

AWS Secures Speakers For Winter Term

Mass Meeting To Be Held During Second Week Of Next Quarter

Eminent Women Will Be Brought Here for Conferences

The vocational guidance program of the Associated Women Students, recently announced by Margaret Cummings, president of A. W. S., and the personnel administration of the University, will be actually started when an outstanding woman will speak at the winter term mass meeting during the week of January 12-16. A speaker has been asked, but no word has been received from her as yet.

In addition to speaking before the women of the campus as a group, the visitor will be on the campus for two or three days for individual conferences with women interested in her particular field.

Experts Invited

Following the initial meeting and talk, women who are experts in their own fields of endeavor will talk to groups of interested women and will also have individual meetings with them. It is planned to have someone different on the campus every week of the winter term. Some of these will be women on the University faculty who have made achievements in their own work. Others will be brought from outside. The personnel administration of the University is assisting in bringing these people here.

Will Cooperate

The ten Philomelite hobby groups and the 15 frosh commission groups will cooperate with the A. W. S. in this project by making vocational studies a large part of their program during the winter term, Miss Cummings said. She, with Daphne Hughes, Jessie Puckett, and Marguerite Mauzey, are working out the organization of the new A. W. S. project.

The fall term mass meeting was cancelled when it was found that Dr. Jessica Piexoto, economics specialist of the University of California at Berkeley, would be unable to speak at the meeting.

Taylor Appointed Psychology Head For Winter Term

Conklin To Take Visiting Professorship at an Eastern School

Dr. Howard R. Taylor, associate professor of psychology, will be acting chairman of the department throughout winter term, during the absence of Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the psychology department, Dr. Conklin announced yesterday.

Dr. Conklin has accepted a visiting professorship in the graduate school of divinity at the University of Chicago for the winter term. He plans to leave shortly after final exams, and to return in time for the beginning of spring term.

During his absence, Dr. Conklin's 9 o'clock section in elementary psychology will be taught by Dr. Taylor, while all of Dr. Conklin's other classes, as well as Dr. Taylor's 2 o'clock will be taken by Miss Celia Hager. For spring term, the original schedule of classes will be resumed.

While in Chicago Dr. Conklin will have supervision over graduate students in psychology, in addition to his work in the graduate school of divinity. His work in the psychology field will have to do chiefly with candidates for doctor's degrees.

During the Christmas vacation he plans to attend the annual convention of the American Psychological association at the University of Iowa in Iowa City. The convention meets December 29, 30, and 31.

Before taking up his duties at the University of Chicago, Dr. Conklin will also address the triennial convention of the Conference of Church Workers in Universities and Colleges of the United States, which is to meet in Chicago January 1. He will be one of four guest speakers at the conference banquet, held once every three years, and his topic will be "Implications for Religion for Current Trends in Psychology."

Pan Xenia Takes In New Members

Eleven Neophytes Initiated By Foreign Trade

Eleven men were initiated Saturday night into Pan Xenia, international foreign trade fraternity, at a ceremony held in the Osburn hotel which was followed by a banquet and a two-act play presented by five of the initiates.

Pan Xenia is attempting to acquaint its members with present day problems in foreign trade and with business men who have been outstandingly successful in this field. The two-act play was based on the theme of the right and the wrong methods of entering the business of foreign trade.

Dean Faville of the school of business administration was the chief speaker of the evening, taking for his subject, "The Growth of Foreign Trade in the University."

The eleven men initiated were: Harold Johnson, Francis Moon, Carrol Watson, Orville Garrett, Richard Stevenson, Frederic Kerr, Lionel Lane, Carey Thompson, Fred Norton, Frank Beistel, Wayne Emmott.

Frosh Basketball Squad Divided Into Two Groups

In order to facilitate handling of the large freshman hoop squad which has turned out during the last week, Coach Prink Callison has divided the men into two groups, one meeting at 3:30, the other at 4:45. Several more players have turned out making a total of more than 50 candidates with which Callison hopes to build a strong quintet.

Ad-taker

Dorothy Hughes, manager of the classified advertising department of the Emerald, has doubled the use of the want-ad column of the paper this term, according to Anton Peterson, Emerald business manager. Miss Hughes is the first freshman to rule over the classified desk at the shack.

Washington Dean Will Talk at Meet

Miss Conah Ellis Speaker For Luncheon

Miss Conah Ellis, of North Central high school, Spokane, Washington, was announced yesterday as principal speaker of the opening luncheon meeting for high school girls' league advisers and deans during the High School conference on this campus, January 17 to 19. Miss Ellis will address the group on "Problems of the Unacademic Minded Girl," according to Mrs. Veola Ross, chairman of the Pi Lambda Theta group in charge of arranging the program of speakers. Plans for obtaining other speakers for the advisory meetings during the conference are under way.

