

The Emerald SCORE BOARD

By Phil Cogswell

GOOD LITTLE MEN AFTER GOOD BIG ONES

Coach Reinhart took a veteran quintet of speedy men with him to Seattle to open the basketball season against Washington tonight. The Webfoots have been training hard. Three practice sessions daily all during Christmas vacation have been held. Reinhart has been emphasizing one thing, speed. The question as to whether the Oregon players, most all of whom are small in stature, will be able to down the rangy Husky men is speculative. The trouble is that big men can be fast too. A team of tall men, the kind Washington always has, has a tremendous advantage in getting the tip-off and also in grabbing the ball off the back board.

BOTH COACHES PUT OUT CHAMPS

The Huskies haven't made much noise over their team this year or predicted that they would cop the championship, but the rest of the teams are afraid of them. They took three straight games from the strong Nebraska team and all but annihilated a good Whitman squad twice. "Hec" Edmundson, Husky coach, and Billy Reinhart, of Oregon, have been the two most successful mentors in the northern circuit. Edmundson may have an edge on the rivalry this time, but still Reinhart's basketball teams have never needed much sympathy.

BRAD HARRISON QUILTS TENNIS COURTS

Brad Harrison, who graduated last year with more tennis championship cups than he could find shelves to put them on, and who helped make this school's tennis famous, stopped in while on his way to Portland.

Brad has been living in San Bruno, near San Francisco, and has gone into business. He has given up tennis entirely. He summed up the situation by saying that it took a lot of time to practice if one was going to play a good game and he didn't have

Aquatic Dates Changed With Portland Club

New Time for California Meet Is Sought; Hewitt Rushes Training

Seven Lettermen Turn Out For Squads; Sophs Add Much Strength

Dates for the swimming meets scheduled with Multnomah Athletic club of Portland have been changed, Jack Hewitt, varsity swimming coach, announced yesterday. The dates for the first and second engagements have been switched. Multnomah club will come to Oregon on January 31 and Oregon will travel to Portland March 14.

It has also been found necessary to change the scheduled meet with California here on March 28 as school does not open for the spring term until March 31. An announcement of the rescheduled date will be made later.

Hewitt is working hard with his squads and has some very good material. At present he has an outstanding man in McGowan Miller, who starred as a freshman in 1928. He, together with Walton, Blankenburg and other frosh swimmers that year, beat the varsity. Charles Foster, 440 man and letterman last year, will be back, as will McKim, who swam the 440 on the varsity last year.

Other lettermen include Al Edwards, 100 and 220 relays; Steve Fletcher, 200-yard breast; John Allen, backstroke. Among the varsity men who made their numbers last year are Bob Needham, 100 and 220 sprints; Spain, backstroke; Jim Travis, breast-stroke; Maurice Pease, diver; Jim Grady, back-stroke. Don Neer, varsity diver of 1928, is back again this year.

Other varsity swimmers include Mike Marlatt, diver; Sam Nigh, diver; Howard Dirks, diver; Pratt, 440; Clifton Culp, 440; Hughes, 220; Ray Field, 220 and 440, and Stevenson, back-stroke.

PLEDGING ANNOUNCEMENT

Kappa Sigma announces the pledging of Ted Giesecke, Portland; Charles Reed, Hood River; and Parker Favier, Berkeley, Calif.

Oregon Students Ski Thirty Miles to Wrecked Mail Plane

Skiing over 30 miles through the hills of the Cascade range to obtain $2500 worth of airplane instruments from the recently wrecked Pacific Air Transport plane was the experience of Paul Lafferty and Glenn Bessonette, students at the University, and Ed Turnbull and Henry Corn, prominent Eugene business men, and all members of the Eugene Obsidian club.

At the request of Les Hubbe, manager in Portland of the P. A. T., the four left Eugene last Saturday for Crescent lake, from where they skied over soft snow five feet deep to the wrecked ship in which Pilot Russell Cunningham was forced down last week during a heavy snow storm. The purpose of the trip was not only to obtain the valuable instruments but also to take pictures of the plane and see if there was any possible way to get the plane out.

From Crescent lake the four traveled to Summit lake and from there along the ridge of the mountain range to the plane. According to Lafferty, the snow was very soft and stuck to their skis, making progress difficult. An average speed of a mile an hour was maintained over the 14 miles traveled.

Upon reaching the plane, they found that it was in a deep hollow, faced into the side of a mountain. One wing was crumpled and the landing gear broken. The position of the plane was such that it will be impossible to get it out, at least until the snow either melts or freezes over, Lafferty said.

After doing their work about the plane, the quartet found themselves too tired to make the four-mile trip back to where they had cached their sleeping bags and provisions. So, making a rude shelter out of fir boughs, they tried to rest, but the cold finally forced them to return to their camp. The whole trip was made in a heavy snowstorm and they found it very difficult to follow their trail back, as it was rapidly being covered by snow. After eating, they started back to Crescent lake, where they found an empty cabin, in which they decided to obtain a short rest before leaving at noon for the other side of the lake to catch the train back. However, when they woke up, they found they had overslept about four hours and were forced to wait until 1:30 the next morning for a train. They arrived in Eugene early Tuesday morning.

