

Five Teams Still Undefeated In Hotly Contested Race For National Gridiron Favors

Notre Dame, Harvard, Tulane, Tennessee, and Northwestern Remain Unbeaten

This year the mythical football championship of the nation will be decided by teams from the Middle East, and South West. For the first time in many years the Pacific coast has no formidable contender for this title.

Southern California might prove a stumbling block for any team in the country, but the Trojans were defeated early in the season by St. Mary's, who has since dropped games to U. C. L. A. and the Los Angeles Olympic club. Howard Jones' men will be better tested when they meet the Ramblers of Notre Dame in the country's gridiron classic at Chicago, Saturday. Notre Dame is the favorite in this game, and appears to be out after her third national title in as many years. "Hunk" Anderson has kept up the old "Rockne" spirit in the Irish this year, and since being held to a scoreless tie by Northwestern early in the season, they have ploughed through Drake, Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania, and Navy in easy style.

Wildcats Contenders
Dick Hanley's Northwestern Wildcats are also playing in great style and will have something to say about who is finally awarded the mythical honor. The Purple Horde was given a scare by Indiana last Saturday when they barely eked out a 7-6 win.

In the South two strong elevens are beating down everything in their respective paths. Tulane came to the fore last Saturday when she upset the fast-stepping Georgians, 20-7. The untied and undefeated Tennessee eleven has been rolling up overwhelming victories all year and sends a challenge to any team who wishes to contest their rights for supremacy. Harvard Outstanding

The East's outstanding aggregation of gridirers come from Harvard. The Crimson ball-toters have had several close squeezes this season, but have yet to be tied or defeated. They sounded their warning signal to the rest of the country when they overwhelmed the strong Texas eleven, 35-7.

With the season nearly over and only one or two games remaining upon the schedules of the leaders, eliminations are coming quickly, and it is doubtful if by next week more than three of the above teams are still on the top of the heap.

Co-op Library Receives New Shipment of Books
Observance of National Book Week, November 15-21

The book balcony at the Co-op store has recently received a new shipment of books and is now ready to observe National Book week.

November 15 to 21 has been set aside this year as National Book week. This observation is the 13th of its kind and originated as Children's Book week.

Many of the books in the new Co-op shipment are of the popular $1 editions. The book balcony tries to serve both the faculty and the students in the choice of reading material. The balcony maintains the High Hat library and loans books to its patrons at a reasonable rate.

Ducks Leave For Contest With Uclans

Thirty-Two Men Entrain For Los Angeles

Bruins Favorites in South To Beat Oregonians Next Saturday

Bound for Los Angeles and the home of the eagerly awaiting U. C. L. A. Bruins, Coach Doc Spears, 32 Oregon football players, Assistant Coach Bill Reinhart and Student Manager Jack Dant left Eugene yesterday noon. The team will arrive in Los Angeles Friday morning in time for a workout before facing Bill Spaulding's Uclans.

After their startling upset over St. Mary's last week the Bruins are rated on even terms with the Webfeet. Enthusiastic backers there are going so far as to make the Uclans the favorites, according to reports from the Daily Bruin. Last year the Ducks managed to edge out only a 7 to 0 victory.

Bruins Look for Win
With their first major victory tucked away the Bruins are looking for a conference win. For over three years Coach Bill Spaulding has been building, hoping for a winning eleven. Bruin backers believe that the long awaited event has arrived and the Uclans are due for a win.

Doc Spears probably has some very different ideas for while he was worried, he let it be known that he had plenty of confidence in his young Webfeet. Oregon's one great advantage over the Uclans should be in the forward wall. In every game played this season the Webfoot line has shown great defense powers.

Saturday's game, which will be played at the Olympic stadium in Los Angeles, will be the feature event of the U. C. L. A. homecoming celebration. Attendance at the game is expected to be more than 50,000. Despite Oregon's failure to show much against the Trojans, Los Angeles fans are anticipating a close battle.

House Standings Based On Median Point Average

Faculty To Decide Requirements For Junior Certificate

The median grade point averages will be the ratings upon which the University will rank living organizations as to term standings on the grade list this year. This was the decision of the institutional research committee Tuesday afternoon.

The grade point average will be figured by dividing the number of points made by the individual by the number of hours carried. The entire list of house members is then arranged according to averages, from highest to the lowest, and the particular grade point average which is in the very center of the list is the median, and indicates the house rating.

Under the old system ratings, a great number of high grades and, conversely, a large number of low grades, influenced the house standing by sheer number of points. Now, however, the rating is distinctly qualitative rather than quantitative and is indicative of the majority of members of the organization.

Questions of requirements for granting of the junior certificate and degrees, for credit for over 16 hours, and the numbers of hours below average which are to be allowed, will all be taken up at the faculty meeting today.

Two of the teams favored to cop the intramural basketball crown entertained on-lookers yesterday. One squad, Sigma Alpha Mu, eked out a victory by very small margin, while the other, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon quintet, captured a contest in easy style. The other entertainment was furnished by Chi Psi and Sherry Ross hall hoopers.

