To Stick by Guns

THE power of rumor has often asserted itself and many times caused trouble that would otherwise have never sprung up. Add to rumors the power of newspaper writers to arouse readers of daily papers and you have what might easily be called a "mess."

Daily newspapers up and down the coast have printed columns about the possibility of Dr. Clarence W. Spears leaving his post as head football coach at Oregon to accept a similar position at the University of California—these papers have printed all of these "dope" stories merely on rumors and one leading morning paper demands in an editorial that Spears clearly state his position.

Gossip has also been much in evidence on the Oregon campus as to the possibilities of Spears' leaving here and nobody seems to know just how the whole matter will end.

Spears, in response to an inquiry from the Emerald, wired from Los Angeles, where he is attending the Pacific Coast conference meeting, that there was absolutely no foundation to the reports received here that he was considering the California position. The contract he has with Oregon extends for another four years and local authorities state that it is binding upon both parties.

Surely the hard-working football coach would not send a message of denial to the student daily unless it was true in every respect—knowing Dr. Spears as we do, we are certain that he will stick by his guns here, and those guns promise to have plenty of power next year.

More Students Think

YESTERDAY we mentioned that young folks of today, especially college students, were spending more time in active thought about what was going on in the world about them than did their ancestors.

Today comes the question from the University Daily Kansan: "Why don't American college students discuss vital questions more than they do?"

The editor of the Kansas publication believes that the student in the American college has little time to devote to thought along the more substantial line. He condemns the fraternities and sororities, student activities, parties, and dates for consuming so much time. Perhaps they use considerable of the student's time, but that the time wasted by many of the students is sufficient to allow them to indulge in affairs outside their sphere is quite likely.

The Kansan asks why "students are so provincial, so wrapped up in their own little campuses, their own friends, their own pleasure." It is highly probable that college men and women differ. Too, the attitude may be different on other camps.

Previously we have spoken in generalities—stated that college students and young folks in the modern generation are doing more thinking. Now we shall center ourselves at the University of Oregon, which, in all probability, is somewhat different than the University of Kansas.

A definite division of thinkers is evidenced, but it is impossible for anyone to learn exactly what the ratio between these divisions may be. Some students rarely read a state or city newspaper, and, quite obviously, no basis for the formation of ideas can be found. Some students find great pleasure in gleaming the newspaper for features, crime stories, and the comics, but seldom do they read an article of national or international interest. Other students read on world questions, study them in their classrooms, and enjoy their discussion among friends. We believe the latter the larger group.

Don't condemn the pleasures of college because serious thought seems to fade. Just remember—there is still time for both.

CAMPUS NEAR AND FAR

The Harvard Crimson comments on a test made upon the amount of "bluffing" done by students. It was found that college students bluffed more than the uneducated people. Perhaps we can attribute this to the know-it-all attitude folks claim college students possess.

In a desperate attempt to instill fiery spirit into the souls of the entire student body at U. S. C. before the game with Notre Dame today, one hour has been allotted for a pep rally. Abe Lyman will lead the rallyers with his band.

Dr. Wilbur Urban To Give Lecture

Aspects of Philosophy Will Be Discussed

"Tradition and Modernism in Philosophy" is to be the subject of a lecture given by Dr. Wilbur M. Urban, professor of philosophy at Dartmouth college, Monday evening at 8 o'clock in Alumni hall of the Gerlinger building.

Dr. Urban is at present at the University of California under the auspices of the Mills foundation. He is being brought here by the University committee on free intellectual activities, of which Dr. H. G. Townsend, professor of philosophy, is chairman. This lecture is to be the first of a series given by eminent men who have been invited to come here by the committee.

Preceding his lecture, Dr. Urban will be honor guest at a dinner at the faculty club.

Dr. Urban's teachings emphasize the appreciation of the values of philosophy, Dr. Townsend pointed out. He is the author of several books, including "Valuation—Its Nature and Laws," published in 1909, and "The Intelligible World—Metaphysics and Value," published in 1929.