Lafferty, who is a junior in the business administration school, said, "After traveling the 30 miles on skis, going without sleep and hot food for two days, I think I know what it would be like to be overcome by sleep in the cold and freeze to death. All four of us were extremely fatigued and the hotel at Crescent lake surely looked good to us. The soft snow sticking to our skis at each step seemed to weigh ten pounds."

In regard to the escape of Cunningham to civilization, Lafferty said, "He took a different route out from ours. He followed the valley in which his plane was wrecked, out a distance of over 20 miles. If he had gone out the way we came, he would have reached the outside much sooner. But how he ever managed to get through the five feet of snow so quickly I don't know. He must have struck it just right, for when we went in every time we stepped off our skis we would sink down hip deep."

Dr. Moley To Talk On Criminal Law

California Professor Will Give Lecture Here

Dr. Raymond C. Moley, international authority on criminal law, will speak on the campus January 22. Dr. Moley, who is at present guest professor at the University of California, comes here under the auspices of the committee on free intellectual activities.

"Obstacles to Law Enforcement" is to be the subject on which Dr. Moley will speak. His lecture will be free to University and townspeople.

"Because of his training and experience, he is especially well qualified to talk on this subject," said Wayne L. Morse, professor of law. Dr. Moley was largely responsible for the initiation of the first of the crime surveys that have been conducted in the last ten years. He was director and editor of the first statewide crime survey ever conducted in this country, the Missouri crime survey. He played a large part in the Illinois and New York crime surveys and has had both practical and academic interests in criminal law.

In addition to teaching at Columbia university, he is lecturer at Rand School of Social Science in New York. He has been associated with President Hall on the social science research council of America.

Dr. Moley's books include: "Politics and Criminal Prosecution," 1929, and "Criminal Courts," 1930.

Acoustics Group Selects Goodwin

Dr. Boynton and Teaching Fellow Go to Meet

Membership in the Acoustical Society of America was given Charles Goodwin, teaching fellow in physics, during his attendance with Dr. E. P. Boynton, head of the department of physics, of a joint meeting of the American Physical society and the Acoustical group on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles during the holidays.

While there Mr. Goodwin had the privilege of inspecting the sound equipment of two Hollywood sound motion picture studio laboratories. The apparatus is quite complex and the amount of current consumed necessitates the use of a generator capable of supplying a small town, according to Mr. Goodwin.

At the university laboratories which Mr. Goodwin regards as some of the finest on the coast, he was extended the privilege of doing some research work.

The Hollywood bowl, large outdoor theatre, was also inspected by Mr. Goodwin, who believes it to be a marvelous piece of acoustical engineering. A person speaking in a moderate voice on the stage may be heard in the last row with little difficulty, he says.

At the meetings of the society, the most outstanding men of the nation engaged in acoustical work were there, Mr. Goodwin says, and several excellent papers were presented.

S. A. E. Bowlers Defeat Sherry Ross, Keep Lead

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon bowling team continued to lead the Inter-fraternity bowling league sponsored by the Eugene Recreation Alleys when they edged out the Sherry Ross quartet yesterday on the local alleys by a score of 1701 to 1654.

The S. A. E. quartet was composed of Jim Woodruff, Jack Gibson, Bob Voegtly and Meyer Mus. The losers' team included Sam Nigh, Paul Brophy, Tom Johns, and Herb Jones. Meyer Mus was high point man with 519 markers.

Yearlings Work Hard for Contest With Commerce

First Frosh Game Slated For Saturday Night; Two Men Lost

With their first competition of the season, Commerce high of Portland, awaiting them Saturday night, the University of Oregon frosh basketball squad, under the watchful eye of Coach Prink Callison, has been busily engaged in developing teamwork in both offense and defense.

The Webfoot yearlings will be sorely handicapped by lack of competition. The only taste of real basketball so far has been from scrimmages with the varsity and University high quintets. Practically all practice sessions have been devoted entirely to fundamentals.

The Commerce high quintet will come here with a veteran team. Several lettermen from last year form the nucleus of the prep outfit. They have played several pre-season games already this season and should be much more seasoned to competition than Callison's squad. They are coached by Arvin Burnett, who formerly played under Webfoot colors and is familiar with the Oregon style of play.

The yearlings will also be handicapped by the loss of two of the most promising candidates, Henry Simons and Jack Robertson, who are ineligible because of scholarship.

The list of men who will most likely see action tomorrow night includes Joe Lillard and Joe Wilson, centers; John Jeffers, Jim Watts, La Grande Houghton, Carl Eberhart, Chuck Thomas, forwards, and Fred Kennedy, Mike Mikulak, Abel Uglow, Gil Ollinger, Mark Temple, Harold Scheetman, and Chuck Wishard, guards.

