Four Soloists To Perform In Production of 'Messiah'

Only 600 Tickets Will Be Sold for Cantata December 14

Four soloists, all members of the University music faculty or students of music, are to be featured in the production of "The Messiah" to be given by the University polyphonic choir and the University symphony orchestra at the music auditorium on the afternoon of Sunday, December 14.

The soloists chosen by Arthur Boardman, who will direct "The Messiah," are Emilienne Roach, soprano; Pauline Brigham, contralto; Hadley Crawford, tenor, and Roy Bryson, bass.

Mrs. Roach is the wife of Buford Roach, well known in Eugene as an instructor of violin and as a member of the University string quartet. She was born in Paris, France, and studied voice in New York before coming to Eugene with her husband. According to Mr. Boardman, whom she is assisting in the voice department at the music school, Mrs. Roach has the type of lyric soprano best suited to her role in "The Messiah."

Miss Brigham is a graduate of the University of South Dakota, and came to Oregon from her home in Texas to study voice under Mr. Boardman. Roy Bryson, a graduate of the University of Oregon, is now an instructor in voice at the music school. Hadley Crawford is a senior in music and is a student of Boardman.

An ensemble of more than 200 will present the famous Handel oratorio here. There are 135 voices in the polyphonic choir, directed by Boardman, and about 70 musicians in the University symphony orchestra, which has been trained for the occasion by Rex Underwood, conductor.

Only 600 tickets, the capacity of the music auditorium, will be sold for the concert, which is expected to attract a full house.

Tickets are on sale at McMorrans and Washburne's, at the University Co-op and at the school of music.

Theta Sigma Phi Honors Alumna

Factory Experiences Told By Miss Klemm

Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism honorary for women, honored Mary Klemm, a 1930 Oregon graduate now secretary of the National Consulate for the Prevention of War, and a member of the honorary, at a luncheon yesterday noon at the Green Lantern Tavern.

Miss Klemm talked on her experiences in San Francisco last summer, when she worked in an asbestos factory as one of a group making experiments in working conditions for the industrial seminar.

Among the alumnae present at the luncheon were Mrs. George Turnbull, Mrs. Eric W. Allen, Ruth Newton, Serena Madsen Shaeffer, Elise Schroeder, and Marian Lowry.

At a business session during the luncheon Mildred Dobbins was unanimously elected vice-president to take the office vacated by Bobby Reid, who did not return to school this year. Lenore Ely was appointed chairman of the tea to be given by members of Theta Sigma Phi for the women high school press delegates during the press conference in January.

New Issue of Pamphlet Is Released by Press

A special supervision number of "The High School," a pamphlet published by the school of education of the University of Oregon, was released by the University press this week.

The pamphlet contains an article discussing the development of the supervisory idea in secondary education written by Nelson L. Bossing, professor of education. F. L. Stetson, professor of secondary education, contributed an article on the organization of supervision in small high schools.

Other stories were written by Norman C. Thorne, assistant superintendent of schools in Portland, R. U. Moore, principal of University high, and Edgar R. Means, head of the science department at the University high, discussing various phases of supervision.

Librarians Make Debate Research

The library reference staff is going into deep research for a quantity of material that is wanted by a high school debate student in Aurora, Oregon.

The student wants some information and facts on the subject, "Resolved: That the single man is happier than the married man."

"Any material or facts on the affirmative or negative side of the question would be greatly appreciated," the student says in his letter.

Marine Station May Be Started

Marshfield To Be Location Of Biological Station

The possibilities of maintaining a marine biological station near Marshfield during the summer are being investigated by Dean Alfred Powers, of the extension division, and Harry B. Yocom, professor of zoology.

Although similar stations have been maintained twice in the past it is hoped that something more extensive and permanent may be inaugurated this year. If the plan succeeds it will be the only place in the Northwest where such summer work can be carried on.

The problems confronting the University are the availability of adequate facilities for housing students for the summer at a moderate cost and the acquisition of suitable laboratory and classroom space.

Professor's Book To Be Published

Thesis of Leavitt O. Wright Is Spanish Research

A book written by Dr. Leavitt O. Wright, professor of Romance languages, has been accepted for publication by the University of California press. The book, "The History of the -RA Verb Form in Spain," is a revision to date of Dr. Wright's doctoral dissertation, presented at Berkeley in 1928.