Overconfidence almost lost a game for the S. A. M. casaba chasers. The underrated Theta Chi hoopers played the Sammies off their feet in the first half and took the lead, but with an upset victory almost within their grasp, the Theta Chi team faltered and lost, 13 to 16. Their victory gave S. A. M. the title in League IV.

S. A. E. Defeat Zeta
S. A. E. took the Zeta hall team to the cleaners and loafed to a victory, 30 to 11. Paul Bale went on a scoring spree to score 14 S. A. E. counters.

Chi Psi checked in with a rout over the Sherry Ross hall basket-overs to the tune of 25 to 7.

Golden Bears Will Be at Full Strength For Stanford Tilt

Ancient Rivals To Meet in 37th 'Big Game' at Palo Alto

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Berkeley, Nov. 18.—For the first time in more than a month of football, the University of California will be able to muster all of the members of the first varsity eleven to oppose Stanford at Palo Alto this Saturday when the ancient rivals meet in the 37th annual "big game."

Barring unexpected injuries during the few remaining days of practice, the Golden Bears will be present in full strength at the Stanford stadium.

Injuries which have been more slow-mending than serious have handicapped the Bears in nearly every game of the season. The Washington State game of October 17, was the last occasion when all of the Bear regulars were in the lineup. Since that time, injuries from week to week have caused frequent changes in lineup plans.

Schaldach May Start
The one possible exception this week is at left half. George Watkins, who broke a bone in his foot a month ago, is a questionable starter. Unless he proves conclusively this week that he is ready to go, Hank Schaldach may start in his place. Schaldach, however, has played as a regular in the last two games.

"Rusty" Gill, slightly injured in the Idaho game last Saturday, will be ready for action, according to Trainer Charles Volz. Gill suffered injury to a nerve in his shoulder. He was the only Bear to be taken out of last week's game because of injury.

While Gus Castro, regular full-back, was out of the lineup last week, still nursing a leg injury, it is expected that he will be ready for action Saturday. Coach W. A. "Bill" Ingram will be able to choose between two quarterbacks, Joe Smith and Ed Kirwan, with Smith apparently holding a slight edge on the starting honors.

IN THE PRESS BOX with Walt Baker

THE latest flareup on eligibility which seems to be just one of a series that have been running rampant around the conference this year, and now hitting at the eligibility of four Oregon State football men, may or may not be just good copy for newspapers.

In a way it's too bad that a thing of the kind had to pop up just at the time when three of the men in question, Byington, Hammer, and Englestad, have finished their collegiate competition for the State college—with the exception of the extra game with Utah. Whether the allegations be true or not, it's a tough break for three men who have performed athletic service in the capacity that they have to leave intercollegiate athletics under a cloud—Oregon State's conference season is finished and no ruling of the committee can change the future competition of these men with the exception of Reg Rust. All this, of course, if the instigators of the deal are barking up the wrong tree.

TRUE OR NOT?
But then again, if the allegations are true, it looks rather bad for the Oregon State officials who denied the story in such an emphatic fashion. Every one communicated with at O. S. C. denied any particle of truth in the matter. Schissler, head coach, swore up and down that it was a case of mistaken identity and that the Oregon State outfit ran in so many substitutes in that double-header four years ago that, in all probability, the numbers had been mixed, thus giving the boys their names in the files of the newspapers. Carl Lodell, graduate manager, Barometer officials, and, in fact, everyone connected directly or otherwise with the case in question, refuted the rumor to the last word. If the charges are well founded and conclusive proof is shown of the violation of the rules, our Northern neighbors will have quite a jack-pot to bluff out.

Perhaps the denials are just the usual war-cry in an attempt to bluff the matter out and to facilitate the shedding of a few alligator tears and then there may be justification. Whatever the deal, it's rather a bad case to handle just at the present time, when Oregon State is about to lock horns with the University of Utah for the benefit of charity. Benefit, ineligibility, charity, and protests! What a jumble of terms to mix in the same breath!

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS DIM
Seems like a tough winter for Bill Reinhart's basketball team for the coming season. Last year, things weren't quite as good as they might have been—Oregon won six and lost 10 games—but the coming season has even a less promising outlook, if such a thing is possible. To begin with, only four lettermen are in school at the present time: Roberts, Stevens, Levoff, and Calkins. Keenan and Dolp dropped out of school, and it is unlikely that they will return to put on the Oregon uniform for the basketball season.

Looks like these are lean years for basketball at the University unless Reinhart can pull one of the things that he is noted for, namely, put a good team on the floor, no matter what kind of material he has to work with. This early in the season, it is pretty hard to judge just what the new material will turn out that has not been heard from as yet.

Much of the potentialities of the 1932 team will come to light during the Christmas holidays, when the ball team is slated to play in San Francisco by way of a warm-up for the season to come.