Notebook Divider Issued by Udall

Coldex Advertiser Brought Out for Eighth Time

To facilitate organization of the college students' notebooks and purvey advertising of Eugene merchants, "The Coldex Advertiser," a loose leaf divider, has been issued for the eighth time on the campus of the University by Fletcher Udall, senior in economics, of Berkeley, California.

The idea of the advertiser notebook divider was originated by the Oregon student and is being put into use on other camps. Copies are not being distributed to the fraternity houses, Udall stated, but may be secured at the College Side, the Oregon Pharmacy, and other Eugene business houses.

Merlin Meager, formerly a student here is handling the issue at the University of Idaho. University of Washington, University of California, and University of Southern California are among those covered by "Coldex."

That high schools are becoming carriers of note books more and more was revealed in a survey of Portland schools made recently, Udall declared. Hal Leonard, senior in business administration, has been working on the project in Portland.

UNIVERSITY HOST TO 600 PREP LEADERS

"Art Work in the Annual" will be the subject for a talk by Gibson Dames, art editor of the Oregonian, at the session of annual editors. Talks discussing yearbook problems complete the section's schedule.

Managers of high school papers will meet at 2 this afternoon to hear a number of speakers and to conduct a discussion following. Anton Peterson, business manager of the Emerald, will discuss "Soliciting Advertising"; W. F. G. Thacher, of the school of journalism, will talk on "Management of High School Papers," and Arne Rae, field manager of the Oregon State Editorial association, will discuss "Surveying Your Advertising Field."

Yearbook managers will meet at the same hour to take up their problems, listening to talks by Lester McDonald, former Oregonian editor; Roger Bailey, manager of this year's Oregonian, and experts from Portland engraving houses. At 4:30 the managers will be guests of Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi.

The student body officers' conference will meet this morning at the Music building under John Adams, state president. Joe Freck, chairman of the Greater Oregon committee, will address the group, and Orren Brownson, Eugene high school, and Edward Seeborg, Astoria high school, will speak on athletic and debating problems, respectively.

The afternoon's session, beginning at 1:30, will be featured by addresses by Hugh Biggs, University dean of men; Omar Palmer, junior man on the A. S. U. O. executive council, and Bob Grayson. A general discussion is scheduled to follow.

Miss Conah Mae Ellis, dean of girls at the North Central high school of Spokane, will be the principal speaker on the girls' league program. Margaret Cummings, Dean Hazel Prutsman Schwering, and Jessie Puckett, of the University, will also speak. Election of officers will follow a round-table discussion scheduled for this afternoon. Tea will be served at 4:30.

"Measuring Achievement in High School" will be the topic for the round-table discussion on this afternoon's schedule for the visiting high school principals. S. E. Fleming, assistant superintendent of schools in Seattle, will be the featured speaker on the program. The deans' section will meet this afternoon at Westminster house, with Dean Conah Mae Ellis, Miss Elizabeth McGraw, Grant high school, Portland, and Miss Alice Ueland, Roseburg, as the leading speakers.

A more detailed account of the program will be presented the delegates when the official schedules are distributed at the opening assembly this morning.

Commerce Hoop Team To Play Here Tonight

Commerce high school's basketball quintet which will meet Prink Callison's frosh outfit tomorrow night will play here tonight in the men's gym against the University high squad.

The Commerce team, which is rated as one of the leading contenders for the Portland interschool championship, has already played several games in the Rose City, winning all but one.

Rosson Cancels Game in Portland

Frosh-Rook Battles To Be On Home Gridirons

At a meeting yesterday of Graduate Managers Hugh E. Rosson of Oregon and Carl Lodell of Oregon State college, it was definitely agreed to play the two freshman football games between the teams on the campi of the schools.

When Lodell and Rosson got their heads together and checked over their freshman schedules, it was learned that it would be impossible to play in Portland on the night of November 10, as Oregon already had a game scheduled with Washington freshmen on November 7 at Seattle.

The first freshman game will be played in Eugene, and has tentatively been scheduled for October 24. The second will be at Corvallis, November 13—the night before the Oregon-Oregon State game.

Orangemen Open Hoop Conference at Pullman

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 8.—(Special)—Ten Oregon State basketball players, accompanied by Coach "Slats" Gill, left Corvallis yesterday for Pullman, where they will open their conference season playing against Washington State college on Friday and Saturday.

The squad is the same that played in California during the Christmas holidays, winning five out of seven games, with the possible exception of Buck Grayson. Grayson, who was chosen on several all-coast teams, received all-American mention, and was high point man for the Orangemen last year, has been ill and may be unable to play.

Three more conference games on the Oregon State schedule will be played on the northern trip, two with the University of Idaho on Monday and Tuesday, and the final game of the trip, with Gonzaga, will be played at Spokane on Wednesday night.