The book contains a critical investigation of the development of the usages to which the Spanish verb forms in -ra, -se, -ria, and -re were put during seven centuries, being based on an examination in detail of the function of each occurrence of these forms in more than 150 texts, averaging about 4000 lines per text and representing every period and "genre" of Spanish literature from the twelfth to the twentieth century, and approximating 580,000 lines of typical prose and verse.

There will be about 200 pages in the book, including a detailed tabulation of findings, a table of ratios and certain graphs for comparing findings about the different forms.

WHAT SHOW TONIGHT?

Hellig — Saturday only, "Oh Sailor Behave." Comedy. Sunday and Monday, George Arliss in "Old English." Drama.

McDonald — Saturday only, "The Big Trail." Epic drama. Sunday and Monday, Ann Harding in "Holiday." Drama.

Colonial — Saturday only, Norma Shearer in "Divorcee." Sunday to Thursday, "Whoopie." Midnight matinee Saturday.

Rex — Today and Sunday, Buck Jones in "The Dawn Trail."

State — Saturday only, "Paradise Island." Sunday and Monday, Barthelme in "The Dawn Patrol." Midnight matinee Saturday.

Arliss at Hellig Sunday

One of the biggest days in Eugene's theatrical season is the too infrequent appearance of George Arliss in a talking picture. The Hellig is playing his "Old English" for three days starting Sunday. Arliss, who recently won the American Academy's award for the best screen acting of the year, considers this his best picture. Ask Harriet Kibbee to tell you about George Arliss.

South Sea Romance Closes

Today is the last chance to see "Paradise Island," sizzling romance of the exotic South seas at the State. Marceline Day and Kenneth Harlan have the featured roles. It is a first-run picture.

"Big Trail" Held Over

Because of popular demand the McDonald current feature is being held over for today only. "The Big Trail," epic drama of western migration, is one of the most popular features this theatre has shown this fall. It vividly describes the hardships, fears, and tragedies, lightened by fine humor, of coming across the plains in covered wagons. Marguerite Churchill and John Wayne are the featured players.

"Holiday" Comes Sunday

Within a few weeks after its stage presentation at Guild theatre, comes the filmed version of "Holiday," with Ann Harding in the featured role. In the campus production, Nancy Thielsen created the role. It will be of great interest to campus folk to compare the two productions. Contrary to usual procedure, "Holiday," in this film transcription, has not suffered the baleful changes seen in other recent films of stage plays.

The picture is playing at the McDonald for Sunday and Monday only.

"Whoopie" Comes Sunday

The Colonial opens its series of first run United Artists pictures with "Whoopie," starring Eddie Cantor on Sunday. There will be a special midnight matinee showing tonight at 11.

"Whoopie," filmed from the Ziegfeld stage production, is one of the biggest hits of the season.

New Department Is Needed in Libe

Cataloguing of Historical Documents Aids Research

"The University certainly needs a new department in the library devoted to historical documents under a capable librarian who has had training in that line," said John T. Gano, professor in history yesterday. "In the University of Wisconsin they have a department devoted to these documents and the librarian in charge has had 21 years' experience and she is just beginning to understand them."

The historical and governmental documents in the University library before the recent regrouping started by Mr. Gano had been moved from the basement upstairs to the reading rooms. They were not checked and there was no record of what the library had and it was practically impossible to find any references without looking every volume over.

Now after regrouping under the direction of Mrs. Marian Watts, reference librarian, the documents are classified under their serial numbers.

Under an old system all governmental documents were sent to the libraries but recently they have to be ordered. M. H. Douglas has been very efficient in ordering everything new that is needed and there should be more historical papers that are not included at the present time, Mr. Gano said.

Now under the serial number classification all documents can be located. Those documents included in the stacks have not been included in the new groupings yet but work on them is soon to be undertaken.

Florence Alden To Read Paper at Physical Meet

Miss Florence Alden, head of the women's physical education department, will read an article this week-end before a combined meeting of the Oregon and Washington physical education associations at Longview, Washington.

The article will deal with departmental research in tests to classify girls according to physical ability. It will be based upon the physical ability tests which were given last spring and this fall to every girl enrolled in the physical education department at the University of Oregon.

Miss Alden left for Longview yesterday afternoon, accompanied by Miss Ernestine Troemel, Miss Margaret Duncan, and Miss Marjorie Forchmer, instructors in the department of physical education. They left by auto and plan to return Sunday.
