Jackson Names Business Staff For Emerald

Schenk, Goebel, Lord Head 50 Workers Twenty Solicitors Selected For Coming Year; Jobs Still Available

The complete Emerald business staff of 50 members was announced Wednesday by Larry Jackson, business manager.

Mr. Jackson, who has worked in the advertising side of the Emerald, working up from advertising solicitor, has made an Larry Jackson increase of more than ten members in comparison to the staff of last year.

The position of advertising manager is to be filled by Harry Schenk, senior in journalism, president of Alpha Delta Sigma and also a winner of the Portland Advertising club's scholarship.

Schenk's two assistants are Auten Bush, sophomore in business administration, an advertising salesman on the Emerald staff last year, and Barney Miller, senior in journalism, who is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic professional fraternity.

National advertising is in charge of Harold Short, who has been notably active in advertising. He also is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma.

Dick Goebel, sophomore in journalism, will head the merchandising and promotion department. He has had considerable experience in the editorial as well as the advertising side of the paper.

The circulation manager for this year is Cliff Lord, sophomore in journalism, formerly an "ad" solicitor. Ed Cross will assist Lord in this department.

Harriette Hofmann will handle the women's specialties, a position created in 1929. She was manager of the Sez Sue column last year, and is a member of Gamma Alpha Chi, women's national advertising honorary.

The Sez Sue column will be in charge of Katherine Laughridge, a sophomore in English.

Classified advertising will be managed and directed by George Branstator, a former solicitor for the Emerald. He is a junior in business administration.

The rest of Jackson's staff is as follows:

Jack Wood, former assistant advertising manager and junior in journalism, is new office manager. Edith Peterson, sophomore in history, will be financial administrator.

The former manager of the

Evans Announces Rules for Frosh Elections Today

Polls Are Open From Nine To Three o'Clock at Y. M. C. A. Hut

With balloting in the freshman elections to begin at 9 o'clock this morning, Walt Evans, vice-president of the student body, last night announced rules for the election.

Ned Kinney has been appointed chairman of the election board. All officials have been named from the junior and sophomore classes.

Officials have been asked to report to the polls promptly at the time for which they have been scheduled, that no delay in changes may be made and so that no other officials will be held from classes.

The counting is to begin at one o'clock. First posting of the count will be made at 3 o'clock after the polls have closed.

Members of the election board and the times they will be on duty follow: Isabell Crowell and Bud Weise, 9 to 10; Wally Ohler and Ardis Ulrich, 10 to 11; Helen Burns and Jerry Kinzel, 11 to 12; Margaret Tarbell and Nancy Suomela, 12 to 1; Gretchen Kegel and Cecil Espey, 1 to 2; George Hibbard and Jim Ferguson, 2 to 3.

The counting board and the times for each group is as follows: From 1 to 3, Ethan Newman, George Vaughn, Louise Ansley and Ed Bolds; from 3 to 5, Thornton Gale, Sanford Platt, Virgil Langtry and Ellen Sersanus.

Student Orators To Hold Session at Osburn Hotel

With "American Rackets" as the topic, student orators from all the colleges in Oregon that are members of the Inter-Forensic Association of Oregon will gather at the Hotel Osburn in Eugene Friday evening at 6 o'clock, December 4.

Plans are under way to have the contest broadcast over KORE, and each speech will be 10 minutes long.

One speaker each will compete from Oregon State, Willamette university, Pacific university, Southern Oregon Normal school, Pacific college, Linfield college, Oregon Normal school, Eugene Bible university, and the University of Oregon.

Tryout dates to determine these debaters will be announced later, but students are urged to prepare for the subject now.

Judges for the contest will be the coaches of the different colleges participating, and they will judge the speeches on the amount of wit, brilliancy, and entertainment quality.

Sunday Organ Recitals To Be Given Campus

Weekly Twilight Hour Becomes Reality

John Stark Evans To Play For Students Every Sunday Afternoon

Sunday organ recitals are about to become a reality on the Oregon campus, due to the activity of a large group of faculty and townspeople, headed by Mrs. A. E. Hall, Mrs. P. L. Campbell, George McMorran, and Karl Onthank.

John Stark Evans, organist and member of the faculty of the University school of music, will play the weekly twilight organ programs, beginning this Sunday at 5 p. m. Each Sunday afternoon throughout the school year, there will be 30 or 40 minutes of organ music, and the sponsors are confident that students, going from the library to their evening meals, will stop at the music building for a few minutes of quiet music, said Mrs. Alice Macduff, assistant dean of women, last night.

Dean Onthank yesterday pointed out that one of the most popular features of Sunday afternoon on the Stanford campus was the Twilight recital in the University chapel. In furtherance of Dr. Hall's efforts to bring added cultural advantages to Oregon students, arrangements have finally been completed to provide the Oregon campus with a Sunday afternoon organ program.

Following are the sponsors of this coming year's Twilight organ recitals: Karl Onthank, chairman, Mrs. Alice Macduff, assistant, George McMorran, M. H. Douglass, R. A.

Students Passive In Paying Their Laboratory Fees

ON October 14, the date that students were to start paying their course fees, class fees and non-resident fees, only 257 students called at the cashier's window. According to E. P. Lyon, cashier, this means that students must pay their fees at a faster rate than this in order to have them all in by October 24.

More Houses Go 100 Per Cent for Yearbook Drive

Free Copies Given to Eight Groups; Many Others Nearing Goal

A growing list of 100 per cent Oregon subscriptions for houses includes Theta Chi, Sigma Kappa, Alpha Phi, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Delta Theta, Alpha hall, Delta Delta Delta, and Gamma hall, announced Edward Wells, circulation manager, at a pep meeting at the Phi Delta Theta house last night.

