

Webfoot Yearling Hoop Quintet Downs Oregon State Rooks by 22-18 Score

Second Half Rally Gives Frosh Game

ed in the Ducks' first field goal. In the meantime Lenchitsky, Atkinson, and Brown had scored field goals to give the rooks a 11 to 7 advantage at half-time.

Coach Prink Callison evidently gave his young hopefuls a tongue-lashing between periods for they came out at the start of the second period full of dash and determination. A free throw by Wishard was followed by a barrage of field goals by Olinger, Lillard and Wilson, which put the frosh ahead 14 to 11. Atkinson broke through the Webfoot defense to tighten up the score with a field goal, but Temple, Lillard, and Wilson added six more points before he could find the hoop again. From that time both teams slowed down and the rest of the game was played listlessly. The frosh tried to stall, evidently, and let the rooks score five points before the final gun.

Temple Is Star

While Joe Lillard, high jumping center, led the frosh scoring with seven points, Mark Temple, guard, was the star of the Webfoot quintet. He was all over the floor, playing a stellar defensive game. Einard Wilson, lanky forward, was injected into the game during the latter part of the first canto and threw in three of his deadly left-handed push shots.

"Babe" Atkinson, diminutive rook forward, was the outstanding man for the Orangemen, scoring nine markers to take high point honors. Carl Lenchitsky, tall center, with four points to his credit, played a steady game for the visitors.

The final game of the series will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Corvallis.

The New Stars—

You no sooner begin to wonder who in the world will take the place of the famous athletes that have just graduated than you become aware of new stars right out there in the old men's shoes. They pop up suddenly, these satellites of sportdom, and that's what makes the game interesting.

Of course the fans are always sorry to see the old stars go, but everyone, especially the coaches, is mighty glad to see the new ones come up.

men on the campus. In all my connections with her as class adviser, I found her an exceedingly intelligent and efficient class officer. Her talents pointed to a brilliant future, and her untimely death is a serious loss not only to her immediate family but to the University as well.

Speaking for the Kwamas, Carol Werschul said, "The Kwamas will all miss her. I feel as if we had lost one of our most gifted and finest members. She had a marvelous mind and a strong character. I feel that Oregon has lost one of its most promising students. After all, she occupied a place in

Corvallis To Play Multnomah

The Multnomah Athletic club of Portland will meet the Oregon State team at Corvallis tonight. Coach Hewitt is very much interested in the outcome of the meet, especially since the Staters will be here the following week, and will make a special trip to Corvallis, with several of the varsity swimmers, to get an idea of their strength. "Letters for water polo are given at Oregon State and some fine swimmers have been developed," Hewitt said.

Lafferty coaches University High. Interest in swimming is gaining in the Eugene high schools. Although they were outclassed in the meet with the frosh last Thursday evening several of their swimmers show promise of developing into good material for the University. Cameron, breaststroke, and Mar-

Miller's Speed—

Mac Miller, who showed such burst of speed in the first meet of the season last week, equalling the 100-yard coast record, and coming within one tenth of a second of tying the mark in the 40-yard dash, is only a sophomore.

Mac, however, has had plenty of experience breaking records before. Two years ago he was a member of the great Webfoot freshman medley relay team which broke the world's record here. On that team besides Miller, was Tommy Blakenburg, at that time just back from the Olympics, and Frank Walton. All three of these men have swum quite a bit for the Hollywood Athletic club, Walton and Blakenburg being back there now.

Learned From Cody—

It wasn't until he was 14 years old that Miller started out to learn the art of swimming. He was just finishing up at Couch grammar school in Portland. Later while attending Lincoln high, he started in under Jack Cody, well known pool instructor at Multnomah club, and he learned fast for that was only eight years ago.

When he was a prep school senior he went to Hollywood high school and won the Southern California championships in the 50 and 100 yard races.

Keeping Busy—

Last year with the Hollywood athletic club, which holds the United States senior championship, Miller traveled over the East, swimming at Chicago, Northwest, and elsewhere.

This year Mac is trying to keep
