Orange Paint Smeared Over Campus Walks

'O' on Butte Given Coat Of College Colors

Vandalism Occurs in Early Hours; Perpetrators Not Seen

BULLETIN

Rumors regarding the disappearance of the beaver mascot of Oregon State students Saturday night were found to be false in a long-distance conversation last night between the Emerald and the Oregon State Barometer, campus daily at Corvallis.

Officials of the college are conducting a thorough investigation of the painting, according to the reports.

From the Co-op to University street and from Johnson hall to the Oregon seal, orange paint defiled campus sidewalks when students started for classes yesterday morning. The lemon "O" on Skinner's butte was smeared with orange paint and tar.

In the early hours of the morning yesterday the brush wielders descended on the campus and wrought their havoc in more than half a dozen places. The time has been placed at between 3:30 and 4 o'clock, by townspeople who were driving past the campus. Several men in Friendly hall were awakened by a commotion in front of the hall but were not sure of the time.

The bulk of the painting was that of orange "OSC's" on sidewalks in front of Condon, Oregon Commerce and the old library, a large "O" in front of Johnson, a "Beat Oregon" in front of the College Side Inn, and "OSC South Branch" at the Oregon seal. The boots of the pioneer statue were trimmed in orange also. No paint was put on the walls of buildings.

Campus Clean by Evening

By evening practically all vestiges of the paint had disappeared from the campus. Freshmen worked for a short time in the morning. In the afternoon campus workmen with gasoline and wire brushes scrubbed off the rest of the markings. They said that the paint was of a kind used on highways and was extremely hard to scrape off.

At a meeting of administration officials yesterday afternoon, the opinion was expressed by some that University students might have been responsible for the vandalism, it is understood. Several students and staff members also expressed their opinion late in the afternoon, but declined to substantiate their opinion with specific names.

Night Activity Heard

Newt Smith of the College Side Inn said that he was up until 2 o'clock and had heard no unusual activity there up to that time. Mildred Young, who lives on Sixth avenue west, said that she was visiting at a hospital until about 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning and that as she drove through the campus on the way home she heard considerable laughing in the neighborhood of the library. Later she heard several carloads of men

Dr. Mueller Talks At Wesley Club's Meeting Sunday

Associate Professor Tells Of Present Conditions In Russia

"Because the Soviet government does not allow accumulation of money, the Russian finds his incentives for work in socialist competition rather than in economic competition," Dr. John H. Mueller, associate professor of sociology, told the Wesley club at its evening meeting Sunday.

"The Russians believe that economic competition is the death of trade. The government rewards the workers for efficiency in their occupations not in increases in sal-

Orangemen Deny Paint Daubing on Oregon Campus

That the daubing of Oregon's campus with orange paint Sunday night was not the work of Oregon State students was the belief expressed in a telegram received last night from Milton Leishman, president of the Oregon State student body. Leishman declared that full punishment would be meted out to any State college undergraduates found guilty of the vandalism.

Full text of the telegram, as it was received by Brian Mimnaugh, president of the Oregon student body, is as follows:

"No one has said that the painting on the Oregon campus was done by O. S. C. students as retaliation for beaver disappearance last Saturday. There is no definite evidence that college students spread paint. If anyone can give evidence leading to identification of any of our students who had anything to do with the paint spreading, the student body and college as a whole will see that extreme penalties are inflicted. We met with heads of all social organizations on the campus this afternoon and reprimanded upon them that any vandalism of this kind is condemned by every division of the college, both students and faculty."

Capacity Crowd Expected For Homecoming Game

Many Good Seats Still Available, Announces Robnett

A capacity crowd at Hayward field would number somewhere between 16,000 and 17,000, Ronald H. Robnett, assistant graduate manager, stated yesterday, and all indications point to the presence of close to that amount for next Saturday's game with Oregon State.

No definite figures as to the number of tickets already sold were given by Robnett, but the statement was made that "sales were very good." It was pointed out that many good seats are yet available, including 2000 covered reserved seats at $2.50, and six or seven hundred unreserved seats.

Many covered seats were added to the reserved section this year when 2000 at the north end of the field were covered over this summer.

All-Campus Free Hop Is Slated for 9 Tonight At McArthur Court

With only four days left before the annual noise parade, first feature of the Oregon Homecoming program, men's living organizations are urged to brush up on spirit, drag out clean pajamas, and to search the country for noise-making apparatus.

The pajama parade will be held for the first time in several years; however, it was once a traditional feature of Homecoming events. Because of this, students are asked to cooperate in making it as successful as those held by the returning alumni in their student days.

Plans for the noise parade have been delayed to insure continuous and thorough preparation, according to Ferd Fletcher, who is in charge of the floats. Houses will start organizing tomorrow, following the announcement of pairings and house representatives. This will assure the participants of uniform, and fair competition.

Each float will be limited to $10 for expenses. They will be judged, and awards will be presented on merit of volume of noise.
