

PIPA To Hold Confab Here Nov. 15, 16, 17

Many Noted Journalists To Discuss Problems Complete Program in Line For Twelve Members Of Association

The date of the annual convention of the Pacific Intercollegiate Press association, which holds its 1931 conference on the University of Oregon campus, has definitely been set for November 15, 16, and 17, on which date Oregon's homecoming will also be observed.

Many noted journalists, including the internationally known William Randolph Hearst, will, if possible, be secured for speakers at the conference. A complete program, including much entertainment, will be in store for the delegates to the conference, including the volunteering of a leading sorority to entertain them for one evening, and also the full benefit of Oregon's homecoming spirit and the homecoming game.

Hall Makes Statement

"We hope that this conference will be one, if not the best, of the confabs in the history of P. I. P. A.," states Vinton Hall, president of the association and former editor of the Emerald.

Mr. Hall pointed out that "the contact amongst the leaders of the various college publications which is afforded at these annual conferences of the P. I. P. A. lends much valuable assistance to the delegates which in turn is passed by them to the staff members of their particular publication."

Oregon Men Officials

The conference which was held on the U. C. L. A. campus last year was declared a glowing success to the association. Vinton Hall and Tony Peterson, editor and manager of the Emerald last year, were selected as president and vice-president of the association at that time.

The purpose of these annual meetings is to exchange ideas concerning newspaper systems and management in the college field; to discuss problems which arise before the editors and business managers; and to adopt resolutions in body that programs of the individual publications may be more successfully carried out. And this all tends to create a spirit of cooperation among the 12 members.

The association, besides giving protection to its members, provides a news service which carries campus news material to various other campuses in the Pacific states. This brings the various colleges and universities in these states in a much closer relation, as it keeps them in touch with the outstanding achievements of each school.

Faculty To Meet on Golf Links Friendships End; War Opens

Internal strife is about to end, as under the faculty, personal conflicts will soon be the order of the day. The opening of a faculty golf tournament was announced yesterday afternoon by Robert Seashore, assistant professor of psychology. It is rumored that a moratorium is to be declared on all personal friendships between golf-playing members of the faculty.

Roger Williams, winner of the spring tournament, and Harry Yocom, victor of the summer match, are both back in the field again with blood in their eyes and a do-or-die vow on their lips. Ambitious contenders beware!

Those desirous of entering the tournament may do so by playing 27 holes at Laurelwood, some time before October 30. Qualifying scores are to be left with Mr. Peters at the golf course. Two teams, captained by Donald

Last Call Comes From Robinett for Local Addresses

THE last call for correct addresses for the student directory is being made by the graduate manager's office. The "pigger's guide" is going to press this week-end, according to Ronald H. Robinett, assistant graduate manager.

There are still a few students who have not turned in their correct local address, and it is the desire of this office to have these corrected by today. Those students who had not determined their Eugene address at the time of registration must report immediately to the graduate manager's office in McArthur court with their new local address. The change of address may be phoned to the office or delivered in person.

Pep, Enthusiasm Feature Big Rally As Team Entrains

1,000 Students Turn Out For Dancing at Igloo; Frosh Electioneer

Oregon spirit was heightened last night by a large all-campus rally dance, and will be carried over until 4:35 this afternoon when the Oregon band and a majority of students will entrain for Seattle.

No specific rallying has been scheduled prior to the game, Saturday; however, rooting will be well organized at the game and will be led by Delsey Slocum and his assistants. Directing and encouragement of Oregon rooters will be carried on by Carson Mathews and his rally committee.

Washington students have scheduled an inter-collegiate dance to be held in the Aerie room of the Eagles auditorium on Saturday evening. Admission will be one dollar a couple. All Oregon students are invited to attend the dance in an open letter sent to the Emerald by Maury Johnson, publicity chairman of the dance.

Students will return to Eugene either Saturday evening or Sunday. No Seattle rallying has been (Continued on Page Two)

Special Meet of Oregon Yeomen Set for Tonight

Freshman Independents Are Urged To Attend

Activities of the Oregon Yeomen will get under way Monday evening, when there will be a special meeting of the organization, at 7:15 in the Y. M. C. A. hut, it was announced last night by Merlin Blais, president.

A special invitation to attend the meeting is given to all freshmen who are not affiliated with any fraternity, dormitory, or other living group.

Organization plans for the coming year will be discussed and a definite program for the year will be outlined. Therefore, it is important that every unaffiliated man on the campus be present at the meeting.

Faculty To Meet on Golf Links Friendships End; War Opens

Erb, professor of economics, and Howard Taylor, associate professor of psychology, will be chosen from those completing the qualifying round. The players will be arranged in the order of their scores.

