

WHAT SHOW TONIGHT?

Hellig—Stepin Fetchit in "The Big Fight."
Colonial—"Hell's Angels," with Jean Harlow.
McDonald—Joan Crawford in "Paid."
Rex—"All Quiet on the Western Front."

"All Quiet" at Rex
 In "All Quiet on the Western Front," playing today at the Rex, thousands of men go down to death in the horrible, searing inferno of battle to show the effect on the souls of men. To this same end, others are tortured and maimed by wounds inflicted by shot and steel. To this end, thousands of shells whine and scream their maddening way across the battlefields of Europe—which the hate of man has turned into the living grave of youth.

The film is beyond all power of words to describe. It holds one so entranced as to lose personal identity, carrying audiences along horrified but hypnotized, swearing by all the gods to rat in prison before adding their votes to another conflict.

Fight Film at Hellig
 Defying the underworld to save her brother's life, and risking the loss of her sweetheart's love is the central theme of the James Cruze production, "The Big Fight," which starts today at the Hellig. The story culminates in a big battle for the heavyweight championship, with some smashing fight scenes as the biggest climax.

Stepin Fetchit carries the main character role. Lola Lane, the girl who sang "Big City Blues" in the Movietone Follies, takes the part of the girl, with Guinn Williams playing opposite.

Crawford in Tense Drama
 Suppose you were framed and sent to prison and then married, for revenge, the son of the man who sent you there?

That is the core of the plot in "Paid," current McDonald feature which stars Joan Crawford in her first straight dramatic role. It is based on the tense play of the underworld, "Within the Law."

Included in the cast, besides Miss Crawford, are Robert Armstrong, Kent Douglas, Marie Prevost, John Miljan, and a dozen other prominent players.

Cougars McDonald Guests
 Responding to the invitation of the Fox McDonald management, members of the Washington State basketball squad, here to battle a dual session with the Webfeet this week-end, will attend the Friday afternoon performance of Joan Crawford in "Paid."

"Hell's Angels" Thrills
 An unparalleled spectacle is "Hell's Angels," showing on the screen of the Colonial for the last times today and Saturday.

A fine attempt to convey to the audience a glimpse of the stirring, virile part played by aviation in the war, it achieves a jerrible splendor as huge Zeppelins fall crashing in flames to the earth, and 50 planes battle one another through dizzy space.

In spite of a weak, puerile plot, it certainly rises to a grandeur that divorces all other films of the air forces in the war.

Fewer Colds on Campus This Year Records Show

There are fewer cases confined to the care of the University infirmary at the present time than were recorded on the books of that institution this time last year. Such was the statement issued yesterday by infirmary officials. It is also noted by those in charge that there are fewer cases of colds on the campus than is usually the case during the winter term. Last year's epidemic of colds was much more serious and caused a great deal more work for the infirmary aides.

There were three patients at the infirmary yesterday. Juanita Demmer and John Littlehales were both confined because of colds, and Jim Brooke is still confined as a result of an infected foot.

Rifle Team Tryouts Draw Big Turnout This Term

The largest turnout in several years for the rifle team is reported by Captain Bragg. Tryouts will continue until February 1, when the team will be chosen.

Eight men, who were members of the team last year, have reported regularly at the tryouts. They are: Robert Reiling, Jon Conder, Spencer Raynor, Gaylord Cox, Edward Judkins, L. E. Smith, Vernal Shoemaker, and Harold Menturn.

Carey Thompson, Wayne Felts, Dick Somers, and Harold Kynzall, all of whom are members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon team which won the intramural meet, have reported at the tryouts and it is expected that the remainder of the winning team will be out later.

The first match has been scheduled for February 7.

U. of O. Language Bulletin Now Being Used in Ohio

Language teaching bulletins put out here last year by Dr. B. W. De-Busk of the school of education are now being used as a basis of language teaching in Columbus and Cleveland, Ohio, schools, according to an announcement by Dean R. D. Sheldon.

The bulletin deals with the persistence of language errors among school children based upon statistical evidence. Numerous methods of drill are suggested for overcoming the common errors.

University Loses Two Benefactors in Recent Deaths

Ben Selling, Donor of Loan Fund, and Henrietta Failing Die

The University has lost two prominent benefactors in the deaths in Portland of Ben Selling, pioneer Portland merchant and philanthropist, and Henrietta E. Failing, daughter of the late Henry Failing, Portland financier.

