

Faculty To Give Point System Consideration

Requirement Revisions To Be Effected

Perplexing Question of Computing Average May Be Settled

That problem which has been perplexing students ever since the new grade system was announced early in the term—"How are grade points to be figured and what will requirements be?"—will probably be decided at the faculty meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in 110 Johnson hall.

Restatement of faculty regulations covering the granting of more than 16 hours credit, the junior certificate and the bachelor's degree in the light of the new grading system is to be the main point of business.

Will Consider Points

The first item to come up will be the computing of grade points. Under the plan of five passing grades, five points were given from a I, and one point for a V. Whether to continue this method and give four points for an A and one for a D will be the question before the faculty. No point is given for a D at other institutions.

What average will be required for the granting of more than 16 hours' credit will be the second point for consideration. This will primarily be a problem of interpreting the former III average required in the new letters. It is expected that a certain grade point average will be required.

Words To Be Altered

Wording of requirements for the junior certificate will be re-expressed under the third item to be taken up. At present it is required that "70 or more term hours be completed with a grade of IV or better." This is also expected to be reworded in terms of grade points.

Whereas the old requirement for graduation specified "186 term-hours, of which 140 must be with the grade of IV or better," it is expected that the new regulation will specify "the grade of C or better," though this might also be translated into a grade-point average.

Investigations Made

It is understood that the academic requirements, scholarship, faculty legislation and institutional research committees have been making extensive investigations of the practices in other educational institutions and will have recommendations to make in the light of the information thus gained.

Uniformity with other institutions was the aim sought in making the change from the five to four grade systems. It is expected that other changes will be in the same line.

Landsbury Is Non-Committal On Orchestra Appearances

"How did those music tests come out, Dean? I mean the ones you invented last year, and made me take every time I came up here to get any news." The Emerald reporter was at it again.

"Ask the psychology department. Have a cigar—next time. All out, or I'd give you one, I feel that good-natured today." Dean Landsbury looked good-natured, too.

"What can you tell me about the concert Thursday night?"

"Ask Rex Underwood."

"Can you tell me anything about anything today?" The reporter had been sent out to get a story, and he was going to get it.

"Why don't you ask me about something I know?" the dean parried. "I'm going to play the Mozart concerto in D minor with the orchestra, but that's not much. It's not showy, as many concertos are. The piano is only one instrument in the orchestra, not a solo instrument as in Rachmaninoff or Liszt works. The D minor is the best of Mozart's works, many people think, and I'm going to try to play it as Mozart himself would have wanted me to play it—the way he wrote it. That means that it will be graceful, tuneful, lively. There's little thunder in Mozart,

Campus Will Give Team Big Sendoff At Villard Today

A HUGE rally will be held today at 12:30 at the Villard station to give the team a good send-off for the game Saturday with the U. C. L. A. Bruins, the "babies of the conference," in the Olympic stadium at Los Angeles. A battle is expected when the teams clash.

This will be the last send-off rally for the team this year, as they will remain in California for the Thanksgiving game with St. Mary's at San Francisco.

Unless present arrangements are changed, the rally will be at Villard station. If the plans are altered, the rally committee will let the various living organizations and campus authorities know of the change.

The University band will also be out to give the team the last taste of campus spirit they will receive before their California invasion and the end of the season.

The purpose of the committee is to investigate various phases in student government at other schools with the view toward furtherance of intrastudent body relations at the University of Oregon.

Seabeck Theme Features Meeting Topic of Y.W.C.A.

L. Anderson, Conference Executive, Appears Before Group

The "Seabeck Idea" was the theme for the second meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Upperclass commission meeting, held last night at the bungalow.

As this group has chosen Seabeck for its project, the program last night dealt with its different phases. Leila Anderson, traveling secretary for the Episcopal student organization and member of the Seabeck executive committee, spoke on the general topic of Seabeck.

Helen Chaney, president of the Y. W. C. A., and several others who have been to Camp Seabeck portrayed something of its atmosphere and background.

