Yearling Team Ready to Battle Staters in Evening's Clash on Hayward Field

Frosh, Rooks Meet Tonight Under Lights

Callison's Yearlings Plan To Even Score With Old Rivals

Starting Lineup Same as In Washington Fray; Game at 7:30

By BRUCE HAMBY

With every man on the squad eager to even matters with the Oregon State Rooks for their 7-to-6 defeat in the first "little-big" game, Coach Prink Callison will turn his yearling charges loose on Hayward field tonight at 7:30 against Dick Newman's Orange and Black eleven. It will be the last game of the season in Eugene.

The Frosh ended practice last night with a light workout consisting mainly of dummy scrimmage. All of the men who have been hindered by minor ailments were in suits and appeared ready to play.

It was announced last night that the same lineup, with one exception, which faced the Washington Babes would start against the Rooks. The only possible change is the return of Ed McLellan, regular center, to the team. McLellan, who has been suffering for more than a week with an injured knee, has been out regularly this week for practice, but it is not known for sure whether he will play the entire game.

Fred Kennedy, fullback, who has been hampered by a game leg since the Washington game, is on deck and will start in the backfield. Along with Kennedy in the backfield will be Joe Lillard and Mark Temple at the halfback positions, and Howard Bobbitt at quarter. Ray Kelly and Roney DePittard will be on hand as reserves. Kelly was not able to play in the Washington tilt because of an injury to his side.

The forward will be almost the same as that which started last week. McLellan will fill the pivot position; Thompson and Anderson, guards; Morgan and Fury, tackles; and Mikulak and Wishard at the wing berths.

Callison is well supplied with line reserves. McCallum and Nelson, tackles; Campbell, guard; McKelligan, center, and Simons, end, have all shown up well in practice sessions and will most likely see action in tonight's fray.

The Frosh line will outweigh the Rook forward wall slightly, and the backfield will have more than a 15-pound advantage per man.

Reports from the Rook camp state that Coach Newman has had great difficulty with his squad due to injuries and a mental let-down on the part of the players. A complete reorganization of his lineup, particularly the backfield, was threatened if the men did not pep up.

The Rook starting lineup has not yet been released, but it will probably be nearly the same as in the first encounter. McGilvray, Anderson, and Curtin, ends; Parfilly, Wagner, Short, and Dixon, tackles; Volz, Robestell, and Kenna, guards, and Danforth, center, make up the list from which the forward will be chosen.

The backfield will be composed of Nevin and Small at quarter-back; Biancone, Krivickas or Adams, halfbacks, and Joslin or Underwood, fullbacks.

Probable starting lineups:

Mikulak.....LER.....Curtin
Morgan.....LTR.....Short
Anderson.....LGR.....Kenna
McLellan.....C.....Danforth
Thompson.....RGL.....Volz
Fury.....RTL.....Parfilly
Wishard.....REL.....Anderson
Bobbitt.....Q.....Nevin
Lillard.....LHR.....Adams

CHOPPIE PARKE MAY START AT HALFBACK

(Continued from Page One) the veteran Oregon line as no team has yet been able to make much yardage through the Webfoot forward wall. The Beavers have relied mainly on their forward passing attack in their games thus far this year and it is expected that they will take to the air against the Spears coached eleven.

Fletcher To Kick
Spears will probably start Steve Fletcher and Orville Bailey at ends; Bill Morgan and George Christensen, at tackles; Austin Colbert and Jerry Lillie at guards; and Forsta at center in the line.

Fletcher and Bailey are both first class pass receivers and they will likely play an important part in the Oregon attack. Fletcher will go the major part of the Webfoot punting with Jack Erdley filling his position at end when Steve drops back to punt.

The showing made by big Bill Morgan, sophomore tackle, in the Idaho and U. C. L. A. games was such that he will get the call over Marion Hall, two year-letterman, against the Beavers. Morgan got off to a slow start this season but he has improved greatly in the last couple weeks and he is going at top speed now. Jerry Lillie, who played regularly last year, will start at his old position Saturday replacing Irvan Schulz who has been handicapped with injuries since the Washington game. The remainder of the Oregon line is the same as that which has been used all season and all of the men are in good shape.

