Bensen Tech an Elected Student Body Officers' President

Medford Hi-Times Gets Hall Trophy for Best Newspaper

The Oregon High School conference held this year for the eleventh time joined the list of memories when it came to a close Saturday noon, but the foundations for next year's conference were laid before the final adjournment with the election of officers.

Raymond Morse, of Benson Polytechnic, Portland, will preside over next year's conference of the Association of Student Body Officers, succeeding to the presidency, John Adams, formerly of Grant high, Portland. Bernice Ingalls, Eugene high, was chosen vice-president, and Cynthia Liljequist, Marshfield, will serve as secretary.

The Oregon High School Press association will be led next year by Harold Jambor, Milwaukie high, who succeeds Clare Vause, Milton-Freewater. Kay Yasui, Hood River, will act as vice-president; and Ruth Chapman, Salem, as secretary.

Medford Paper Wins

The Medford Hi-Times, adjudged as being exceptional in make-up, content, and general appearance, published by the Medford high school, was named the best all-around prep school paper in the state and was awarded the Arnold Bennett Hall trophy.

The Grantonian, Grant high school, Portland, was awarded the Eugene Guard cup for the best newspaper with enrollment over 500. The Salem Clarion, Benson Tech, The Dalles Tillicum, E. H. S. News, of Eugene high, and Corvallis High-O-Scope were given honorable mention in this section.

The Lantern Repeats

The Lantern of the Pendleton high school repeated its high record of last year by taking the Eugene Register cup, annually awarded to the best paper in schools of fewer than 500 students. Honorable mention in this section went to the Mac Hi Messenger, McLaughlin high school; Forest Grove Monday Mourning Moan, Hood River Guide, Ashland Rogue News, and the Astoria Astor Post.

The Moro Optimist, with an unusually neat make-up and striking appearance, won the Eric W. Allen trophy for publishing the best mimeographed paper of the year. Others to gain mention in this group were the Scappoose Junior Echo, Santa Clara Clarion, Falls City Midget, Hermiston Examiner, and Canby Echo.

The W. E. Finzer cup, an addition to last year's list of trophies, was given to the Enterprise Hi-Booster as the best mimeographed paper from a mechanical standpoint. Honorable mention in this division was accorded the Independence Marigold News, Spray Breeze, and Stayton Santiam High News.

The best high school notes published in a town newspaper, which gains the Harris Ellsworth cup, went this year to Clatskanie high school with its Tiger Hi-Lites in the Clatskanie Chief. Those receiving honorable mention were Grants Pass, Myrtle Point, and Mill City.

Judges for the newspaper contest were: William M. Tugman, managing editor of the Eugene Register-Guard; Arne G. Rae, field manager of the Oregon State Editorial association; Robert C. Hall, superintendent of the University Press, and George H. Godfrey, assistant professor of journalism.

The student committee who carried out the plans for this year's conference included: Bill Pittman, general chairman; Adele Wedemeyer, assistant chairman; Louise Ansley, secretary; John Penland, programs; Connie Baker, deans; Harry Van Dine and Tony Peterson, press; Ralph Walstrom, student body officers; John King, principals; Margaret Cummings, girls' league; Carol Werschkul, banquet; Barney Miller, entertainment; Marguerite Tarbell, registration; Carson Mathews, housing; Bill Price, campus tour.

WHAT SHOW TONIGHT?

Colonial—"Hell's Angels," with Jean Harlow. Drama.
Rex—Conrad Nagel in "Free Love." Drama.
Heilig—Al Jolson in "Big Boy." Musi-comedy.
McDonald—Leon Errol and Richard Arlen in "Only Saps Work." Comedy.
State—Lois Wilson in "Temptation." Drama.

"Hell's Angels" at Colonial

Huge crowds are acclaiming "Hell's Angels," $4,000,000 super-thriller playing at the Colonial theatre all this week. One of the biggest box-office attractions in screen history, it seems to be keeping high its reputation in Eugene. The theatre is running daily matinees, breaking their regular policy to handle the rush for seats.

If you want to be thrilled as you have never been thrilled before, and if you don't mind a weak plot that occupies only a small portion of the film, by all means see "Hell's Angels."

Free Love Film Topic

Conrad Nagel, Genevieve Tobin, and Zasu Pitts are included in the dramatic comedy, "Free Love," starting today at the Rex theatre. Filmed from the famous Sidney Howard play, "Half Gods," the picture is filled with sophisticated drawing room comedy, with a frank and outspoken discussion of the place that free love has in the lives of married couples. Since "War Nurse," probably no picture will excite so much discussion and controversy as this fearless discussion of sex.

Errol at McDonald

One of the funniest comedies of the past few weeks of cinema showings in Eugene is "Only Saps Work," playing for the last time today at the McDonald theatre. In the leading part is Leon Errol, famous star of many Ziegfeld Follies editions. Included in his support is popular Richard Arlen. The film is filled with the sort of parlor wise-cracks that most please the college audience.