Elizabeth Scruggs gave a reading, and Nancy Thompson led Seabeck songs.

Evangeline Miller, assisted by Clare Maertens, was in charge of the program.

Virginia Hartje, president of the commission, urged that all girls co-operate in making this group more powerful and successful.

Hall Heads Research on Student Government

Body To Offer Suggestions After Year of Study on College Problems

The appointment of a committee to work in conjunction with the National Student Federation of America to study problems in student government was announced today by Brian Minnaugh, student body president. Robert Hall, president of the junior class, was named chairman of the body, and those working under him are Ellen Sersanous, secretary; Ned Kinney, Fred Hellberg, Carson Mathews, Hal Short, Kenneth McKean, Ed Bolds, and John Marrs.

The purpose of the committee is to investigate various phases in student government at other schools with the view toward furtherance of intrastudent body relations at the University of Oregon.

Will Study Problems

The group will receive correspondence from the National Student Federation and will study such problems as the University of Southern California is confronted with, the sale of student body tickets through an expensive campaign rather than as a requirement for entrance to the University.

Fuller cooperation to the local body has been extended by the Pacific Coast Student Presidents' association, comprising the student body leaders of the major universities on the coast. All data will be checked by both organizations, and the results of the survey, along with recommendations for changes in the University of Oregon, will be presented at the close of the year.

Mimnaugh Favors Plan

"This movement will present a decided advance in the student relations problem and, we expect, will lead the way for better student leadership on the coast. There are several similar bodies operating in eastern schools, where marked improvements have been noted," stated Mimnaugh.

Thermostat for Measuring Low Temperature Installed

New Piece of Equipment Added To Chemistry Laboratory

A new piece of equipment known as a low temperature thermostat was recently installed in the laboratories of the chemistry department, to be used in the continuation of the studies on gels and properties of gelatin systems, according to Leo Friedman, assistant professor of chemistry.

It is necessary that the temperature should be controlled, and with the aid of this new thermostat, it will be possible to maintain a constant temperature at any point below room temperature. This is accomplished by placing the expansion coil of a Fridgidaire compressor in a well insulated tank of water and controlling the stopping and starting of the cooling system with electrical temperature regulator.

With this addition to the other thermostatic equipment already possessed, the laboratory is now equipped to carry on these gel studies over a complete temperature range.

Stephen D. Coleman and Drew W. Perkins, students doing graduate work in the department, are assisting Mr. Friedman in this gelatine research.

Lage, Lyon Play For Music Fans At Auditorium

Before a small yet attentive audience last night another student recital was presented, this one given by Norma Lyon and Lenore Lage. For the most part the selections were such as to show the performers' ability to the best advantage.

Mozart's Sonata in A Major was the first number interpreted by Miss Lyon, a pupil of Jane Thacher, and was followed by Liszt's "Consolation." Both compositions were rendered with feeling and surety of touch which made them pleasing to the auditors.

Miss Lage's first group included "Selve Amiche," Caldera, "Se tu m'ami," "Pargolesi," and "Chivvula Zingarella," by Paisiello. The clarity of tone and apparent ease with which these difficult pieces were accomplished was a credit both to the singer and to her instructor, Mr. Bryson.

As might have been expected, the scintillating "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler, and the melodious "Naiads at the Spring," by Paul Juon, were the selections which seemed most pleasing to the audience. This was due partly to the intrinsic harmony of these master compositions, and largely to Norma Lyons' skill in developing and bringing it out. Lenore Lage seemed to please most with her charming song, "If I Were a Rose," a composition of Hesselberg's.

Alice Holmbach was accompanist to Miss Lage. The next recital will be that of Miss Lois Johnson, another student of Jane Thacher, some time next week.

He has traveled extensively and is well acquainted, particularly in the Balkan areas."