Mrs. Ross announced plans yesterday for securing prominent Oregon high school deans to speak at the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning meetings for faculty attendants at the conference. The program of entertainment for this group also will include a tea to be given at the Gerlinger building for visiting girls' league representatives and their advisers, according to Mrs. Ross.

Christmas Theme To Be Used by YW

Special Vesper Services Will Be Held Today

Music, carols and the Christmas legend will be features of the special Christmas vesper services to be held at the Y. W. C. A. bungalow today at 5 o'clock, for all girls who may be interested.

Irma Logan is in charge of the music, which will provide a background for the reading of the Christmas story by Elizabeth Scruggs, Lorraine Beardsley, Elenna Parker, Mabel Thompson, and Irma Logan will sing carols during the reading, while Estelle Johnson and Roma Gross play the violin.

Scarlet candles and festoons of fir boughs will decorate the bungalow, under the direction of Eva Burkhalter and Virginia Hilen.

"The age-old spirit of Christmas is embodied in these services, stated Mildred Wharton, chairman of the program committee. "In a few moments of silence, we will try to realize the significance of the approaching season."

Portland Graduate Club Held Meeting Saturday

Members of the Portland Graduate club of the University of Oregon held their annual meeting last Saturday in Portland. Aside from those doing graduate work and teaching, those present included Vice-President and Mrs. Barker, Dr. George Rebec, dean of the graduate school.

Dr. A. A. Goldenweiser, the well-known anthropologist, who is doing research work and some teaching at the Portland center spoke on "Science, Scholarship, and Culture." Dean Rebec reported the meeting a success in every way. While in Portland last week-end he completed the series of lectures on "World Wide Conflict of Races and Nationalities."

Conklin Conducts Judgment Tests Under Grant Fund

Art, Psychology Students Tested as Part of Research Work

The first of the research work in the field of fine arts authorized under the $10,000 grant made to the University of Oregon by the Carnegie corporation on November 12, has been set in motion under the direction of Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the department of psychology.

In line with the terms of the grant, which specify "research work of all kinds in the field of fine art, literature and music, with the aim of benefiting those whose interest is in the appreciation of art rather than in actual participation," Dr. Conklin has been conducting a series of art judgment tests, using as subjects members of beginning art classes and classes in elementary psychology laboratory.

The McAdory art test and the Meier-Seashore art test are those which have been given to the students so far. Both purport to measure the native ability of the subject in evaluating works of art and other designs according to true artistic standards.

In order to minimize the variable of experience, and to make the test as nearly as possible a test of innate ability, only students untrained in art are considered. They are rated chiefly according to their ability to classify various groups of specimens according to relative merit, and scores are computed from the number of cases in which their choices correspond with those of the experts who compiled the tests.

These preliminary surveys are the first step in an extensive research program which is to be carried out by Dr. Conklin and others, dealing with art appreciation, and with possible correlations between this and other native faculties and mental characteristics.

Dr. C. L. Huffaker, professor of education, is chairman of the committee in charge of administering the $10,000 grant.

Hermian Club To Feature Pamphlet

Lucille Hill Edits Booklet Of Education Honorary

The first Hermian Bulletin has been placed in the hands of a typist preparatory to mimeographing, according to Lucille Hill, editor of the booklet, which is to become a feature of Hermian club, women's physical education honorary, every semester.

The pamphlet, which will be placed on sale soon after the Christmas holidays, will hold approximately 100 pages, and has sold over 100 subscriptions already. The booklets, which are for sale to everyone on the campus, cost 50 cents each.

The editor was enthusiastic over the features in the first bulletin. There will be two articles by Mary Jo Shelly, formerly of the University and now connected with Columbia university at New York, and one by Miss Florence Alden, head of the women's school of physical education. The various physical education club presidents will have articles, as well as the heads of women's intramural sports. Team announcements, department jokes, famous sayings of well-known women athletes and instructors, pertinent poetry, and a section entitled "Tacks and Hammer" will all be included with other features in the bulletin.

American Alumni Council Will Hold Meet in January

Oregon and Oregon State Will Be Hosts at Corvallis

The annual district conference of the American Alumni Council will be held in Corvallis on January 14, Miss Jeannette Calkins, University of Oregon alumni secretary, announced yesterday. Miss Calkins is district director of the section containing Alberta, British Columbia, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon.

