Saturday, November 1, the yearling "B" squad will journey to Ashland, where they will meet the Ashland high school eleven.

Team Returns From Husky Fray in Excellent Condition

Spears in Secret Practice Sends Second Team Through Plays

The Washington Huskies are surmounted, and the next wave that the Oregon Ducks must overcome arrives in the form of the Idaho Vandals next Saturday. The coming invaders were squelched by the Huskies at Seattle, October 11, so the outcome of Oregon's next game should not be very much to worry about. Washington piled up a score of 27 to zero against Idaho. Therefore, according to statistics, the final score of the Oregon-Idaho game should be about 24 to nothing, since the Ducks were seven points better than the northerners last Saturday at Portland. So much for theory.

But history has proven many times that the dog that is on the bottom of the pile often has a tendency to inflict serious damages on those who are fortunately and precariously perched on the top. Idaho will face Oregon Saturday with a burning desire to wring a victory from the necks of the tough and well-coached Ducks. The Idahoans are not rated as very powerful or dangerous, but there's a desperate fighting change for them, and they will grab for it—with everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Spears Not Worried However, Coach Clarence W. Spears apparently does not rate the Vandals as very formidable. It is rumored that he will start a second team against them, and give his more experienced men a chance to observe from the sidelines.

At secret practice last night the reserves were galloped through a lot of formations that ranged from line mashes and end runs to criss-crosses and double passes.

Fletcher's Kicking Good Big Steve Fletcher, whose regular position is left end, got off some beautiful punts against the Huskies Saturday, when he played back for Kitzmiller. Fletcher got rid of the ball quickly and sent it off for over fifty yards on nearly every kick.

Men's Condition Excellent Not one Oregon man was knocked out during the entire battle against the Huskies. During time out periods, every Webfoot gridman stayed on his feet and seemed to have no desire whatever to recline upon the trampled sand. This speaks well for their physical condition. The Washington players seemed always anxious for a chance to rest, and Phelan's substitutions were about three times those made by Spears.

Music Students To Start Recital Series Tonight

The first of the series of Tuesday evening recitals to be given by pupils of the school of music will take place October 28 at the music auditorium. Gladys Foster and Carolyn Haberlach, students of piano under George Hopkins, will present an hour of two-piano ensemble music. The recital will be free to the public.

Miss Foster and Miss Haberlach have many mutual interests. They are both members of Alpha Phi, both in their junior year, and both members of the music honoraries Tau Delta Delta and Mu Phi Epsilon.

Idaho Game Tickets Found on Sale at Co-op

Reserve tickets for the Idaho game, to be played on Hayward field, October 25, Dad's day, are now on sale at the office of the graduate manager and at the Co-op, according to an announcement made by Doc Robnett, assistant graduate manager, last night.

Mr. Robnett also explained that the tickets for the Dad's section are procurable at the office at the dean of men. This year the Dad's section is situated in the heart of the student section instead of across the field as it has been in the past.

Students must present student body tickets at the gate.

Irma Logan will create a musical background for the readings of Anne Baum.

First They Fix Then They Buy

JOHN WADE and Bill Manning, Oregon students, have made a purchase which will be in the running for auto prizes this year.

While walking on Thirteenth avenue Sunday, Wade noticed a man trying to make a Ford roadster travel. The thing wouldn't move, so Wade and Manning thought they might be able to help the driver. The owner of the 4d smiled when the collegians offered advice. In less than 10 minutes the car was purring. "Not a bad heap" declared Wade, and in another 10 minutes the Webfooters were closing the deal—they had purchased the "thing" for $10. Today both are smiling over their roadster. A Ford, it runs, has a tail light and one front light, a horn that whistles, four tires, one running board and one steering gear. "Yes, it's a car to be proud of," whispered Manning. "We should arrive on time for our 'dates' now."

Faculty, Students Attend Production of 'Aeneas'

Several of the faculty and student body members of the University of Oregon took advantage of their presence in Portland over the week-end to attend the production "Aeneas." It was presented Friday and Saturday by the combined Portland high schools.

Many of those who saw it considered the play to be one of the finest productions ever presented by high school students.

New Social Club Is Organized For All Independents

Call for a meeting of men on the campus unaffiliated with any living organization was issued yesterday by Howard R. Lee, freshman, with the stated purpose of creating an organization to promote the social welfare of all independents.

The meeting, which is set for Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. hut, is sponsored by Mrs. Charlotte Donnelly, secretary of housing and employment, Lee said. The Y. M. C. A. hut will be available for future meetings and entertainments.

Regular meetings will be held under a constitution to be drawn up, and officers will be elected at the first meeting. It is also planned that a distinguishing pin will be issued to members upon payment of small dues.

"Every independent student I have met," Lee declared yesterday, "has felt the need for such an organization. Once started and organized, the membership will exceed that of any other club."

"The independents will not oppose the established fraternities, but will join with them in accomplishing their purposes."

Dr. John H. Mueller, associate professor of sociology, spoke yesterday afternoon before the "Home Science" club of which Mrs. James H. Gilbert is president. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Warren D. Smith. The topic was the first of a series of the feminist movement.

Phi Delta Theta Wins First Meet

Sig Eps Fail To Show Up For Donut Swim

In the opening of the donut swimming and water polo tournament yesterday afternoon at the men's gym, Phi Delta Theta won both swimming and polo matches by default from Sigma Phi Epsilon.

A practice match between the Wild Cats and the Phi Deltas was held in place of the scheduled match. The Wild Cats scratched the Phi Deltas into submission with a score of 4 to 2, with the ball in Phi Delt territory the greater part of the time.

Oglesby scored three of the four points for the Wild Cats while Culp produced the fourth. Needham and Cross each scored once for the Phi Deltas. Needham played for the Phi Deltas in this practice game, although not a member of that organization.

Today at 4 o'clock the Fijis meet Friendly hall in swimming and polo, and at 5 o'clock Phi Kappa Psi meets Kappa Sigma.
