“Tra la, tra la!” we shout, bursting into the new campus political song. — “Changes, Beautiful Changes,” which reminds us that somebody on this campus is going to be student body president next year. And after all, a worse fate could befall an Oregon student, for no one can ever feel safe from MISfortune in this modern world.

AND WHAT'S THIS WE HEAR ABOUT THE DELT CHICKENS WHICH ARE SCANDALIZING THAT PART OF THE COUNTRY BY ROOSTING ON THE BOYS' CHANDELIER?

The other day the Emerald carried a story about a local boy, Ralph Yergen, whose relatives are quite famous. Well, Ralph is also somewhat of a song writer, and he recently wrote a beautiful lyric which he has dedicated to those college boys who wait on tables in the various houses throughout the campus. The name of the song is “Waiting For Tips That Never Come In.”

No, no, don't get us wrong! We mean real fowls. Tush, tush, little Ga Ga, whatever made you think of such a thing? Yours is a fowl mind.

SHALL LITTLE DELTA S LONG TO BE.

As the Chi Omegas have adopted a wounded dog they should get together with the Deltas and establish an animal farm. Hurrah, at last we begin to see a good purpose to which the infirmity building could be put. It could be utilized as the headquarters for the farm. This is a worthy cause, and we hope that all students on the campus will get behind it. At least, it would provide a place to put the campus water-baggers.

Tish! Tish! (meant to be a snicker). Yesterday's Emerald carried a story about a gust of wind blow-to his anger, perceived that frosh pants and various other bits of clothing were scattered upon it. “Who has been sitting in my davenport,” roared papa bear, but again no one knew. Angered mightily papa bear went upstairs to go to bed. And when he pulled back the sheets of his bed, do you know what he found? Someone had saturated his resting place with Eugene's wettest aqua. “Who watered my bed?” roared the infuriated bear, gazing wildly about him. Suddenly a loud snore was heard from the adjoining room. Papa bear, led by his fellow bears, tip-toed softly towards the door and quickly pulled it open.

There, sprawling in their beds, were the three little bears; on a chair were a few well-gnawed chicken bones; and in the corner sat a bucket half filled with water. “Ah, I see,” growled papa bear, “we must teach them better.” So the three little bears were taken down to the mill race and thrown in, and from that time on never left chicken bones or water buckets in conspicuous places again.

REPUBLIC FAILURE IS KING'S ONLY CHANCE

met his nephew, the present cabinet member.

Miss Thompson stressed that this provisional cabinet was not made up of inexperienced men, but of capable men of affairs. “The prime minister, Alcala Zamora, was trained as secretary of Count Romanones, a liberal minister in the king's last cabinet, who was reputed to be the most acute politician in Spain,” she said.

“Salvador des Madariago, who has just been appointed ambassador to the United States, is an author, and has been a member of the League of Nations. Some of Madariago's books are at the University library here.

“Largo Cabellero, a cabinet member, was previously a member of the Spanish congress also. He was first elected about 1917 in a fashion which shows the Don Quixote temperament of the Spanish people,” Miss Thompson continued. She told the following story about it:

In 1917, Cabellero and three others were imprisoned for having incited a strike which, although it was intended only for the purpose of getting higher wages, almost turned into a revolution. Since the men were innocent of revolutionary motives, they became martyrs in the eyes of the Spanish people. All four men were elected to congress. Finally public sentiment got them released from prison and they took their seats in congress.

The Spanish people had the opportunity of electing these four liberal Republican men to congress before their imprisonment but true to their temperament, they waited until their sympathy was aroused before they were stirred to action. “The members of the cabinet are fine intelligent men of affairs, who have been working for years for the ideal of a republic. Whether they will realize this or not, I do not know,” concluded Miss Thompson.

AWS PRESIDENT GETS POSITION ON COUNCIL
add to the duties of the secretary of the A. S. U. O., putting through the following permanent resolution:

“The secretary of the associated students shall work in conjunction with the University administration to provide closer contact between the University staff (personnel) and the students.

“Further, the secretary shall, as far as possible, provide for the reception of campus visitors.”

Two important advantages are achieved by the action of the council in placing these added responsibilities upon the A. S. U. O. secretary, Cherry pointed out last night. First, he said, is the value to the students in making a maximum number of contacts both with the faculty and with the many prominent men and women who visit the University.

Secondly, he referred to the reputation which the University of Oregon already has for its hospitality, and expressed the desire of the associated students to maintain that reputation and to have this student body become known as “one of the most cordial groups of students in the country.”

Cherry explained that under the new resolution it will be the duty of the secretary to arrange for all campus visitors to be invited to fraternities and sororities and to be extensively entertained during their stay, not only by faculty members, but also by the Oregon students themselves.

General Electric Contributions to Health

Sunlamps are a popular feature of the swimming pool at Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, N. Y.

COLLEGE-TRAINED electrical engineers cooperated with the medical profession in developing G-E products that safeguard health. Notable among these are the x-ray tube, the G-E refrigerator, and the G-E Sunlamp. Of these three, the Sunlamp is the latest development, but it has already been acclaimed for its service in helping build that vitality which maintains the happiness of good health.

mates in a group without this treatment. Beyond home and college, the use of Sunlamps has extended to swimming pools and indoor golf courses. In the future, you may enjoy the Sunlamp as a standard fixture in offices, trains, clubs, and many other places where people gather.

And you may continue to expect new, unusual, and useful developments from G-E engineering and research. Among such products, there will doubtless be further contributions to personal health, comfort, and convenience, as well as to the promotion of industrial efficiency.
