Announce New Schedule For Social Events

Dances, Lectures, Games And Debates Form Winter List

Petitions for Dances Must Be Filed One Week Ahead of Time

The social schedule for winter term has just been released from the office of the dean of women. For those who have not yet scheduled their functions, the following rules are enforced by the dean's office: the petition must be filed in the dean of women's office at least one week before the dance is given, or the dance will be cancelled; no petitions for dances will be granted unless an appropriate list of chaperones is submitted.

There must be three couples of chaperones, one of University connection, and at least one couple must stay all evening. This list should be definitely secured before filing the petition.

The schedule is as follows:
January 5, Monday—Registration.

January 6, Tuesday—Classes begin.

January 9 and 10, Friday and Saturday—High School conference.

January 15, Thursday—Admiral Byrd lecture.

January 16, Friday—Basketball, Washington State at Eugene; Episcopal students' dance.

January 17, Saturday—Basketball, Washington State at Eugene; Military ball; Krazy Kopy Krawl.

January 21, Wednesday—Nathan Milstein, violinist.

"The Woman Always Pays?" See The 1929 Crime Survey

Who said it is the woman who pays? A murrain take him, whoever it was, for the results of a recent crime survey made by Wayne L. Morse, professor of law, and Ronald H. Beattie, research fellow, at the request of the last legislature, indicate that the woman has a three-to-one chance over men of getting off scot free in a circuit court trial.

An investigation of the felony cases in Multnomah county during 1928 and 1929 was carried out and revealed a number of rather interesting things, among which was the fact that the practice of bargaining for lesser crimes by criminals is rather widespread and, also, the fact that women are favored with the largest numbers of acquittals in a trial.

Governor's Sons Both

Jack Meier, left, son of Governor Julius L. Meier, being congratulated by Walt Norblad, son of ex-Governor A. W. Norblad, after the Meier inaugural yesterday. Both young Meier and Norblad are well-known students on the Oregon campus.

Florence Ruby of Olds and King's To Talk to A.W.S.

Mass Meeting Scheduled For Thursday at 4 P. M.

Miss Florence Ruby, of the personnel department of Olds, Wortman and King, Portland, has been selected as the speaker for the winter term mass meeting of the Associated Women Students next Thursday at 4 o'clock.

Miss Ruby will talk on some phase of vocations for women. Her presence here will start off the new A. W. S. vocational program for the women of the campus. She will remain on the campus Friday to have appointments with individual women who wish to discuss vocational work with her. Appointments may be made through the dean of women's office.

During the rest of winter term outstanding women will be brought to the campus every one or two weeks to speak to smaller groups of women who are interested in particular fields of work.

There has long been a feeling among the women of the University and the administration that too many girls are in college who are not very certain in their own minds of the line of work they would like to do when they graduate from school. It is to help them in this, by bringing successful women here to discuss various professions that women may enter, that the A. W. S. has undertaken the new project.

The meeting is intended for all women of the campus. This subject, it is felt by leaders of the A. W. S., is one in which upperclass women are especially interested, since they will be out of school and working so much sooner than freshmen and sophomores.

Students Entitled To New Library, Says L. A. Wood

Professor Attends Session Of American Economic Association

If the Yale university can furnish its students with an eight million dollar library of modern Gothic design and which has its smaller reading rooms furnished with upholstered chairs, Oregon deserves at least a half million dollar structure, was the opinion expressed by L. A. Wood, professor of economics who recently returned from the East where he attended the annual session of the American economic association on behalf of the University of Oregon.

Professor Wood delivered an address before the economic group and the American Association for Labor Legislation, on the relationship of union-management cooperation on the railroads to the problems of technological unemployment. "Unemployment," he stated, "was threshed out from every angle, and many valuable conclusions were arrived at but it is doubtful if these will be of real use in the present crisis. They should, however, form the basis of action before another depression occurs."

