

Editorial Hour Of O. Emerald Will Continue

Talks on Current Topics Presented on KORE By Professors

Campus Musical Talent Will be Sought Out By Blais

The afternoon Emerald editorial hour, which has been broadcast daily over station KORE, for the last two terms, is the only such program sponsored by any college newspaper on the Pacific coast, and perhaps the only one in the United States.

Plans for a continuation of the programs next year, according to Merlin Blais, who has been David's assistant, and who will direct the work next year, are under way, and further developments in making the hour worth while for the general public will be carried out.

We Take This Opportunity . . .

To thank the students of Oregon for their patronage . . .

To wish the best of luck and happiness to students this summer . . .

To extend our congratulations to the graduates.

UNIVERSITY PHARMACY

11th at Alder

the country. To relieve the monotony of this type of daily program, however, a number of speakers were engaged to address the radio audience on topics of current interest.

"The University faculty includes a considerable number of men who are recognized authorities in their particular fields of education, and it has been our aim to overcome to some degree the handicaps which prevent the general public from enjoying the educational benefits of the University as well as the students. The radio is undoubtedly the easiest means of bringing the public directly in contact with the work of these professors," David said.

Many Give Talks

Among those who have spoken during the past few months are: Dr. Donald Erb, professor of economics, whose subject was "The Present Railroad Crisis;" John G. Hazam, professor of history, who spoke on "Islam in the Modern World;" Dr. John R. Mez, professor of economics, who spoke on "The Relations of the Pacific;" Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics, whose topic was "The Ups and Downs of Business;" and Wayne L. Morse, professor of law, who spoke on "The Crime Situation."

Announcement of the Murray Warner essay contest winners over the radio was perhaps the outstanding feature on the list of programs for the term. The discussion of the Oregon crime survey by Mr. Morse, the radio interview with Frank Gardner Hale, internationally recognized jewelry craftsman, on "Handicraft vs. the Machine in Modern Art," and the appearance of the Oregon Yeomen polyphonic quartet, which took first place in the all-campus contest held last week, were other events scheduled during the editorial broadcasts.

Remote Control Set Up

A remote control studio located near the campus has perhaps been the most significant development since the inauguration of the Emerald programs winter term, and the use of this extension service has been provided through the courtesy of the Oregon Pharmacy.

Next year the utilizing of campus speakers will be continued, but according to Blais a more extensive use of campus musical and speaking talent to be found among students will be used. The cooperation of the student body in making these programs a real representation of what it can do, is asked by next year's director.

Program For Graduation To Be June 13-15

Commencement Is Set For Monday

Baccalaureate Is Listed for Sunday; Reunions Are Scheduled

The impressive services of commencement, including the class reunions which have become a traditional feature, and the alumni meetings, will be held here from June 13 to 15, according to the program released.

Dr. Raymond Robins, internationally famous social economist, will deliver the address at the commencement exercises Monday, June 15, in McArthur court, when students will be candidates for graduate and undergraduate degrees.

Rev. Porter To Talk

Rev. Claude B. Porter, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Medford, will give the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning in the Methodist church of Eugene. His topic will be "Pioneering in a Machine Age."

Memories of the University of Oregon as it was 50 years ago will be recalled here during commencement week when the three surviving members of the class of 1881 gather for their reunion. Claiborne M. Hill will come from Berkeley to join Anne Whiteaker and C. S. Williams, both of Eugene, to celebrate this occasion. The class of 1906 will hold its 25-year reunion also at this time, with Camille Carroll Bovard as chairman. Ten and 20-year reunions will also be held by the classes of 1911 and 1921.

Oration Contests Set

Youthful orators, picked from the best in the senior class, will vie for the Failing and Beekman prizes on Friday night, June 12, in the music auditorium, at the opening event of commencement. The winning speaker will receive the $150 Failing prize, while the Beekman prize of $100 will go to the second choice of the judges. The orations are to be original compositions of the students.

