

The Emerald SCORE BOARD

By Phil Cogswell

—PLAY—
Harvard and Yale are planning to develop intramural football. Notre Dame already has it, Stanford plays a modified form of it. Why don't more colleges encourage it? Probably the expense of furnishing the equipment is the only reason for there are plenty of fellows in the student bodies who would like to play this greatest of American games beside those who are of varsity calibre.

—REBUTTAL—
Intramural football at Notre Dame is a rebuttal to the arguments on this so-called over-emphasis stuff. Having a good varsity at the North Bend school has made it possible financially to offer this sport to all those who want to play it in the school. They have 12 hall teams there, 350 boys play on them. They are not related to the varsity squad at all, 400 others being on the varsity and frosh strings.

—FUN—
The boys on these hall teams play for the fun of the game, not for any gridiron glory. They are coached by the first team stars such as Carideo. Student opinion doesn't force them to play this rugged game and the varsity doesn't need them. They play because they love it.

And sometimes an intramural player is a "natural" and becomes a star for the varsity as did George Gipp, greatest of all Notre Dame players. George was dropping kicking from the 50-yard line when Knute Rockne saw him and called him out for the varsity. Later he made successful drop kicks for the first team from as far back as the 62-yard line.

—SUCCESS—
Besides interhouse football, or in place of it, a school can have teams of maximum weight, say 150 pounds. This last year the 150-pound teams of Harvard and Yale met and staged what was called a "great" game. Also there could be teams from different schools in the college, such as law, business ad., etc.
The possibilities of intramural football being a success anywhere are reasonable. There are many fellows who would like to play the game, yet they aren't good enough for the varsity and they know it. There is no other opportunity for them to play.

Hoop Quintet Meets Idaho On Road Trip

Five Contests Scheduled For Webfoots; Cougars Also Opponents

Orangemen Face Huskies In Title Fight; Ducks Hope for Win

In quest of a victory or two to hang on the win side of the coast conference standings the Webfoot hoop squad will leave tomorrow noon for an extended road trip with four conference and one non-conference games scheduled.

Friday and Saturday nights they will meet the Idaho Vandals at Moscow in the first engagement between the two tall-end fives. From there they go to Pullman where on Monday and Tuesday they will again face the Washington State Cougars. On Wednesday they will meet Gonzaga at Spokane.

Oregon State Makes Bid
Oregon State will make their bid for title honors in the northern section of the conference when they meet Washington's league-leading Huskies in a two-game series at Seattle Friday and Saturday. At present the Beavers are once more in second place along with Washington State who moved up a notch by virtue of a victory over Idaho Monday night. A sweep of the series or even one win would make the Orangemen an even more serious threat for the pennant than they are now. Washington State remains idle over the week-end.

Coach Reinhart will take ten men with him to Moscow. Besides the first string lineup of Calkins, Dolp, Eberhart, Stevens and LeVoy, he will take Keenan, Roberts, Boyle, Rotenburg and Horner. At present Reinhart is still undecided which men he will start but stated last night that the same one which opened the Oregon State contest Saturday are the most likely starters.

Boyle, Rotenburg Improve
Several players, however, have shown great improvement in the last week or so and may break in the lineup at the last minute. Wally Boyle and Red Rotenburg, particularly, Reinhart said, have been going well during the last few practice sessions and are sure to see action.

The series with the Vandals will find the Ducks on even terms, as far as advance dope goes, for the first time this season. Idaho has but one conference victory to its credit, that over the Cougars. Both teams lack that element which has

Freshmen Stage First Track Meet

Hayward Gives Yearlings Fast Competition

Coach Bill Hayward sent his freshmen track and field men through their first competition last Saturday when he staged an informal track meet. No exceptional times or marks were made, he stated, but the meet revealed hitherto unseen possibilities in several of the yearling candidates.

John Hamilton, from Benson Tech of Portland, was the outstanding sprinter of the day, winning first place in both the 50 and 150-yard dashes. His times were 5:04 and 16:6. In the 50 he was followed by John Pennington of Eugene and in the 150 by Cliff Howlett, from Rainier, Oregon.

Mayville Kelliher, Santa Barbara, took the low hurdles with the time of 14.6. The three-quarter mile was taken by Bob Downey, former prep star from Washington high of Portland. Hayward was not satisfied with the showing of his weight men and jumpers. Sherwood Burr took first in the broad jump with a leap of only 19 feet. Kelliher took another place when his ten-foot pole vault was good enough to win. In the discus throw, Con Fury, of Sand Point, Idaho, took first with a toss of 105 feet.

Seven Historians Will Teach Here

Edward Cheyney To Come For Summer Session

Among the many widely known historians who are to teach history courses in the summer school this year is Edward P. Cheyney of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1927 Mr. Cheyney taught in the Portland summer session. He is one of the outstanding American historians and is a former president of the American Historical association. This year he will teach courses in English industrial history and England and the continent during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

Courses in modern European history, the Reformation, and the Middle Ages will be given by F. C. Church of the University of Idaho.

Dr. J. T. Gano, associate professor of history, will also be on the summer school staff. He will teach American history. Another faculty member, Dan E. Clark, will give courses in Western American history.

In the Portland summer school, J. Schaefer, former head of the history department and superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical society, will give instruction in American history.

From Mills college will come F. A. Herriek to teach English and modern European history.

Oregon history will be taught by Robert H. Downe. Mr. Downe is at present head of the history department in Franklin high school, Portland. He is co-author of "A History of Oregon" and author of "A History of the Silverton Country."

John P. O'Hara of the regular extension school staff will teach European history.

SPORTS SHORTS

Most college athletes have a time doing enough passing work to keep them in competition. John Paul, basketball ace of Wisconsin, was so unfortunate he made too many credits and is barred from the team.

The fact that golf players increased 20 per cent in numbers last year probably can be explained by the general depression. Fewer business conferences, more leisure time.

It has been declared by California that Jack Chevigny, Knute Rockne's backfield coach, will assist the Bears next year. Notre Dame states emphatically that Jack will remain there. What's this going to be, another dizzy Notre Dame shift?