The tournament will be played off in foursomes with match play. It will be so arranged that each man will have an opponent of equal ability. New players are especially invited to compete, as under this system their inexperience will not place them at a disadvantage. All graduate and research assistants are eligible to compete.

The final round, of 18 holes, will be completed during the first week in November. Prizes for the winning team will be announced after the two teams have been selected. Further information may be obtained from Robert Seashore of the psychology department.

Houses Favor 'Bunion Derby' In Campus Poll

3 Organizations Alone Cast Negative Votes

Get-acquainted Party Set For October 17 on Social Calendar

Open House will be held Saturday, October 17. This was the decision of fraternities, sororities, men's and women's dormitories, and independent groups on the campus yesterday as a landslide of votes in favor of the annual social event were filed in the dean of women's office.

Only two fraternities, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Beta Theta Pi, and one sorority, Beta Phi Alpha, voted against Open House. The S. A. E. vote registered 31 to 12, the Beta poll 28 to 26, and the Beta Phi Alpha tally 9 to 5 for non-participation in the affair.

Many houses and halls cast unanimous ballots in favor of Open House, and those students voting against it were in the main seniors and juniors. Freshman classes in most instances voted unanimously for the get-acquainted party.

The poll of student sentiment on the feasibility of holding Open House was started Wednesday following the inability of a special committee of eight campus leaders to reach a decision. With opinion equally divided among the arbiters, final say in the controversy was left to the campus at large.

The annual "bunion derby" became a topic of heated discussion the first of this term following two sessions of the interfraternity council at which the custom was voted down. Heads of sorority houses took a favorable attitude. Backed by the Emerald, Mrs. Hazel Prutsman Schwering, dean of women, called the student committee meeting Tuesday. The favorable all-campus vote on Open House resulted.

Student Has Little Liking for Work Chasing Rattlers

Tussling with a four-foot rattlesnake is just one of the experiences encountered by Norris Porter, sophomore in pre-law, in his work this summer on the Long Beach Snake farm in northern Arizona. Porter and his partner, one "Awascar" Green, were detailed the pleasurable task of bringing in the live rattlers for the purpose of securing the serum.

"My first try at snake catching ended in near disaster." And then with a broad grin. "It was my duty to hold the burlap sack while the snake was dropped in. Our first victim was encountered after several hours riding, and temporarily confined by bringing a forked stick down on its neck.

"Next a wire noose was slipped over its head and tightened around the 'gills.' Then came the risky process of lowering the reptile into the sack.

"To my evident discomfort, the snake in its griping got a tail hold on my wrist," he continued, "and at that precise moment the wire loop slipped off. With a yell that would have scared an Apache, I swung my arm plus the startled snake around until either fright or dizziness made it loosen its hold."

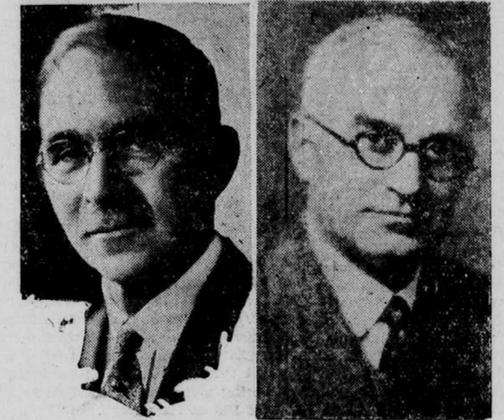

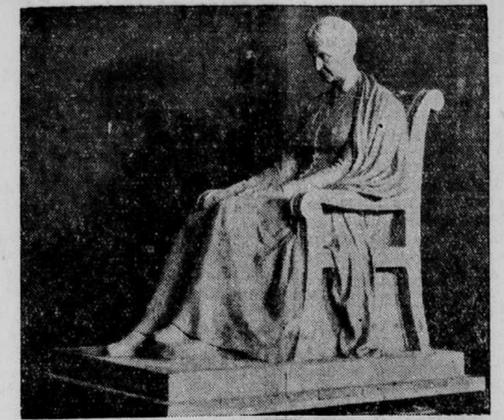

Leaving the spot as fast as possible, Porter concluded that that was one snake he had no desire to capture. The reptile was evidently of the same kind for, though his partner hunted high and low through the sagebrush and mesquite, no signs of their would-be victim evidenced themselves.

Porter continued his work on the snake farm for a few weeks but the scare of that first encounter was too much for his nerves, so he eventually packed up and turned his footsteps north again.

Bossing to Speak at Institute

Dr. Bossing, head of the supervised teaching department, will address the Teachers' institute meeting at Tillamook this afternoon on the different phases of supervised teaching.