The organization is made up of alumni secretaries, alumni fund supervisors, and magazine editors in most of the main colleges of the United States and Canada. There are ten divisions. The purpose is to further friendly relations between the various members and organizations that they represent; the interchange of ideas on their common problems; the stimulating of the individual alumni association, and the promotion of a universal policy for college alumni.

John G. Olmstead of Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio, is president of the association, and will be the main guest at the Corvallis meeting. The University of Oregon and Oregon State college will be hosts to representatives from University of Alberta, University of British Columbia, Whitworth college, Willamette, Linfield, Albany, Reed, Whitman, Pacific, College of Puget Sound, College of Idaho, Gooding, Gonzaga, University of Washington, University of Idaho, Washington State, Oregon State, and the University of Oregon.

The program for the conference has not yet been announced, but will be ready soon.

Two-Piano Concert Given By Co-eds in Tillamook

Miss Gladys Foster and Miss

Carolyn Haberlach gave a two piano concert at Tillamook Monday evening. The program was sponsored by the Monday Night Music Club of Tillamook, Oregon.

This program is one of the series which the two girls will give this winter. They have worked extensively on their music during the summer and plan to give a number of concerts throughout the Northwest. Miss Foster and Miss Haberlach both belong to Alpha Phi sorority and are members of the Mu Phi Epsilon, music honorary.

WHAT SHOW TONIGHT?

State — "A Royal Romance," with William Collier Jr. Comedy drama.

Heilig — George Arliss in "Old English." Drama.

McDonald — Ann Harding in "Holiday." Comedy drama.

Colonial — Eddie Cantor in "Whoopie." Musicomedy.

Big Programs in Local Theatres

Today's choice of pictures for the movie-goer is one of the biggest problems that Eugene cinema houses have presented for years. Three fine pictures, all showing on the same day. At the Heilig is George Arliss in "Old English," one of those things it is a crime to miss. At the Colonial is "Whoopie," with imitatable Eddie Cantor. It is shown on the new giant screen, and is the most pretentious of the talking musicomedies. The McDonald has "Holiday," recently produced by Guild theatre to record audiences, and inviting comparisons.

Arliss at Heilig

In one of the finest pictures of the year, George Arliss is appearing at the Heilig theatre today. From the Play by John Galsworthy, "Old English" gives Arliss the opportunity to create one of those character parts that people seldom entirely forget. The greatest actor on the stage or screen, no mention is needed of play or role when the magnetic name or Arliss is flashed on theatre parquets.

Colonial Installs Huge Screen

For the opening of their big first run feature, "Whoopie," the Colonial management is proudly showing off their new giant screen, giving an entirely new thrill to the movie fan.

"Whoopie" stars Eddie Cantor, and a host of Zeigfield jewels support him. Campus comment is enthusiastic about the film. It is a tremendously costly picture, and is entirely made in improved technical color.

Holiday at McDonald

With a magnificent stage investiture as beautiful as it is rare, and every intricate setting distinctly a work of art, rich, and restful to the eye; with a magnificent cast headed by lovely Ann Harding; with a magnificent play by Philip Barry, "Holiday," playing for the last time today at the McDonald, is in every sense of the word, an epic step in movie making.

Besides Miss Harding, those in the cast are Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Robert Ames, Creighton Hale, and Hedda Hopper.

State Has Comedy

In one of those romantic glib films so well suited to his talent, William Collier is appearing at the State theatre today in "A Royal Romance." The plot concerns a mythical royal family and its difficulties in keeping the "blue blood" from flowing red.

Student Officer Confined To Infirmary With Cold

Miss Harriet Kibbee, secretary of the A. S. U. O. was yesterday confined to the infirmary with a cold.

This ailment is the one most predominant on the campus at the present time, according to infirmary officials, and all the patients there at the present time, with one exception, are confined because of colds. The exception is Virgil LaClaire who is still in bed as a result of a broken leg.

Besides Miss Kibbee, the following students are under the care of the University health service: George Baumann, Lawrence Opelad, Cecil Buckingham, and Virgil LaClaire.

Save Time

Read The Advertisements

TIME is a valuable commodity anywhere. At a university, it is doubly so. You women, with your teas, dances, dates and dinners sandwiched in between classes and hours of study, have no margin for idle "shopping around." And men, with athletics, classes, dates and all manner of activities, have no time to wander aimlessly from store to store. Save time. Read the ads before you start on a buying tour.

Know What You Want

Then Buy

BEFORE starting anything, it is only common sense that you know what you are about. You know what you want. Read the ads every day to find where those things are to be found, and then, when you buy, you'll know where to go. Then, too, you can keep in touch with the trend of fashion by watching the advertisements. Read them regularly. You'll save time in the long run, by being able to find what you want easier and quicker.