One interesting feature of meetings in Cleveland was the delivering of a lecture by Miss Florence Thorne, secretary to the president of the American Federation of Labor, to the American Economic Association while members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' union picketed the hotel in which the lecture room was situated. The trouble had arisen over a lockout by the hotel management of the employees. Representatives of the American Sociological Society and the Economic body jointly investigated the affair and reported the management to be at fault. As an outgrowth of this affair both the hotel and the employees sought to provide means whereby similar occurrences in the future would be unlikely.

Eugene's Airport Displayed in Film

Three Co-eds Feature of Short Moving Picture

Vying with interest for a moment or so with the famed "Hell's Angels" picture itself is a short motion picture film of the Eugene airport that is being shown at the Colonial theatre along with Howard Hughes' famous epic. This film includes in its action three University of Oregon students, Madeleine Gilbert, Carol Hurlbert and Dorothy Illidge, who take the roles of passengers in the big Hobi Airways monoplane.

The short subject is shown as part of the announcement of the "soubriquet" contest that the theatre is conducting in connection with the feature picture, and it states that four lucky persons who most fittingly describe the leading star, Jean Harlow, will be rewarded with free rides in the Hobi plane. A number of theatre tickets are also offered as prizes.

The feature picture, "Hell's Angels," which is attracting unusual attention, will play at the theatre the rest of the week.

Jack R. Dant Named Senior Grid Manager

Council Appoints Football Head To Take Webfoots Through 1931 Season

Junior Managerial Staff For Next Year Named By 'Hack' Miller

Jack R. Dant, of Portland, senior in economics, will be senior manager of football in 1931, it was announced last night by George Cherry, president of the associated students. The appointment was made by the executive council, on the recommendation of the athletic committee.

During the 1930 season Dant was one of the junior managers for the team, and in the previous year he held the position of sophomore manager. In making known the choice of the executive council, Cherry commented on the consistent quality of his work, and the ability which he has shown to fit him for the executive position.

Tough Schedule Ahead
"Next Year's football schedule," Cherry said, "will make more than ordinary demands on the student manager. Dant's appointment by the executive council gives the student body a most capable and efficient manager as shown by the records of his past managerial activities."

At the same time with the selection of Dant to head the force of football managers for next year, Robert E. "Hack" Miller, manager of sports, yesterday appointed the five junior managers who will assist in carrying on the work. They are:

Junior Managers
Harold Bede, Cottage Grove, sophomore in law.

Guy Stoddard, Modoc Point, freshman in business administration.

Edwin Robb, Los Angeles, sophomore in social science.

J. Ivar Shuholm, Portland in social science.

Ray Goff, Bend, sophomore in pre-law.

Alternates who will take the places of junior managers if necessary, are:

Carvel Case, Molalla, sophomore in journalism.

Ed Cruikshank, Portland, sophomore in business administration.

Douglas Wight, Beaverton, sophomore in sociology.

"Confidence has been placed in these men," Miller said, "due to the efficiency and hard work which they have shown throughout their activity in the past. The type of men who are coming into managerial work is an indication of a steady improvement of the system."

Lecture By Byrd To Be Open To Students At Special Price

A.S.U.O. Manager Secures Lower Admission Rate For Antarctic Talk

Half the price that University of Washington students paid a few days ago to hear Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd lecture will buy an Oregon student a ticket for the lecture that the aerial conqueror of the Arctic and Antarctic is to give in McArthur court Thursday evening.

By making special arrangements with the managers of his lecture tour, Hugh Rosson and Ronald Robnett, graduate manager and assistant, have secured for Oregon students a special rate of 75 cents, which will admit them to the best general admission seats in the court for the lecture and the 9000 feet of motion pictures which are to be shown with it. Washington students paid $1.50 at Seattle last week-end and packed the house. Tickets are now on sale at the Co-op.

Considered from the practical point of view, Byrd's aerial exploits overshadow those of Lindbergh. Under the greatest of difficulties he has been the first man to fly over both the North and South Poles and has made very important contributions to man's knowledge of the Arctic regions. In 1926 he flew a plane, together with Floyd Bennett, from New York to France.

career which brought him to the world's attention, Byrd led a varied and colorful life. He attended the famous Virginia Military Institute and the University of Virginia. Later he entered the U. S. naval academy at Annapolis, and in 1911 played brilliant football as quarterback on a team that beat the army.

