Eberhard Gets Albert Prize at Senior Meeting

New Donation Plan for Alumni Inaugurated

Class Votes $200 for New Band Uniforms, $200 For Loan Fund

The class of 1931 made two decisions of major importance at its final meeting last night in Oregon hall.

The first was the awarding of the Albert prize to Dorothy Eberhard, senior in history. Miss Eberhard has been very active in campus affairs, having served this year as president of Mortar Board and as a member of the student advisory committee.

The second matter of importance was the appointment of a committee consisting of Bill Pittman and Harry Tonkon to draft a plan of "free-will offering" for alumni of the University. Under this plan the alumni would make voluntary contributions to the University each year, and no campaign or drive would be carried on to obtain money.

The funds derived from this source would be paid into the treasury of the University, to be used as the school sees fit. Such a plan is being practiced successfully at Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Cornell, Columbia, and other colleges, it is said.

Disposal was also made at the meeting of surplus funds in the class treasury. It was decided to donate half of the fund of about $400 to the band fund for new uniforms. The other half will be used to start an emergency loan fund in the name of the class of 1931. The principal and interest of this fund will be rebated to the class at its twenty-fifth anniversary meeting.

Bill Pittman was unanimously chosen as permanent secretary of the class, and was at the same time awarded a life membership in the Alumni association.

Six chapters have been granted to colleges and universities which are all on the approved list of the Association of American Universities and have strong Spanish departments.

"Such chapters can be of great service in not only maintaining a real interest in Spanish culture and literature, but in developing and promoting scholarly activities in this field," said Dr. Wright.

Charters have been granted to the following universities: University of Chattanooga, Tennessee; Baylor College for Women, Texas; Adelphi college, Brooklyn; Dominican college, California; Dennison university, Ohio; and the University of South Carolina.

Orchestra Gives Final Concert of Musical Season

Generous Applause Awards Five Soloists and Their Conductor

By JACK BAUER

The final orchestra concert of the season was as varied and brilliant as the entire musical year has been. A large audience generously applauded the five student soloists, Harold Ayres, Agnes Petzold, Gladys Foster, Nancy Thielsen, and Esther Wicks, and the University Symphony orchestra for their very fine performance.

Rex Underwood, who directed the concert, had his musicians under perfect control. The orchestra played near-perfect accompaniment to five exceedingly difficult works, and followed the nuances of the soloists with creditable fidelity.

The Concerto Op. 21 by Haydn opened the program. Harold Ayres, pianist, played the first movement with his customary crisp precision. Agnes Petzold was splendidly dramatic in the "Ritorno Vincitor" from Verdi's Aida. The dolorous lament allowed her to release her powers of dramatic singing. There was close integration of orchestra and voice.

Gladys Foster showed fine feeling for the romantic mood of Schumann's Concerto in A minor. The pronounced melodies, lyric rather than bombastic, were accentuated by smooth execution on the part of the pianist, and the full orchestra moved with the rippling chords to a brilliant climax.

Nancy Thielsen's vibrant voice gave brilliance to the gentle, swaying "Casta Diva," from Bellini's opera, Norma. In the lively second part of the aria, the orchestra phrased into a structure of grace. Miss Thielsen executed thrilling syncopations and a smooth chromatic scale with seemingly little effort.

The Vieuxtemps Concerto in D minor afforded Esther Wicks and the orchestra a medium for a sterling performance. The cadenza at the close of the first movement was made brilliant by clean-cut fingering and precise bowing. Arpeggios, runs, trills, and figures in octaves introduced the restrained, solemn and religious theme.

Decision May Come Soon in Education Case

State Board To Continue Meeting Today

Closed Executive Session Said To Be Probing One Prexy Plan

PORTLAND, May 28—(Special) With its decision on reorganization of the five educational institutions in the state thought near, the state board of higher education, in executive session here, adjourned after seven hours of deliberation to meet again Friday morning.

Rumors that one president might suddenly be chosen by action of the board to clear up the educational tangle were rampant, but when adjournment came it was thought that the step would not be taken soon.

Bulletin Is Issued

The executive session being closed, waiting newspaper men and college officials got only the following word as to the board's work contained in a bulletin: "Whereas the board recognizes that each institution has rendered and is giving excellent service each in its own field to the people of the state of Oregon, which service must be conserved, therefore, be it resolved that in these adjustments in the University of Oregon and Oregon State college the transfer of courses and departments shall be on a basis fair alike to the two institutions in their respective fields, and that there be no effort to build up one institution by tearing down the other."

Board Ponders Issues

Seven major issues were before the board today for discussion in its executive session:

1. Whether pure science shall stay at Eugene or go to Corvallis.
2. Whether commerce shall be retained at Oregon State or be removed to the University.
3. Whether journalism should be concentrated at the University following the recommendations of the federal survey.
4. How much of a cut in expenses is necessary for economy.
5. Distribution of educational courses.
6. Distribution of physical education.
7. Distribution of music.

