

Oregon's Dads Break Records For Attendance

O. Laurgaard of Portland Elected President Of Organization

Expansion of Boundaries Draws Approval Of Group

It was a busy time for the Dads of Oregon, over 700 strong, gathered here on the campus last week-end. Besides the pleasures of meeting their sons and daughters, visiting at the living organizations, and taking in entertainments given in their honor, the assembled Dads found time to meet together, to discuss the problems that confront them as fathers of Oregon students, and to lay plans for the development of their relationship with the University.

Laurgaard Elected
At the business meeting Saturday morning O. Laurgaard, city engineer of Portland was elected president of the organization for the coming year. He succeeds Paul T. Shaw. Although Mr. Shaw's term of office had not yet expired, he is ineligible for office since he now has no children attending the University. Other officers named were: Sam H. Baker of Grants Pass, vice-president; Wilson H. Jewett, Eugene, secretary; and Mrs. Paul W. Ager, executive secretary.

Executive Committee Named
The executive committee was named with the following members: Milton Markewitz, Portland; J. C. Stevens, Portland; A. W. Norblad, Salem; Carl Haberlach, Tillamook; C. H. Brockhage, Portland; Herman Siegrist, LaGrande; R. S. Hamilton, Bend; Charles Hall, Marshfield, and F. J. Cobbs, Portland.

The program of campus expansion will be continued under the leadership of the new president, and at the suggestion of the Alumni association, it was voted to extend the boundaries of the campus to the Willamette river on the north, instead of the Southern Pacific tracks as in the past. The suggestion was made to aid the development of water sports here and the ultimate beautification of the district by making a park of the grounds.

The banquet Saturday night was attended by a record crowd of more than 1,000 dads and their sons and daughters.

New Dad's Prexy Thinks University Of Value to State

Intends To Carry on With Work of Paul Shaw As President

O. Laurgaard, of Portland, newly elected president of the Oregon Dads, is a strong supporter of the University of Oregon and the father of two Oregon students; Helen Laurgaard, senior in romance language and Glenn Laurgaard, freshman in architecture.

When asked why he was sending his children to Oregon, Mr. Laurgaard answered, "I love the state of Oregon and have made it my home by choice. I want my son and daughter to be imbued with the realization of the possibilities of the state and its vast resources. This can best be done through the state university."

Mr. Laurgaard received his B. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in civil engineering in 1903. He was given his M. A. degree by the same university in 1914. He is city engineer for Portland and president of the Oregon state board of engineering examiners.

In regard to his new office, Mr. Laurgaard said, "I am in thorough sympathy with the aims and purposes of the Oregon Dad's organization and will endeavor to equal Paul T. Shaw, my predecessor, in my work for the association."

Former Speaker of House Played 'Pro' Ball In Youth

Ralph Hamilton Appointed Member of Oregon Dad's Executive Board

From college baseball to amateur league games, from university law professorship to speaker of the house in the state legislature, Ralph S. Hamilton, a visitor on the campus last week-end, continues his career before the public as a newly appointed member of the executive board of Oregon Dads.

Mr. Hamilton was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1905. While there he was active as the pitcher on the college baseball team, but before he left school he decided he didn't want to play professional ball and determined instead to travel over the country and play on amateur town teams here and there. During 1907-08 he played with the St. Louis Browns, an American league group. "I wasn't an awfully good hitter," he admitted, "but it was my business to keep the other teams from hitting."

"Later I drifted West and taught for two years in the University of Oregon law school. This was from 1916 to 1918, during the war. Most of the able-bodied men enlisted as soon as war was declared and the classes on the campus were very discouraging—a few girls and a couple of boys on crutches—trying to carry on."

After teaching, Mr. Hamilton went to Bend to practice law, and six years ago was elected speaker of the house of representatives in the state legislature, which position he filled until a year ago.

While on the campus Mr. Hamilton has been visiting his daughter Gay, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

WITH THE DADS

Judging from the number of mothers who were on the campus on Dad's Day, the mothers will have a good chance to beat the Dad's Day record if they show as much enthusiasm next spring as they did last week-end.

George W. Hug, superintendent of schools at Salem, who was a charter member of Beta Theta Pi on the Oregon campus in 1907, slept in an "upper" at the Beta house Saturday night as a guest of his son, Wallace, a pledge at the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. "They're all right for college men," said Mr. Hug of the upper bed, "but give me my own bed."

One Oregon Dad is also a Stanford Dad. He is Dr. G. L. Sobey of Paso Robles, California. Doctor Sobey missed the Stanford-California game to attend the Oregon Dad's Day activities. Doctor Sobey is the father of Gifford Sobey, a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity on the Oregon campus. Doctor Sobey has a daughter who is attending Leland Stanford university.

Dad's Day proved to be also Granddad's Day when three Dad's Dads were present at the festivities. They were, respectively, H. W. Goddard and A. A. Kaddery, granddads of Mary Katherine Fenton and Anna Pauline Rea; and Dr. John Straub, dean emeritus of the University. Mr. Goddard attended Dad's Day last year, but this was the first time for Mr.

Kaddery. Doctor Straub needs no introduction.

"It has been a most enjoyable occasion for me and I intend to come back when Dad's Day rolls around again," said Curtis G. Feldman, who was a Dad's Day guest of his daughter, Inez Feldman, a junior in the school of journalism.

"As long as you give us Dads one week-end like this every year, we won't mind paying the bills," remarked T. L. Whitmer, of Portland, when discussing the high cost of a college education with one of the students. Edna Marie Whitmer, freshman in music and Sigma Kappa pledge, is the daughter of Mr. Whitmer.