Europeans Offer Fellowships for U. S. Universities

Graduates Given Chance To Do Advanced Work Abroad

A limited number of fellowships to study in European countries are now being offered to American students. These fellowships have been established as an international exchange in appreciation of those offered in American colleges. Fellowships in the colleges of Austria, Czechoslovakia, France, Hungary, Germany, Italy, Spain, and Switzerland for both men and women are now open and applications being made. Most of the fellowships require the applications before February 1. Nearly all of the important universities and technical schools have at least one.

Dean Rebec of the University graduate school has received a large amount of literature and pamphlets from these schools abroad, and has made it available to students who want it.

Amounts in each of the fellowships range from tuition, room and board to free tuition only. The equivalent in United States currency is usually about $500. Anyone studying abroad must pay his own transportation and other traveling expenses although reduced rates are available in most countries.

The general requirement of all are: That the student must (1) Be a citizen of the United States or one of its possessions.

(2) At the time of application be a graduate of a college, university or professional school of recognized standing.

(3) Be of good moral character and intellectual ability, and of suitable personal qualities.

(4) Present a certificate of good health.

(5) Possess ability to do independent work.

(6) Have a reading, writing and speaking knowledge of the language of instruction of the particular country.

Students under 30 years of age are preferred.

Miss Margaret Creech To Interview Students

Miss Margaret Creech, in charge of the social work training division of the school of applied social science in Portland, is on the campus today to interview students who plan to take up social work as a profession.

University Loses Active Debaters On Varsity Team

Pfaff, Sloane Withdraw; Hicks Not in School This Term

Varsity debate for the University suffered a considerable blow yesterday with the announcement by Dr. Ralph C. Hoerber, assistant professor in the English department, of the withdrawal of Roger Pfaff and Errol Sloane from the men's team, and the inability of Lavina Hicks, woman varsity debater, to return to school this term.

Pfaff and Sloane are two of the most experienced debaters in the University. Both participated in the debate with the English universities squad this fall, and have been active in debate for the last three years. Roger Pfaff represented the University in the Pacific Forensic League oratorical contest two years ago. He took part in the Old Line oratorical contest last year and was to have debated against the Hawaiian team but was prevented on account of illness.

Errol Sloane has been active in both extempore speaking and debate for the past three years. Last year he went on a debate tour that covered nine states. Both men have won prizes in the Wilson F. Jewett speech contests presented in the University every year.

The two men were forced to withdraw because of their heavy class room schedule along with their interest in scholarly research in other fields.

"While this is quite a blow for Oregon debate this year," Dr. Hoerber stated, "it is with my complete approval that they are withdrawing in order that they may gain experience in other fields."

This leaves Art Potwin, Robert Miller, Walter Evans, and Wallace Campbell to carry on the debate work. None of these men, however, have had more than one season's experience.

The withdrawal of Pfaff and Sloane will leave a place for inexperienced men, which is in line with the policy of the speech division to give actual experience to as many qualified students as possible.

January 25 Is Date Set For First Band Concert

The University of Oregon band will give its first concert of the season January 25, at the Music auditorium. This will probably be the only concert given this term, according to John Stehn, director. A series of open air concerts have been planned for spring term.

Gallant Gent's Fist Slashed By Glass

First Program Broadcast Will Be Sunday Night At 5 o'Clock

GALLANTRY, that masculine trait discussed so much in feminine circles, flowed in the veins of one man yesterday only to flow out again.

This student (like all heroes, withholding his name), after climbing the steps at Villard, opened the door for a co-ed—or rather, he meant to open it, for instead of pushing it open his hand shattered the glass in the door.

After the confusion had subsided and the girl had entered the building, the hero tied a handkerchief around his hand and went to class. We wonder what the janitor at Villard thinks of gallantry now.

Features Slated For Krazy Kopy Krawl Program

Men's and Women's Trios; Soloists and Dancers On Program

Guests at the annual Krazy Kopy Krawl, to be held at the Osburn hotel next Saturday evening under the auspices of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary fraternity, will enjoy a feature program consisting of five special numbers. Three well-known campus trios, a soloist, and a combination tap dance will be listed on the program.