While the lecture is open to the general public, the presence of those who are particularly interested in philosophy will be especially welcomed, according to Dr. Townsend.

Graduate Students Will Hold Meeting in Portland

Graduate students living in Portland will hold their annual get-together tonight at the Sign of the Rose, with a dinner. Dr. A. A. Goldenweiser of Portland will be the main speaker of the evening. Dean Rebec of the University graduate school has gone to Portland for the week-end and will attend the meeting.

Besides attending the dinner he will meet the League of Women Voters to give another of his series of lectures. He is meeting several graduates for conferences on Friday and Saturday afternoons. While in Portland this week he will be the guest of Dr. Goldenweiser.

Uniforming of R.O.T.C. Completed, Says Prouty

All the students in the R. O. T. C. are now provided with the regulation military uniform used in the organization, says Lieutenant E. S. Prouty, assistant professor of military science. A shipment of uniforms has recently been received at the barracks to make up for the deficiency which existed at the first of the term.

According to Lieutenant Prouty, the shortage was caused partly by the unusual sizes needed for some of the men, who could not be fitted from the stock of uniforms on hand. Several of the students required outfits made especially for them.

Dr. Seashore Represents Oregon at Iowa Conclave

Dr. Robert H. Seashore, associate professor of psychology, who is on leave of absence up to the beginning of winter term, this week attended the 30th anniversary of the graduate school of the University of Iowa at Iowa City. The celebration was a three-day conference, at which Dr. Seashore was present as a representative of the University of Oregon.

He will return to the campus January 5, the first day of winter term, to resume his duties in the psychology department here.

Book by Dr. E. S. Conklin

A Japanese translation of a part of "The Psychology of Religious Adjustment," a book by Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the department of psychology, will be published in the near future, according to word received from Japan by the author. Y. Ueda, at the Imperial university in Tokyo, has secured permission to reprint the material, and is now at work translating one chapter for publication there.

Reference Book Describes Forts

History Source Received By Department

A valuable reference source for the subject of history of the Pacific Northwest has been received, according to Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the history department. The book is "Historic Forts and Trading Posts," written by Ernest Voorhis, of the department of the interior in Ottawa, Canada.

The book gives the names, histories, and dates of the founding of all forts ever established by French or British fur companies in North America. The list also includes all those along the Pacific coast from California to Alaska. "It is interesting to know," Dr. Clark said, "that some of these old forts still exist in their original form. Fort Kamlooks, which is located just over the border of the United States in Canada on the Thompson river, is still in existence and it was founded by one of the Astor men in 1812."

The forts mentioned in Oregon and Washington include: Fort Astoria or Fort George, Fort Vancouver, Fort Umpqua, Fort Walla Walla, Fort Colville, Fort Okanaga, Fort Boise, Fort Hall, Fort Spokane and Fort Flathead. Blue print maps in the book give the exact location of all the posts and forts.

Six Novels Received by Main Library Last Week

"Edison As I Know Him," by Henry Ford in collaboration with Samuel Crowther, is one of the latest novels received by the University library.

Among the other new books which will be placed on the shelves are: "Modern Chinese History and Selected Readings," by Harley Farnsworth MacNain; "Uplands of Dreams," by Edgar Saltus; "Kaiser and Chancellor," by Karl Friedrich Navak; "Book of Airplanes," by Lieutenant Commander J. W. Iseman and Lieutenant Sloan Taylor.

A book which is of special interest is "Henry Villard and North West Railroads," Henry Villard contributed large sums to the University library and Villard hall was named in his honor.

Roger Pfaff Will Lead Wesley Club Services

Wesley club services Sunday evening will be led by Roger Pfaff, varsity debater. "How can we practice the principles of Jesus in a materialistic world?" is the subject for discussion at this service, which begins with a fellowship half-hour at 6 o'clock and continues with a worship service at 6:30. Edna Peper will have charge of worship.

The topic Sunday evening is the second of a series dealing with the present social order. Following the evening church services there will be further discussion at the fire-side hour at 8:30.