The Flower and Fern procession, one of the most beautiful events of the year, will be held Saturday evening at 7:30 on the lawns of the campus. Alumnae and women graduates will march singing to make an "O" on the lawn from flowers and ferns which they carry. John Stark Evans, of the school of music, is arranging a musical program of the men's glee clubs which will be especially appropriate for the outdoors. The University orchestra, under the direction of Rex Underwood, will assist. A new seating arrangement which will give the spectators a better view and which will improve the acoustics will also be in effect.

Classes To Meet

The day will be devoted to meetings of classes and alumni, and the president's reception. At 9 in the morning the Association of University of Oregon Women will hold a breakfast for all the graduating women. The Alumni association will hold its regular meeting at 10:30 in the morning in Guild theatre, which will be followed by the University luncheon honoring graduates. Representatives of the classes which are holding reunions, and a number of other prominent people of the state will speak. The president's reception will be held from 4 to 6 in the afternoon, at which time alumni and seniors will be guests of Dr. and Mrs. Arnold Bennett Hall.

The baccalaureate sermon will be held Sunday morning, June 14, in the Methodist church, and the commencement service Monday morning will conclude the exercises.

Smith's Criticism Book Acclaimed By 5 Educators

'Craft of the Critic' Written By Oregon Professor, Published in East

Already hailed as "The Bae-deker for the Critic," a volume recently completed by S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English, has won national acclaim and praise by leading men and women in education, according to word received here from the publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell company of New York.

The book, on which Mr. Smith has been working for some time, deals with book and play reviewing, and has been so written that it reads easily and entertainingly while it instructs. It is expected to prove popular as a text in colleges and universities all over the country, as well as being a valuable addition to the libraries of journalists, authors and reviewers.

Book Wins Praises

"I have been reading the 'Craft of the Critic' with constantly increasing pleasure," says E. N. Voorhees, of Columbia University, who is quoted in the publishers' announcement. "It is too humanly warm and personal to be called a handbook, and these are the very qualities which I believe will entice the student to make valuable use of the book as a guide to new vistas, for the author speaks with the authority of a scholar and the charm of an artist."

"I shall list Professor Smith's 'The Craft of the Critic' in the recommended list of books on criticism and shall recommend it in my course in American literature," says J. Duncan Spaeth, of Princeton, one of the outstanding men of literature in the United States.

EMERALD STAFF BANQUET NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

At this banquet awards of merit will be given outstanding Emerald workers. Speeches will be short and spicy, says Miss Werschkul. A list of names has been posted on the bulletin board in the Journalism shack and it is asked that all those who are intending to come sign. In the event that some eligible staff worker does not find his or her name on this list, Miss Werschkul asks that she be notified.

STUDENT 'RECRUITING' HERE, O. S. C. BANNED

(Continued from Page One) student body in closer association and understanding with each other and in order to avoid popular misunderstanding, has decided today to demobilize the Greater Oregon committee and to abandon its program. It is proposed to arrange the conference immediately with the officers of the Oregon State student body to secure closer understanding and to consider ways and means of eliminating even the appearance of student recruiting by the committees.

—BRIAN MIMNAUGH, President of A. S. U. O.

—JACK H. STIPE, Chairman of the Greater Oregon Committee.

Final Big Sister Meet Slated for Wednesday

The last Big Sister meeting of the year will be held Wednesday at 5 o'clock in 105 Journalism, it was announced last night by Betty Anne Macduff, Big Sister chairman.

"It is imperative that every Big Sister attend this meeting," Miss Macduff said in making the announcement. "Many important last minute details which have not been presented before must be explained at that time, and there are some important instructions which these women must have before they leave for the summer."

Mrs. Hazel Prutsman Scherwing, dean of women, will give a short talk at the meeting, emphasizing importance of the first meeting of the Big Sisters with the freshman women registration week.

According to plans which have recently been formulated, there will be a general assembly of all freshman women at 8 o'clock Monday morning of the first week of school in McArthur Court. After a short introductory meeting the girls will go to the balcony, where the Big Sisters will be stationed, and there each group of Little Sisters will be stationed, and there each group of Little Sisters will be given a brief introduction to University life. Subsequent meetings will enlarge upon the material presented at this first meeting.

Under the new plan of the Big Sister organization there will be no work for the Big Sisters to do during the summer, and they will not be expected to take their Little Sisters through registration.