Mr. Selling, who died yesterday morning, donated $500 to the University loan fund committee for the aid of students who are putting themselves through school. He made another loan of about $500, which was an emergency loan to be used by the students for short periods without security. This loan has been extremely useful, according to Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration, who also said that Mr. Selling has always been friendly toward helping students who are helping themselves.

He has also loaned directly to students through the recommendation of the loan fund committee. His son, Dr. Laurence Selling, is a faculty member of the University of Oregon medical school in Portland.

Miss Henrietta Failing, who died late Wednesday night, was the daughter of one of the sponsors of the Failing-Beekman oration prize contest. She herself has aided in the support of the art museum.

She and her sister, Miss Mary Failing, have helped support the University by many contributions, according to Mr. Onthank.

Tryouts To Be Held Soon For Master Dance Group

Master Dance group, local dancing honorary for women, will hold tryouts and take in new members on February 4, according to Miss Marjorie Forchener, adviser of the group.

The number of members to be selected is not limited, and any girl interested is urged to try out. The selection is being made now in preparation for the group's work upon the annual dance recital which will be presented at the beginning of spring term.

Any student having had two terms of dancing is eligible to try out. A short original dance composition and a preliminary trial before members of the club conclude the requirements. Any girl who wishes further particulars, assistance in selection of music, or criticism, may receive aid from Miss Forchener.

County Clerk Will Speak To Reporting Class Today

Walter B. Dillard, Lane county clerk, will speak to the 1 o'clock section of the class in reporting today on the routine of his office. Mr. Dillard, who is a graduate of the University of Oregon with the class of 1900, will explain what the news reporter has to look for in the clerk's office and will trace civil and criminal actions through their various stages from their filing to the final disposition in court.

The class will meet in room 105, Journalism, and any students other than class members interested in the subject are invited to attend.

Prints Displayed by Art And Architecture School

An exhibition of prints sponsored by the College Art Association of New York is on display in the school of architecture and allied arts. The exhibition is composed of etchings, aqua-tints, and lithographs, covering a great variety of subjects and an equal variety of artists, points of view, and treatment of the subjects. The artists represented date from the older day of Whistler to the contemporary work of Rockwell Kent.

The pictures have been collected and circulated by the college art association, of which the University is a member, and are being circulated throughout the United States. The exhibition will be here until January 24.

DR. ARNOLD WILL BE GUEST ON FRIDAY

 from this school for work in the Bell laboratories, according to Dr. Caswell. "Although no appointments will be made by this company for next year, Dr. Arnold's visit offers students excellent opportunity to become acquainted with the types of positions offered by such a company," Dr. Caswell said.

Dr. Arnold is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship honorary; Sigma Xi, science honorary; and Gamma Alpha fraternity. He is active in the work of the American Chemical society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Arnold will be guest of Professor W. P. Boynton, of the physics department, and Professor O. F. Stafford, of the chemistry department, at a luncheon Friday noon.

Film To Be Shown Here By German Department

"Beautiful Germany" is the title of the film to be shown at the University during the last week of January or the first of February under the auspices of the German department, according to Dr. Mena Spann, assistant professor of German.

"This movie shows what the tourist likes to see when he goes to Germany and the things he likes to photograph with his kodak," explained Dr. Spann. "It gives one a very good idea of what Germany is like."

The tourist bureau of the German Railroads Information office of New York City will supply the movie, which consists of six reels and lasts about an hour.

All students of the University whether taking German courses or not are invited to see the film. To cover the cost of bringing the picture here a charge of 10 cents will be the admission price.

Robbins Sells Paper

Ed Robbins, sightless graduate of the University, who recently bought the Montevilla Times, Portland community paper, has sold out again this week.

Carpenter Goes to Portland

Charles E. Carpenter, dean of the law school, leaves for Portland today to spend the week-end there on business.

Plans for Press Meet Announced

Program for Conference To Be Full One

The program for the thirteenth annual press conference here next week-end was released yesterday by Arne G. Rae, field manager of the Oregon State Editorial association.

Ben R. Litfin of The Dalles Chronicle will open the meeting on Thursday at the no-host dinner and informal round table at the Eugene hotel. This is considered to be one of the outstanding features of the conference.