"A large percentage of remaining houses are nearly 100 per cent," said Roger Bailey, business manager, "and students are urged to cooperate with their representatives in signing up for the yearbook before the deadline, which comes on Saturday morning. No extra yearbooks will be printed this year and students must sign in order to purchase one."

Students soliciting for subscriptions in town will be given an additional week in which to work, due to the large territory which they have to cover.

House and section representatives are urged to call in immediately when they go 100 per cent, so the representative can get their complimentary copy.

The picture schedules are now in the hands of each house, and all members are urged to be on time for their Kennel-Ellis appointments.

AAUW Conclave Slated To Start This Afternoon

Official To Talk at Meet Of University Women

Members and Students Will Give Pageant Depicting Growth of Group

The eighth annual convention of the Oregon state division of the American Association of University Women opens a two-day session on the campus this afternoon.

Sixty delegates and visitors, representing 12 cities in Oregon, are expected to attend beside 134 Eugene women. Branches of A. A. U. W. are located in Astoria, Baker, Bend, Corvallis, Eugene, Forest Grove, Klamath Falls, LaGrande, Pendleton, Portland, Roseburg, and Salem.

Among the national officers here for the conference is Mrs. Melvin A. Brannon, regional director from Helena, Montana. Mrs. Brannon, who is the house guest of Mrs. Arnold Bennett Hall during her stay, is to be the speaker at luncheon on Saturday.

State officers, attending are: Mrs. G. A. Johnson, president, Portland; Dean Kate W. Jameson, vice-president, Corvallis; Mrs. George W. Hug, secretary-treasurer, Salem.

Mrs. Virgil D. Earl, president of the Eugene branch, is general chairman for the convention.

At 4 o'clock all branch presidents are to meet at the Eugene hotel. The main feature of the convention will be the presentation of a pageant tonight at 8:45 in the women's gymnasium, by the local group. "Scenes From the Boston Pageant With an Oregon Epilogue" is the theme to be carried out. The story, which traces the history of A. A. U. W. since its founding, was portrayed at the national convention in Boston this summer.

Conference Terminates Gentlemen's Agreement Rules Will Be Enforced

Women's Groups To Plan Features For Oregon Dads

Luncheon Slated; Houses To Have Representatives At Meeting Today

Representatives from all women's living organizations will meet in the women's lounge of Gerlinger hall, at 5 o'clock today, to complete arrangements for a special feature luncheon Saturday, October 24, on the Dad's Day program, according to Madeline Gilbert, special feature chairman for the women's houses.

Plans revealed by Miss Gilbert show that tables for the Dad's Day luncheon are to be decorated in Oregon colors, and during the meal there will be skits and Oregon songs. The entertainment will last until the afternoon smoker for the Dads at 3 o'clock at the men's gym gets under way.

The meeting of the representatives from the women's houses today will complete the arrangements for special features and leaves only the detail work to be done, according to Ken Jette, general chairman for the Dad's Day events. Work for decorations is going forward rapidly, and many downtown stores are preparing their windows with displays in honor of the week-end celebration and the coming of the Dads.

The committee appointed by Gilbert to represent the women's houses at the meeting today is as follows: Alpha Chi Omega, Vir-

Colored Flash Played Semi-Pro Ball Under an Assumed Name, Butler Says

BULLETIN (From Eugene Register-Guard)

By WALT BAKER, Emerald Sports Editor.

Lillard is out! This press dispatch came in late last night after a heated and extended session of the meeting of the Pacific Coast faculty representatives in Portland.

The action of this meeting ended the "gentlemen's agreement" under which Northwest members of the body had ignored their athletes' playing semi-professional baseball. Hereafter the conference rule will be enforced to the letter.

The main grounds for the disqualification of Lillard was the evidence presented to the group by Jonathan A. Butler, the coast commissioner, that Lillard had played semi-pro baseball under an assumed name. In travelling with the ball team in the Middle West, Lillard had received pay for the position as chauffeur, not ball-player, and had, on occasion, played ball in the position of one of the regular players, under the player's name. It was this "playing under an assumed name" that was the main cog in bringing about the action.

In a formal statement issued by Professor W. B. Owens, of Stanford university, president of the conference, no sport was specified but the question of Lillard's eligibility arose over his having played semi-professional baseball in the middle west, the team being Gilkerson's Colored Giants.

Commissioner Butler gathered all the evidence against Lillard and the presentation of this evidence was his first official act in his new capacity.

This action by the body has a decidedly direct bearing on the status of other players in the Pacific Northwest and on the coast in general. The ruling will affect the eligibility of all the men in the conference on whom can be pinned the decision of playing semi-pro ball.

The ruling on Lillard's eligibility will not affect the Washington-Oregon game of last Saturday, which Oregon won, 13-0. The bulletin failed to indicate whether or not Lillard will be eligible for the game next Saturday with U. S. C. but from the ruling it is altogether too probable that the ineligible brand goes into effect at the present time. Although no school protested him, and as it takes 7 days for such a protest to become effective, the outcome is doubtful but since the meeting was called expressly for this purpose, it looks like Lillard will see the rest of the Oregon games, including U. S. C. from the grandstands.

The conference also defined the duties of the commissioner as follows:

"The conference voted that the commissioner should use his discretion as to what information regarding an institution he would submit directly to the institution prior to the completion of his report." This, it was pointed out, (Continued on Page Three)

"Happy Joe" In Action For Last Time

Joe Lillard, who was last night declared ineligible by the Pacific Coast conference faculty representatives, and who is in the center of the action in this picture, is shown boring his way through the Washington line last Saturday at Seattle, in perhaps what will be the last game that he will play in an Oregon uniform.