For Dads and Mothers

Hall, Barker Will Tour State With Dads, Mothers

which is to be unveiled on the campus next year. He will personally invite the mothers to be present for this occasion, which is expected to be one of the major events of the University year. Mr. Barker is the donor of the statue, which is to serve as a memorial to the pioneer mothers. The work, which is now nearing completion in the studio of A. Phimister Proctor in New York, will be one of the outstanding statues of the entire state.

Dr. Hall, Mrs. Bond, Mrs. Cook and Mr. Shaw will discuss problems and policies of the University with the mothers and fathers of students and the alumni. Meetings will be of an informal nature, planned to establish a basis of mutual co-operation among all interested in the institution.

The party will arrive in Hood River Monday for a noon meeting, and will go on to Heppner for a meeting in the evening. Mrs. Harriet K. Mahoney is in charge of the affair at Heppner. Tuesday (Continued on Page Three)

Y.M.C.A. 'Retreat' Scheduled at Blue River, Saturday

Freshmen to be Guests at Series of Conferences This Week-end

A group of Oregon students and faculty members, led by Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel; Charles A. Howard, professor of law; John L. Casteel, director of speech; and R. B. Porter, secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., will leave the campus Saturday afternoon for a "retreat" at Blue River, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. primarily to interest freshmen in the functions of the "Y."

The first session of the conference will be Saturday evening. Three other meetings will take place Sunday, with recreational periods between. Bill Kidwell, of the city "Y," will direct recreation. Assisting in the leading of sessions will be Rolla Reedy, president of the campus "Y."

Topics for discussion will arise from the expressed interests of the group. The purpose of the meeting, as expressed by Mr. Porter, is "to offer an opportunity for new students to exchange experiences and to discover the underlying values of University life."

There is room for further reservations. These may be made with Mr. Porter at the Y. M. C. A. office before Friday noon.

Team Leaves For Conflict With Huskies

Crowd Cheers Players When They Entrain

Cheer Spears Takes Squad Of Thirty-two Men To Seattle

Cheered by a large crowd of Oregon rooters, Doc Spears and the University of Oregon football squad left Eugene last night, ready to meet the University of Washington tomorrow afternoon. Thirty-two players, Bill Hayward, Jack Dant, student manager, and assistant coaches Coach and trainers were included in the traveling squad.

A light workout yesterday afternoon lasted until it was time for the squad to leave for the train. Clad in their new green jerseys they staged a final drill on a pass defense against the freshmen. Confidence that they would give the Huskies a run for their money in Seattle ran through the team. Rumors and hearsay about the ineligibility of Lillard had a desired effect on the players, much to Doc Spears' pleasure.

Hufford To Play

This afternoon the team will go through a light signal practice on the Washington stadium turf field.

Although Spears refused to definitely name his starting line-up, it will probably include Moeller, Pozzo, Temple and Gee in the backfield; Forst at center; Schulz and Wilson on guards; Morgan and Nilsson on tackles; and Bailey and Bowerman, ends.

Doubt that Merle Hufford, star halfback of the Washington outfit, would be on the sidelines Saturday was dispelled by reports from Seattle which stated that Hufford was in fine condition and was ready to start against the Ducks. Rumors about Hufford are usually forthcoming from the Washington campus about this time of year.

First Conference Play

Tomorrow's game will be the first real test of team competition for both conferences. Neither eleven has been forced to open up in previous games, but both Phelan and Spears have been drilling hard for this game and will undoubtedly "shoot the works." The Huskies will have an added incentive, for they have been taken three times in a row by the Web-foot. In fact, they have failed to cross the Oregon goal-line in that time.

A large section of seats has been reserved for the Oregon rooting section, it is announced. At least 1000 Oregon students are expected to be on hand. Washington officials anticipate a crowd of more than 40,000.

Campus Wonder Gulps One Dozen Eggs as Delicacy

Three at a gulp is the boast of Norman Jesse, former student on the campus, who completed the herculean feat of swallowing an even dozen raw eggs at one sitting, in the College Side Wednesday night.

"Ah, for a nice raw egg," sighed Jesse, as he lounged in his booth. Quick to satisfy his desire, his companions supplied him with not one, but a dozen eggs, and challenged him to get them down. Jesse responded by dropping the eggs, three at a time, into a glass, and subsequently into his stomach.

The hero evidently appears to relish uncooked hen fruit as a delicacy, for, according to latest reports, his condition is as good as could be expected.

Joe Lillard, Oregon Backfield Star, Will Play in Seattle Fray

Ticket Sale Ends For Duck-Husky Game at 1 Today

STUDENTS who are going to the Oregon - Washington game must get their tickets before 1 o'clock today. Washington authorities have informed the graduate manager's office that they must have absolute information today as to what space the Oregon rooting section will take up. It is for this reason that the sale of tickets closes at 1 p. m. today. The tickets are on sale at the Co-op store at the price of $1.00 to all holders of student body cards.