Several prominent speakers are listed to talk to the delegates during the three days. One address that will be of interest to all delegates will be by J. M. Jones, Portland postmaster, who will speak on "Postal Regulations Affecting Newspapers."

Others scheduled to speak on Friday are W. Verne McKinney of the Hillsboro Argus the state's best 1929 weekly, who will talk on "Audited Circulation—A Step Toward Better Business"; M. C. Moore, newspaper broker, Beverly Hills, California; Dr. W. B. Norton, former religious editor of the Chicago Tribune, whose topic will be "Church and the Newspaper," and Elmer P. Byrne, advertising manager of the Eugene Register-Guard.

Only two addresses are slated for Saturday, one by Joseph R. Gerber of Portland, and the other by Elbert Bede, editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel. The remainder of the day will be devoted to reports, election of officers, and awards.

A feature of the speeches will be the discussions which will follow. A "discussion evoker" is scheduled to see that discussions are started and kept going, one for each speech.

Breakfast groups, luncheons, the annual banquet at the Osburn hotel, and the University of Washington-University of Oregon basketball games at McArthur court will be included in the three-day program.

Olmstead Leaves Campus

John G. Olmstead, president of the American Alumni council and alumni executive of Oberlin college, left the campus yesterday for San Francisco to meet with the delegates of district nine.

Former Oregon Student Appointed to Legislature

Mrs. Lotta C. Smith, who has recently been appointed to the lower house of the Oregon legislature, is a graduate of the University of Oregon. Mrs. Smith's appointment followed the death of her husband, Dr. W. Carlton Smith, who was elected from Marion county.

During her student days at Oregon she was active in dramatic and musical events. She helped to put herself through school by working at the Southern Pacific office at Eugene. After completing her education here, she taught in Lane and Marion county schools.

MAY HIS TRIBE INCREASE...

ABOUT BEN SELVIN can't ever seem to rap out enough of his swell music to satisfy his avid dance disciples.

So we're very much afraid that if you don't gallop down after his newest release right away—don't even wait to find your hat—you may find your Columbia dealer has nothing left for you but sympathy.

While you're catching your breath, be sure you hear the other new issues, too...

"Sez Sue" SHOPPING NEWS

"Sue" was conversing recently with a very prominent stylist from New York and "Sue" is passing on to you some hints. It seems that some of the newest skirts swing their fullness to the front, giving a straighter silhouette, and that pleats are another outgrowth of this vertical persuasion. As to necklines, the semi-cowl is the newest collar development, with the daytime necklines rising and the evening decolletage lower in the back. "Watch your styles!" says "Sue."

Costume Accessories!

My, how needy they are—because they put just that final individual touch to each costume. If it is an enamel compact, jewelry, mesh bags, watches or even repairs, just go into Laraway's Jewelry store on Willamette and you'll certainly find what you want. "Sue" saw some very pretty mesh bags in black and white, and pastel shades, also just the things to put in them—enamel compacts and pocket perfume flacons. "Sue" advises you to go in before the last minute and then you can see other tempting articles.

Every Woman Knows

That no evening dress is truly smart without at least one lovely jewel to set it off. With all the formalities scheduled for this term, you should be choosing the jewelry for your new formal. At the Oriental Art Shop, next to the Eugene Hotel, can be found imported Oriental and Italian jewelry in all sorts of rings and pendants and earrings. And some of the very loveliest of all are one-third of their regular price now! See them today.

"Corsage de Luxe"

For the Military Ball can be made at the University Florist on Thirteenth and you will certainly be satisfied. Sweeping evening gowns call for that finer touch which skillfully-made corsages achieve. If your boy-friend has any doubt as to the shade of your gown, just let him have the florist call you and then all will be corresponding. Violets, gardenias, lily of the valley, sweet peas, and many other flowers all go into the making of the "corsage de luxe."

It's Hard to Tell

When you see Buster Brown's beautiful hosiery display whether the hose are more like $2 or $2.50 values—and when you learn that they are regularly $1.50 now priced at $1, you'll be as aghast as "Sue" was! A pair of these silk-to-the-top hose, full-fashioned and in the new spring shades, will be just what you have been looking for to complete your latest ensemble. They are so very good-looking that you will want several pairs too.