With a heavy demand for tickets to the affair reported, students are advised to make their reservations through their house representatives at once to insure themselves of a table at the grille dance. Reservations for only 150 couples will be made to insure ample dancing room for all who attend, according to George Weber, general chairman of the dance.

Talent Well Known
The feature program includes Nadine Gardner and Leith Oglesby, clever tap dancers; Sally Edleman, well-known campus singer; the Oregon men's trio, composed of Kelsey Slocum, Bob Goodrich, and Johnny Smedburg; the women's trio, composed of Maxine Glover, Sally Holloway, and Marvin Jane Hawkins; and the Blue Boys, Sing Harper, Torry Shell, and Fletcher Udall.

"We feel that we have the best features for the Krazy Kopy Krawl that have ever been lined up for a campus dance," Francis Mullins, in charge of features, declared. "Everything possible is being done to make the Krazy Kopy Krawl the best dance of the year, as it has always proven to be in the past."

Music By Weber
George Weber and his music will be featured at the Krawl and the band has been enlarged especially for this occasion. The Osburn is expected to be an ideal setting for the dance and the spacious floor is expected to provide ample dancing place for the limited number of couples.

Attractive and useful souvenirs, to be distributed to guests at the Krawl, are already on the campus and have been declared to be superior to those of last year.

Robbins' Mild Tempered Cook Murders Sweetheart

By BETTY ANNE MACDUFF

With Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Robbins, 539 East 11th avenue, live their two sons, George Robbins, associate professor of business administration, Walter Robbins, freshman in business administration, Hugh Biggs, dean of men, and Tom Stoddard, assistant graduate manager. All highly respectable, honest, worthy, peaceful citizens of this comparatively peaceful town.

Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Robbins hired to be their cook one Paul Katsuda, student at the Eugene Bible university, a Jap boy. Katsuda was an excellent cook and moreover was very pleasant. Everyone highly approved. Then came December. Katsuda

Emerald-KORE Contest Slated To Start Soon

First Program Broadcast Will Be Sunday Night At 5 o'Clock

All Group Representatives Meet Today With Art Potwin

Fifty-three letters announcing the second Emerald-KORE contest have been delivered by the mailman to 53 living organizations on the campus of the University of Oregon, and the contest director, Art Potwin, is now awaiting what he hopes will be 53 answers from the fraternities, sororities, and dormitories of the University stating their intentions to participate in this contest.

Meeting Today
A meeting of representatives of all groups participating in the contest is slated for 5 o'clock this afternoon in room 105 Journalism and general rules and regulations of the event will be discussed at this time. Drawings for positions on the broadcasting schedule will also be held.

The first program of the contest will come over the ether next Sunday night direct from the College Side Inn and will begin at 5 o'clock. The programs for each organization will be half an hour in length, as they were last year, and all rehearsals for the broadcasts should be conducted on this time basis, Potwin said last night. The Sunday night program will be the only one during the week to be sponsored by the Emerald and will last two hours. This will mean that four different groups will present programs on one Sunday night's broadcast.

Six Prizes Awarded
A total of six prizes will be awarded to the winners in the contest, which will end in the middle of March, if present plans are carried out. A grand prize will be awarded to that living organization presenting the best program in the entire competition. In addition to this, a special prize will be awarded for the best radio hour given by a group of the opposite sex other than that which receives the grand prize—that is, if a men's organization receives the grand prize, the best program offered by a women's organization will also win a prize, or vice versa.

Following this in the list of awards will be a second and third prize. Another addition to the list of prizes will be cups offered to the outstanding male performer of all the broadcasts and to the outstanding artist in the women's division.

Vinton Hall, editor of the Emerald, in commenting on the forthcoming contest, said last night that he believes this year's radio event will prove even more interesting than last year's contest because of the fact that a great amount of new and excellent talent has been discovered among living organizations during the past term, and for this reason all entries in the contest will be on an equal basis as far as winning prizes is concerned.

For the benefit of newcomers to