John D. Stout Visits
John D. Stout of Portland was on the campus during the past week conferring with various departments of the University. He is representing the Stout Teaching Agency which has placed a number of Oregon graduates in teaching positions in past years.

Colorado Position Taken
Dr. H. G. Townsend, professor of philosophy, has accepted an invitation from the University of Colorado to teach there next summer. This will be his fifth summer at this school.

Visitors at Chi Omega
Mrs. E. T. Hall, Mrs. George F. Kohler, and Miss Jane Keeney, all of Portland, are guests at Chi Omega this week. They expect to attend the Corvallis game.

PLEDGING ANNOUNCEMENT
Sigma Nu announces the pledging of Jack Stangier, Pendleton, Oregon.

Three Orange Babes whom the Oregon frosh plan to send back to their cribs crying, when they tangle in the second football game of the season between the two teams tonight on Hayward field at 7:30. The Rooks took the first tilt by a 7 to 6 score, and the frosh are determined to set the varsity a good example by turning the tables and trouncing them.

Bachelordon Five Takes Hard Fight From Dorm Men

Betas, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Gamma and Zeta Hall Score Wins

The Bachelordon quintet managed to scrape a win from Sherry Ross yesterday afternoon with the comparatively low score of 12 to 3. Deb Addison was the shining light of the Bachelordon boys, garnering five points.

The Betas won their match from International House by a forfeit. The Chi Psis were hopelessly outclassed by Sigma Phi Epsilon with a score of 36 to 6. The Chi Psis didn't have a chance, although they did hold their opponents to 12 points the first half. They couldn't stop Brewer and Rollway, who tallied seven and 13 points, respectively.

Alpha Upsilon succumbed to the Gamma hall hoopers, 8 to 17. The playing was extremely ragged on both sides, characterized by long dribbles and faulty passing. Carver made half of the Alpha Upsilon scores while Minney was high man for Gamma hall with eight points.

Zeta hall played an uphill battle with Sigma Chi to lose, 27 to 7. The Sigma Chi boys looked much the better team as they warmed up, but Zeta opened up with some beautiful playing to hold their opponents 12 to 6 in the first half. Wolf, of Zeta, made a beautiful long shot to score first and this was followed by a long dribble through the Sigma Chi boys by Smith, also of Zeta, to score the next two points. The checking was very close throughout.

The S. A. E. quintet smothered Sigma Pi Tau, 35 to 9. Robertson was high point man for the winners with 10 points to his credit. The S. A. E. hoopers worked comparatively smoothly and received little resistance until the last when the S. P. T.'s began a rally ended by final gun.

Monday was a very popular day at the gym and an especially trying one for those who had charge of the supply window because 839 people made use of the gym facilities that day. At the conclusion of the intramural games the 30 individual showers were being occupied by twice that number of students, and it was not until 7 o'clock that the weary basket checkers ceased to receive a constant flow of wearing apparel and other equipment furnished by the University.

A total of 902 marks the largest number in the history of the school that has ever turned out for gym athletics in one day, while around 600 is generally regarded as a banner day. Some reasons for the exceptionally large turnout Monday were varsity and frosh swimming and the intramural basketball games. These together with the regular gym classes and the fact that the gym would not be open Tuesday led undoubtedly to the large influx of patrons.

Ganoe Collecting Papers Scattered About Library

John T. Ganoe, associate professor of history, has been working in the main library for several weeks collecting documents which under the Dewey system of classifying are scattered throughout the library.

Mr. Ganoe also finds that the records of the house of representatives and the United States senate are incomplete. As soon as the investigation is completed all effort will be made to complete the files and bring them up to date.

The present condition of the documents makes it practically impossible to carry on research work, it is asserted.