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University, and Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of Oregon State, were in agreement on other points at issue.

Touring Debaters Honor Guests at Forensic Banquet

Hoerber Presents Awards; Errol Sloane Gets A.S.U.O. Shield

As a farewell gesture to the departing Pacific Basin debate tour squad, Robert Miller, Roger Pfaff, and David Wilson, a banquet was given at the Anchorage last night by Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic fraternity. At that time debating awards for the year were made to the men by Dr. R. C. Hoerber, head of the speech division and varsity debate coach, and to the women by W. E. Hempstead Jr., instructor in English.

Errol Sloane, senior in English, was presented with the much coveted debate shield by the associated students for three years of active participation in forensic activities.

Those to receive a gold pin in the shape of an "O" for one year's varsity debate were John King, Robert Gomer, Rola Reedy, Betty Jones, Charles Roberts, Jean Lenard, Louise Smith, Catherine McGowan, Alice Redetzke, Neil Sheeley, Herbert Doran, and Hobart Wilson.

A white gold "O" was presented to the following debaters for two years' varsity debate: Wallace Campbell, Walter Evans Jr., Robert Miller, Arthur Potwin, Roger Pfaff, Bernice Conoly, and Mary Caniparoli.

A new policy was put into practice this year when the freshman class decided to present a certificate of recognition to freshman debaters. Those who will receive these during the coming week are: Emery Hyde, Jane Warner, George Bennett, Geraldine Hickson, Roy McMullen, Lois Reedy, Carl Stutsman, William Daugherty, Norris Porter, John Adams, and Otto Vonderheit.

Alumni Office Has Big Summer Job Planned on Files

"Everyone seems to have the idea that the alumni office settles down to a nice long rest during the summer, but I assure you we do nothing of the sort. When the school year ends, our biggest work begins," Jeannette Calkins, alumni secretary, stated.

During the school year Old Oregon, alumni magazine, and the correspondence that pours into the office keeps the staff more than busy; therefore, all the special projects, such as checking of files, are reserved for the summer months.

"In the first place, there are 512 new alumni this spring. These names must all be prepared for the alumni files, plates made of their names and addresses for the mailing list of Old Oregon, and all this data arranged in the old files. The master file is arranged alphabetically and the mailing file geographically.

"All the old files must be carefully checked and additions and corrections made, such as are necessitated by change of address, occupation, or marriage. Data for this is collected from the newspapers and letters sent the alumni.

'Recruiting' of Students Here, OSC Banned

Greater Oregon Group Is Disbanded

State College Committee Stopped; Minnaugh, Stipe Speak

All "recruiting" of prospective students, both here and at Oregon State college, was finally abolished yesterday, by action of the student bodies of the two institutions.

The Greater Oregon committee is disbanded, and hereafter there will be no such organization, nor any Greater Oregon State committee at the state college. All official "contacting" of high school students in Oregon during vacations has come to an end.

Student Leaders Confer

Brian Minnaugh, president of the A. S. U. O., and Jack Stipe, chairman of the defunct Greater Oregon committee, left last night for Corvallis, where they will discuss this and allied problems with Milton Leishman, president of the Oregon State student body, and with the chairman of the once Greater O. S. C. committee.

The first step toward completely wiping out the "recruiting" system was the final action taken by the state board of higher education at its meeting Wednesday, in which all of the state high school conferences and meets, held each year up to now on the campuses of the University and the college, were definitely abolished. A reservation included with this decision provides only for "special instances where favorable action is taken by the board."

School Leaflets Stopped

The board further decreed that in the future the publication of all promotional leaflets and bulletins will be discontinued, and the remaining bulletins and catalogues of courses, not indicated under the head of "recruiting," will be put out under the direction of the board.

The abolition of the Greater Oregon committee and the Greater Oregon State committee by the respective student body executives is the outcome of an official request made by the state board, and endorsed by both President Arnold Bennett Hall and President W. J. Kerr.

These three major steps all are in accord with specific recommendations of the federal educational survey, which strongly disfavored student recruiting in all its forms, as formerly practiced by the Oregon institutions.

Enrollment Cut Expected

Going into effect immediately, the new policy this inaugurated is expected to cut down enrollment increases to a considerable extent, but at the same time to eliminate many of the evils of the "open-door" system. The federal commission objected especially to the high-pressure "rushing" methods used in the past, and to the resulting drag on scholastic standards. In substantiation, the commission's report pointed to the unusually low proportion of graduating classes to entering classes in Oregon institutions.

The abandonment of the Greater Oregon committee by the associated students was made known in an official statement released to the Emerald last night, as follows:

"The Associated Students of the University of Oregon in the spirit of cooperation with the State Board of Higher Education, desirous of bringing the