"The Emerald is the best college paper on the coast, in my opinion," remarked E. M. Sehorn, a Dad's Day guest on the campus. Mr. Sehorn, who is a publisher from Willows, California, spent much of his time in the school of journalism.

Paul Steinmetz, Portland merchant, expressed himself as being happy to have his son, Wesley, enrolled in such a school as the University of Oregon. "Oregon is a college that any boy would enjoy attending," Mr. Steinmetz said.

Spirit Unchanged Says Drain Dad

STILL loyal to the Oregon that he attended and proud of the great University which his daughters are attending is Leslie P. Miller, an Oregon Dad who graduated from the University of Oregon in 1903 and who was guest of his twin daughters, Juanita Miller and Willetta Miller Hartley, on Dad's Day. Mr. Miller is superintendent of schools at Drain, Oregon.

"Oregon spirit today is overwhelming," said Mr. Miller proudly, "but he loyally added, "We had real Oregon spirit back in 1904. There were only 400 of us, and the Oregon spirit of 3200 students today isn't eight times as great as it was then."

"People scoffed at President P. L. Campbell when he said that the University would have two or three thousand students within 20 years," Mr. Miller said in reference to the present size of the University. He added, "It is a great feeling to come back to a greater Oregon and see my daughters boosting for Oregon with the same feeling that I have for the alma mater."

piano recital at the School of Music auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

This is the first of a series of Tuesday evening recitals which are to be given during the year by students at the school of music. They are free to students and townspeople.

Mr. Hopkins will play an orchestral accompaniment on the second piano for the second and third numbers on the program.

Psych Lab Receives New Sound Instrument

A new instrument for demonstration and measurement has been added to the psychology laboratory this year. It is a phonograph projectoscope, an instrument which records sound waves including overtones so that they can be seen by the experimenters.

Its practical use is demonstrated by the accuracy with which it shows the difference in frequency of tone between a tuning fork and such unreliable mediums as the human voice or a violin.

Telegram Editor Says Expansion Is Oregon's Need

Brockhagen Wants Dads To Ask Funds of State For University

In a Dad's Day interview, C. H. Brockhagen, editor and publisher of the Portland Telegram, discussed the present standing and the potentialities of the University of Oregon.

Mr. Brockhagen believes that Oregon's greatest need is one of expansion and at the annual meeting of Oregon Dads last Saturday, he was active in appointing a committee of Dads to go before the state legislature in January to make an appeal for funds for this project.

He emphasized the fact that at present Oregon has one of the finest schools of journalism in the country and that the school of music has received international recognition. He also stated that newspaper men consider the Emerald an excellent collegiate publication.

Mr. Brockhagen predicts that in the near future Oregon will be one of the greatest university printing centers in the United States. John Henry Nash, the famous printer, became interested in the University after seeing the Oregon, which he ranks as the second best yearbook in the United States. Since then Mr. Nash has presented the University with many rare volumes on printing.

Vergil Subject of Poem by H. Woods

Dr. Nash Prints Special Edition of Work

When the Italy-America society issued a call for a poem in honor of the 2000th birthday of Vergil, Henry Woods, S. J., emeritus professor of the University of Santa Clara, responded with "Laudes Virgilinae."

The poem is written in hexameter verse and contains about three hundred lines. It is written in the native tongue of Vergil, and the phrasing and rhythm reflect his style.

Dr. John Henry Nash, world-famous printer, then printed the work on his private press for distribution among his friends. Dean Eric W. Allen was recently presented with one of these copies.

This piece of work is of interest because Doctor Nash is at present visiting in the Northwest and will attend a banquet given in his honor in Portland on October 28. It is also of interest because the University has so recently been celebrating the birthday of Vergil. Dean Allen's copy of the poem

Dads Bring Silverware

To the Kappa Alpha Thetas, neighbors across the way, went the second prize, the Paul T. Shaw trophy. In the photo below are H. J. Warner and his daughter Jane of Albany, R. L. Russell and Dorothy of Portland, Walter M. Cook and daughter, Mary Betty, of Portland, and Judge Greenman and Phoebe of Verona.

FAMOUS PRINTER STOPS ON CAMPUS

The ten citizens giving the dinner will also be guests to 100 of their friends.

Invitations to the banquet were printed at the University press on thick paper made by hand in Holland and watermarked with the name of the famous printer. Hand-set cloister type was used throughout.

Even brain-workers and frat-house fans get "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

YOU don't have to be an athlete to get "Athlete's Foot." Men who do their daily dozen in the library giving the old bean a big workout; and the boys who do a mental marathon in class but never try for the track—as well as those who really do give their muscles to Alma Mater—any and all are just as good red meat to the tiny germ which has spread this ringworm infection everywhere. Tinea trichophyton is its name and it's the cause of "Athlete's Foot."

In universities from Pennsylvania to California, it has been found that 50% of the men have it. The U. S. Health Service has reported that "at least half of all adults suffer from it at some time." Co-eds are not immune from this trouble, either.

It lurks in the very places where we all go for cleanliness and health—on the edges of swimming pools and showers—in gymnasiums—on locker- and dressing room floors. In spite of modern sanitation (you have to boil socks 15 minutes to kill it) this fungus parasite infects and re-infects bare feet almost any time they come in contact with damp floors.

Absorbine Jr. kills the germ of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

Tests in a famous New York "lab" have revealed that Absorbine Jr. penetrates flesh-like tissues deeply and that wherever it penetrates, it KILLS the ringworm germ.