The Hungarian railroad man has been in the United States but a few months, but he speaks English fluently, Professor Morris added. Reports from other International Relations clubs which have sponsored his address are enthusiastic in their praise of the speaker.

Russian Student Here Is Making Asia Relief Map

Andrew Isotoff Works in Special English Course

Andrew Isotoff, a Russian youth who is taking special work in the English department, is at present engaged in making a large relief map of Asia. Mr. Isotoff has taken several courses in geography here at the University of Oregon. Much of the information that he is using in his map is not written in English but must be translated from Russian and other languages. He is spending part of his time making translations from Russian for S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English.

In making this map Isotoff is using the latest geographical material, some of which has to be translated from material published in other languages.

Following the World war Mr. Isotoff traveled through Asia and made a study of this country, thus obtaining much information helpful to him in the construction of his map.

Dean Faville Announces Pre-Registration Period

Dates Are November 16 to 25; Rush Eliminated

The school of business administration is holding a pre-registration period for winter term, it was announced yesterday by Dean David E. Faville. This pre-registration period started Monday, November 16, and will last until November 25.

All business students are given the opportunity to avoid the rush of winter term registration and see their advisers during the next two weeks. The students who hold their consultations now will merely have to have their schedules checked on winter term registration day.

Since there are 500 students majoring in business administration, this system of pre-registration will tend to lessen the difficulties of registration week and make consultations between advisers and students more satisfactory. Appointments for students will be arranged in 205 Commerce.

Oregonian Publishes Article On World Expense by Mez

A chart prepared by Dr. John R. Mez, professor of economics and political science in the University, from figures taken from the League of Nations armaments yearbook in which are represented the expenditures for the last fiscal year of the world's 40 leading nations, shows that the total amount spent is $4,157,931,958, and that the United States leads all the nations in military expenditures with the sum of $707,425,000.

The chart was printed in last Sunday's Morning Oregonian and was accompanied by an article by Professor Mez. In this article, he pointed out that the sum of $707,425,000 spent by the United States alone, does not include pensions, nor interest payments on war debts, nor appropriations for veterans, nor the unpaid war loans given to Europe. However, the high figure of American military expenditures is explained, to some extent, by the higher prices prevailing in this country, he said.

"It is seen in the chart that Russia follows in second place with $578,000,000. France is third

O.S.C. Denies Rumors About Ineligible Men

Stories Said To Have Started Downtown

Hammer, Byington, Rust, Englestad Included In Charges

By WALT BAKER

Downtown rumors that came to a head last night concerning the reputed ineligibility of four Oregon State first-string football men were refuted en toto by officials at the State college.

The facts of the story of the four-year competition of Bill Byington, Buck Hammer, Reg Rust, and Ed Englestad, O. S. C. regulars, while they were released from University officials, or anyone having connections with the school.

In a telephone conversation with the Barometer last night, information given from there refuting the charges was as follows:

Bill Byington, Ed Englestad and Buck Hammer have just finished their third year of varsity competition and any information given out in Corvallis would seem to discharge all clouds hanging over these three players.

Reg Rust played at Santa Anna Junior college in 1927 and at Eastern Oregon Normal in La Grande in 1928; and laid out his first year at Oregon State (1929) and played for that school in 1930 and 1931, according to the word from Corvallis.

Ed Englestad says that this is only his third year of varsity competition at Oregon State and that he has not attended any other like school. Oregon State officials were unaware of the fact that he was included in the group of questionable players.

The alleged records that formed the basis of the rumors are as follows:

American Speech Prints Article by Leavitt Wright

The October number of "American Speech" contains a short article written by Professor Leavitt O. Wright of the department of Romance languages. The article deals with the phrase "and what have you?", so current in the Northwest.

Mr. Wright took part in the discussion of a paper by Professor Pound of the University of Nebraska which was read at the annual meeting of the Linguistic Society of America held in Washington, D. C., last December, and this contribution presents his argument against the contention of a Far Eastern professor that the phrase under discussion is the equivalent of "gadget."