Five Students Confined To Infirmary With Colds

Colds, according to Miss Helen Fleming, infirmary nurse, are the only ailments with which health officials at the infirmary have to cope with at the present time. With the exception one student who is suffering from a broken leg, all patients are confined at the present time because of colds.

The students now confined to the care of the University health service are: Parma Clark, Helen Rankin, Rebecca Morgan, Virgil LaClaire, Homer Smith, and Frank Given.

Survey of Crime Will Be Presented to Legislature

The preliminary report of the Oregon crime survey, now being prepared by Wayne L. Morse, associate professor of law, who has charge of the investigation, and Ronald Beattie, assistant director of the survey, will be presented to the 1931 session of the Oregon legislature when it convenes in January.

A summary survey of the state penal institutions will be presented to the legislature at the same time. This will complete the survey of penal institutions, but the crime survey will be continued.

THE WETFOOT

"ALL THE NEWS THAT'S FOOT TO PRINT"

GOOD MORNING, HAVE YOU HAD YOUR IRONY YET TODAY? "NO," SAID THE VIL-LAIN, TWIRLING HIS MOUSTACHE AND THE HEROINE'S NECK, "BUT I HAD THE HOUSE-MAID'S KNEE ONCE." DON'T LET THIS BREJUDICE YOU AGAINST OUR LITTLE COLUMN, BECAUSE IT WAS BUT FOUR SCORE AND SEVEN YEARS AGO THAT OUR FORE-FATHERS WERE SHOOTING INDIANS IN THEIR KIMONS, AND HOW THE INDIANS GOT IN THEIR KIMONS, IT DOESN'T TELL WELL, ANYWAY, GOOD MORNING.

EPIGRAPH
We misunderstood him, Poor Simon McSnooze; What he really said was: "I'm thumbing my news."

LITTLE ALEC would like to know the reason why the Kappa Sigs have torn the columns out of the front porch and have workmen generally going over the house.

LITTLE ALEC HAS EVIDENTLY NEVER HEARD OF THE OLD PRACTICE OF PUTTING OUT A BOTTLE OF BEER IN THE CORNER STONE OF THE HOUSE.

In answer to certain persons who might object to the mention in this column of an alcoholic beverage on the grounds that it may give the reader a wrong impression of the University, we reply in defense that we aren't intimating that anyone on the campus drinks beer, and anyway we picked the mildest beverage we could think of.

Our opponents reply that it makes no difference. That the reader might intimate that someone might drink it when it was found.

In answer to this argument we reply that our opponents are mistaken. It intimates, on the other hand that they are, most fittingly, tearing the house down to find it in order that they may throw it away and thus rid their house of the stigma of having it contained therein. Which, we believe, is a very worthy action, and one to be commended.

AND NOW THAT'S SETTLED, AS THE MAN SAID ARISING FROM HIS AFTER DINNER NAP.

BUT THEN WE HAVE NO PRIDE
Lives of columnists all remind us,

How little they lived in bliss, But few, departing leave behind Putrid rhymes like this.

Well, why shouldn't we laugh at our own jokes? Parents laugh at their own children, don't they?

HOME IS A PLACE WHERE A PERSON CAN SCRATCH HIS GYM ITCH WHEN HE FEELS LIKE IT, SAYS LITTLE OSCAR.

NOTE: ANOTHER COLLEGE MAN MAKES GOOD IN THE BIG CITY!!

Demonstrating the versatility of the modern college man, we bring to notice the exceptional case of Jack Gregg, who parks his dogs under the Theta Chi festal board, (free adv.) who went to Portland last week-end and secured himself a job right off the bat as first assistant to Santa Claus in the Lipman Wolfe store.

"I owe my success," modestly declares Gregg, "to having a red nose and an ability to grow whiskers."

WELL, NOW WE CAN EXPECT THE THETA CHIS TO BLOSSOM OUT IN NEW NECKTIES AND HABERDASHERY. BOOTY ON GREGG.