Heilig Has Jolson

Al Jolson is playing in "Big Boy," his latest talkie-single, for the last time at the Heilig theatre today. Jolson sings a great many songs in the manner that made him famous, reaching a climax in a chorus sequence, singing old negro spirituals. Mixed in the plot is a not too thrilling horse race, with the necessary menace of "fixing."

Many Hear Miss Lena Tartar Sing

Varied and Well-Balanced Program Offered

An unusually large crowd greeted the resumption of Sunday afternoon concerts at the music auditorium to hear Miss Lena Belle Tartar, Salem controlito, in a concert sponsored by the University music school and the Polyphonic choir.

Perhaps the most interesting of the five groups of songs on Miss Tartar's unusually interesting and well-balanced program was the one which included four compositions of Strauss. In these she displayed to advantage the beautiful control she has over her voice of such weight and tone mass.

Smooth delivery and complete mastery of the intricacies of Bach and of Rossi were displayed in Miss Tartar's first group, which included a mass by Bach, "Qui sedes ad dextram," and Rossi's "Ah, Rendimi."

The German group by Franz and Brahms she gave with very clear diction and tone color, which contrasted strikingly with her fine exposition of the Italian style in Verdi's "Oh, Don Fatale."

The final group was in English. Protheroe's "Ah, Love But a Day," and Chadwick's "Danza" were given splendidly contrasting interpretations.

Professors Will Lecture at Salem

Faculty Members To Make Weekly Trips

Journeying weekly to Salem, four University of Oregon professors will impart to citizens of the state capital learning in the realms of economics, psychology, art and literature during the winter term.

They are Victor P. Morris, associate professor in economics, who will give a course in principles of economics; S. Stephenson Smith, assistant professor of English, who will have a class in 20th century literature; Nowland B. Zane, associate professor, whose subject is civilization and Art epochs; and Celia Hager, assistant in psychology, who will conduct a study in psychology of the adolescent. George Hug, superintendent of city schools in Salem, who was a number of years ago, student body president at the University, will have a course in public school relations. Alexander Hull, of Pacific university at Newberg, with a class in creative writing, will complete the faculty. Each instructor will lecture one evening a week at the Salem high school.

the University, it may be said that last year's Emerald-KORE contest was most successful. Phi Sigma Kappa won the grand prize which was a nine-tube Majestic radio, a large silver loving cup, and a four-day contract at the McDonald theatre. Independents won a bridge lamp as second prize and Kappa Sigma was awarded a radio lamp for third place in the contest. Judging of the contest was done on a point system and this method of determining the

Tryouts for Shakespeare Play To Be Held Tonight

National Collegiate Players wish to remind everyone on the campus that they are continuing their policy of having open tryouts for their plays. This policy was begun last year with "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne." Tryouts for the parts of Malvolio, Andrew, Antonio, and Fabian in "Twelfth Night" will be held at 7:30 tonight in Guild theatre.

The scenes used for tryouts will be: for Antonio, Act III, scenes 3 and 4, lines 318 to 382; for Andrew, Malvolio, and Fabian, Act II, scene 3, beginning at line 53, also Act II, scene 5. Copies of the play will be on reserve in room 30 in the old library.

strong Husky drive at the beginning of the second half, we'd have come home with one victory."

The Webfoots lost the first game by a one-sided count partly because the fellows got off to a bad start and couldn't seem to find their form. During the first half they missed seven crumples, openings right under the basket that should be sunk consistently. That was a loss of 14 points right there.

If the team keeps on working hard, it should get somewhere before the end of the season, Reinhart thinks. No one seemed to be permanently out when the boys got back because of indigestion. Bill Keenan sprained his ankle, but it wasn't while eating and it doesn't seem to be serious.

Employment for Women Is Good

Dorothy Thomas Releases Survey Results

A survey of the fall term employment situation for University girls has been made by Dorothy Thomas, Y. W. C. A. secretary, who announces a steady increase in regular housework, for room and board; a scarcity of odd-time situations; and a large increase in the combined salaries of girls who are working their way through college.

In the fall of 1929-30, according to Miss Thomas, 46 girls doing regular work and 60 odd-time workers were earning a total of $4370 for the length of time they were employed; in the fall of 1930-31, however, 54 girls doing regular work and 50 odd-time workers will earn approximately $6230.

Of the employed girls, approximately two-thirds of those listed are underclassmen, and more than nine-tenths are engaged in doing housework; the remaining tenth is occupied with restaurant and tea-room work, stenography, and reading lessons aloud to students.

"We have little difficulty," stated Miss Thomas, "in placing girls who can work from 20 hours a week on up, living in the home, but it is almost impossible to place those who only want to work part time, or about ten hours a week."
