

Orient Excursion In 1932 To Be Led By Harold Noble

Professor Well Acquainted With East; Students To Get Background

A student tour to the Orient next summer, under the head of Dr. Harold J. Noble, assistant professor of history in the University, will start either on June 12 from Los Angeles or on June 17 from San Francisco on board the new palatial S. S. President Hoover of the Dollar line, according to an announcement given by the American Express company, business managers of the tour.

The tour is offered with a view to giving students and others interested in Oriental history a real background of their studies. The management points out that the travel study will enable the tourists to see actually what is often referred to as the place where the future of the world lies. It explains that in no other part of the world have historical relics been more carefully preserved than in China and Japan, not as museum pieces, but as objects of daily use, whether in the form of customary chop-stick, in a gay funeral procession, or in the statuary of a Buddhist temple.

Dr. Harold J. Noble, organizer and conductor of the tour was born in and spent more than half of his life in various parts of Asia. He is author of numerous historical articles on the Far East; was a lecturer in Far Eastern history during 1930 at the University of California; and now occupies a similar position at the University of Oregon.

The extension division of the University of California has authorized Dr. Noble to give a two unit credit course in Asiatic history in connection with the tour he is leading. He will conduct a series of lectures and discussion groups on cultural history of China and Japan, and on International Relation in the Far East during the crossings of the Pacific ocean. The course, however, may be taken with or without credit.

ALPHA DELTA PI—2
If a new song sweeps across the campus of Oregon, its source can be traced to the Alpha Delta Pi house. The A. D. Pi house has received the first copy that came off the press of George M. Cohan's song entitled "Father of the Land We Love," written for the George Washington bi-centennial.

Evans To Include Three Negro Spirituals Sunday

John Stark Evans will include three negro spirituals in his twilight organ recital program this Sunday. The first two numbers, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "Keep Me From Sinking," are arranged by Diton. "Deep River," the next number, was arranged by Evans and will be interpreted in an arrangement including a male quartet.

Other numbers are "Andante Con Moto," which is the last movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," the first having been played by Mr. Evans in last Sunday's recital; "Abentee" by Robert Schumann, and "Finale" by Douglas.

'Oregon's Grand Old Man' May Attend Alumni Lunch

Dr. John Straub, emeritus dean of men, has been invited to the alumni luncheon Saturday as an honor guest of the alumni association. "I am going to accept the invitation if it is possible for me to get there," said Dr. Straub, "but I also want to watch our boys win the football game in the afternoon, so I may have to reserve my strength. I will be at the luncheon if I possibly can."

State—"The Bat Whispers," and Chester Morris. Showing for the last time today.

Scintillating drama of modern love and marriage is offered in "Lover Come Back," which is showing at the Heilig for the last time today. Constance Cummings, Betty Bronson, and Jack Mulhall are in the leading parts. Here is a thoroughly interesting film story, production and acting. How does a "young modern" react when her lover jilts her for what he considers a sweet old-fashioned girl? Around this ultra sophisticated situation a quick moving screen story is built.

A stellar cast of players is assembled in the thrill-o-drama, "Hell Bent for Frisco," an exciting story of a newspaper reporter's crusade against gangsters, is coming to the Heilig for a two-day run tomorrow.

"The Secret Six," sensational drama of American city politics and the underworld, is the attraction which is opening at the Colonial for today and Saturday. Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, John Mack Brown, and Jean Harlow, head the cast as leading roles. The picture unfolds an astounding tale based on actualities of modern American life.

"Touchdown," opening its two-day run at the McDonald today has Richard Arlen, Jack Oakie, Peggy Shannon and Regis Toomey for the cast of the greatest foot-

Contest for High School Papers Is Continued Here

Sigma Delta Chi Sponsors Competition Formerly Held With Meet

In order to keep up the interests of journalism or newspaper work as a whole in the high schools of Oregon, the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, has taken over the contest previously held in conjunction with the annual high school press conference held on the campus. Through the ruling of the state board of higher education, the conference sponsored by the school of journalism had to be discontinued.

The contest will be continued on the same plan as it was last year, with the high school publications sending in their issues for judging. In taking over the contest, Sigma Delta Chi has established a free criticism service in aiding the high school publications along in their various problems. The contest, which will require three consecutive issues of the individual paper, will be held some time in the spring.

Bob Allen and Jack Bauer, members of the journalistic professional, have direct charge of this service and the contest. The five cups which are awarded annually will be awarded again this year.

The cups awarded are as follows: Arnold Bennett Hall cup, given for the best all-around high school newspaper in the state. Among the schools with over 500 enrollment the Eugene Guard cup is given for excellence. Papers with fewer than 500 students will vie for the Eugene Register cup, given to the best judged paper in the ball picture ever to be made. A really notable list of stars who are really football players constitute the roster of actors. Arlen is an old former player, Howard Jones of the University of Southern California, Russ Saunders, Morley Drury, Jesse Hibbs, all U. S. C. All-Americans, are a few of the more famous players.

"The Bat Whispers," starring Chester Morris, is showing at the State theatre for the last time today.

"The Man From Death Valley," starring Tom Tyler, opens at the State for Saturday only. This picture breaks away completely from the hackneyed plot of the brave cowhand who rescues a beautiful girl in the midst of a cattle stampede, giving the audience in its place a thrilling story of a mysterious rider, in the person of Tom Tyler, who comes to a small town to rob a bank, woo a girl and make a daring get-away.

four years of college training. There would then be a small percentage of college students who would receive a diploma cum laude, and then the great majority would receive a certificate for four years of residence at the University. "Professors do not like to give grades," Dr. Hodge continued. "Grades are merely the idea of the students. By my plan, students could come to class or not—just as they saw fit—and it would be up to them whether they got anything from their education or not."

JEFF BEATS GRANT 12 TO 0
PORTLAND, Nov. 11.—Jefferson high school cinched their hold on the interscholastic grid championship today when they defeated Grant high school, 12 to 0, in the Multnomah stadium. The Democrats have but one more game, with Commerce. A large crowd attended today's game.

Hodge Approves Of No Grade Idea For College Class

"Our present educational system is wrong," says Dr. E. T. Hodge of the geology department. "Any student can listen to a professor and memorize his lectures and fire the same information back to him in an examination, but not every student does really get something from college that is going to help him in later life.

"Some of our Phi Beta Kappas are merely nitwits with a tentative mind. I can't see that it does anyone a great deal of good to be able to write an 'A' paper on an examination if they are not really benefited by their education."

Instead of the mid-term and term examinations Dr. Hodge would substitute a final comprehensive examination at the end of small high school field, and the school having the best array of school news notes in the local paper will be awarded the Harris Ellsworth cup. The best mimeographed paper, from the standpoint of content, will compete for the Eric W. Allen cup, and the best mechanical makeup will receive the W. E. Finzer company trophy. This is the fourth year this contest has been held.