Ronald H. Robnett, assistant graduate manager, is very anxious that every student going to the game buy a rooter ticket. He says that the wishes of Washington must be respected and that they should be informed as to exactly how many students will be in attendance. According to the Washington officials, the stadium will be sold out.

Dr. Hall Finishes Address Series To Class of 1935

Speech Given Yesterday in School of Music Auditorium

Stressing the aesthetic appreciation of the practical in life, President Arnold Bennett Hall concluded the series of talks before the freshman class yesterday at 10 o'clock in the school of music auditorium.

Dr. Hall, who was introduced by Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, touched on the weakness of the present educational system along this line. "You are normally governed 95 per cent of the time by your emotions," declared the president, "yet in courses offered by the higher educational institutions of the country, 95 per cent of the time is devoted to purely intellectual pursuits, while but 5 per cent is turned over to the emotional interests."

Appreciation of the beauty of nature that can raise the normal person in a feeling of grandeur to a little higher understanding of life was expressed in Dr. Hall's talk. Religion and the omnipresent sex also were emphasized in the blueprint of the student's life.

The president concluded by exhorting the freshmen always to pick the romance and adventure out of life and elevate it above the sordid and tawdry details. "This is the last of the president's addresses to the freshmen this term and is the final chance for the president to become acquainted with the freshmen as a body. As the other feature of the program, John Stark Evans, professor of the organ, gave several selections at the opening of the hour.

Emilienne Roach Presents Brilliant and Varied Concert

From Haydn oratorio through Brahms lyric, Mozart opera, and French love songs to Russian miscellany was the series of vocal leaps capably taken last night by Emilienne Roach, soprano, in her concert at the music building at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Roach emphasized the legato quality of the air from Haydn's "Creation," "With Verdure Clad," and the two Brahms songs; one calm, the other swift and clear. A Strauss song showed interesting contrast of soft with powerful passages. The high point of the German group was "Schoene Nacht," by Ringins, which startled by its modern flavor. It had a quiet, forbidding cadence reminiscent of "Pelleas and Melisande."

Mozart's three little airs from "Don Giovanni" sparkled and sang alternately. Mrs. Roach's slower phrases were well held, and in one were contrasted with runs like quick bursts of laughter.

The French group began with Debussy—a romance full of that unique loneliness of his, and the bright "Mandoline"—to each of which Mrs. Roach gave its own peculiar quality. Strong and dramatic was a song by Duparc, and the last two numbers—both flirtatious—bore out the saying that "the French are gay people, fond of dancing and light wines."

The last group, Russian numbers, required in turn pure sustained tone, rapid enunciation, expressiveness, and sheer force and energy. Mrs. Roach was brilliantly accompanied throughout by Aurora Potter Underwood.

Ineligibility Talk Fades; No Protest Made

'Midnight Express' Said to Have Played Semi-pro Baseball in East

By BRUCE HAMBY
Joe Lillard, Oregon backfield ace, is eligible and will play tomorrow against the University of Washington. This was decided late yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the faculty athletic committee after word had been sent to all coast conference representatives declaring him temporarily ineligible for the game.

Inasmuch as no formal protest has been filed and the committee decided that such reports that had been laid before them were not sufficient to bar him from the Husky tilt, telegrams were sent to all faculty representatives in the Coast conference reversing the message sent earlier in the day.

Butler Confers With Howe

Yesterday morning, Jonathan Butler, newly-appointed commissioner of the conference, arrived and met with Professor H. C. Howe, Oregon's faculty representative, giving him results of an investigation made on Lillard. Just where these reports came from and who made them is a complete mystery, although Butler is supposed to have made them himself. Butler left after a short visit, going on north to Corvallis.

At the committee meeting, it was revealed that the charges were based on Lillard's participation in semi-professional baseball. A gentlemen's agreement in the Northwest has made it possible for college athletes to play semi-professionally without endangering their amateur standing in the conference. The Oregon committee decided that there were not sufficient grounds and cleared up all rumor and newspaper reports made earlier.

Howe Issues Statement

Professor Howe issued the following statement following the meeting: "Lillard was protested on the grounds that he had played semi-professional baseball in the middle west with the Gilkerson's Colored Giants. Lillard does not deny this. Before any player can be declared ineligible for a game, a formal protest must be filed at least seven days ahead, and should he later be found ineligible for conference competition, this fact would not have any effect on the outcome of any games in which he may have played."

Spears Indignant

Coach Spears was somewhat indignant when he heard of the affair. "It was my opinion," he said, "that Butler was hired by the conference as a special investigator and his reports were to be (Continued on Page Three)
