Yeomen Win Hoop Playoff Tilt From SAE

Victors Stage Upset in Torrid Game, 23-21

Conquerors Will Meet ATO Next Monday for Donut Championship

FINAL GAME

November 30

Yeomen vs. A. T. O.

Another upset answered "Present!" in the intramural basketball championship playoffs yesterday, when the Yeomen came from behind fighting hard to wrest a victory out of the S. A. E. squad's hands by a score of 23 to 21 and dazed the onlookers who had installed the victims as the winners of the title. It was the second upset in three games, A. T. O. having conquered a favorite, S. A. M., on Monday.

S. A. E. Starts Strong

The S. A. E.'s commenced activities of a whirlwindish hue and bewildered the Yeomen with a brilliant offensive to take a lead of 11 to 5 at the completion of the first quarter. With the aid of thrilling and daring long shots, the Yeomen recuperated during the second period and tallied eight points while allowing their foes to count five, making the score 16 to 13 in favor of the S. A. E.'s.

With Ingram Kjosness, Yeomen center, doing all of his scoring in the third quarter, the Yeomen came within one point of a tie with their opponents, but Ted Hansen, S. A. E. center, put a foul shot through the hoop just before the end of the period to give a slim lead, 19-17.

Yeomen Overcome Lead

Early in the fourth session, Holden, Yeomen guard, converted a foul shot to knot the count at 19-all. Both teams were fighting to get the ball. Kjosness looped a Yeomen field goal through the hoop to give his team an advantage of two points. Jack Robertson, S. A. E. guard, converted a foul to put the count at 21 to 20 for the Yeomen. Chip Chatterton,

Gael Guard!

BILL FISCHER - GUARD

Fischer, Slip Madigan's choice to fill one of the guard posts, will have his hands full tomorrow when Mikulak, Temple and the other Webfoot backs start pounding the line.

Yeomen forward, with less than a minute to go, manufactured another two tallies. Robertson then again made a foul shot good. Before the teams could line up for the tipoff, the whistle sounded the death knell of S. A. E. hopes.

The championship tilt will be played next Monday, November 30, with the Yeomen and A. T. O. battling for the scepter.

The lineups:

Yeomen (23)	S. A. E. (21)
Holden (6).....F	(10) B. Hansen
Chatterton (5).....F	Bale
Kjosness (6).....C	(3) T. Hansen
Wicks (4).....G	(6) Robertson
Thom (2).....G	(2) Walton

Aviation Students Show Films on Flying School

Use of Navigation, Meteorology is Stressed in Pictures

The aviation class under Dean David E. Faville and the geology class of Professor W. D. Smith were shown four reels of motion pictures Monday morning at 11 o'clock by A. Becker, representing the Boeing School of Flying at Oakland, California.

The pictures showed various phases of the Boeing school, types of student work, and also the pictures of the famous transcontinental flight from Oakland to New York. Mr. Becker pointed out the necessity of studying the two branches of work here in navigation and meteorology. Both of these courses are given here on the campus. Professor Smith gives an introductory course in both navigation and meteorology. Professor Albert E. Caswell is instructor in an advanced course in meteorology, and Professor Edward H. McAllister gives a course in advanced navigation.

All-Star Donut Hoop Teams Are Selected

3 Emerald Honorary Squads Chosen

Much Difficulty Is Found In Attempt To Divide Players in Groups

By JOE SASLAVSKY
EMERALD ALL-STAR DONUT BASKETBALL TEAMS

First Team
Forwards—Kjosness, Yeomen; Rotenberg, S. A. M.
Center—T. Hansen, S. A. E.
Guards—Robertson, S. A. E.; Donin, S. A. M.

Second Team
Forwards—Bale, S. A. E.; McKim, A. T. O.
Center—Stahl, Delt.
Guards—Wicks, Yeomen; Knowlton, A. T. O.

Three Emerald all-star intramural basketball teams emerged as a result of a huddle in which three members of the physical education department and a sports writer on the Emerald participated.

Three members of the first team were chosen without any dissent—Ingram Kjosness of the Yeomen at one forward post, Ted Hansen of S. A. E. at the tipoff position, and Jack Robertson of S. A. E. at one of the guard stations. They were easily among the outstanding men participating in the donut hoop tourney. For the other forward and guard places, Morris Rotenberg and Ike Donin of S. A. E. entered the select domain of the first team.

Difficulty Encountered

As for the other two all-star squads decided upon, the choice of players was far from being a simple matter.

For the second team the following players emerged as outstanding after much argument. For forwards, Paul Bale of S. A. E. and Don McKim of A. T. O. were chosen. Homer Stahl, Delt tipoff man, won his position without much argument. When the scramble for the guard posts was over, Walt Wicks of the Yeomen and Chet Knowlton of A. T. O. had overthrown all pretenders to their throne on the second team.

Third Team Chosen

The third squad fell from the clouds of argument which by this time had filled the office of the men's gym. After bickering and compromising the team was fashioned as follows: B. Hansen of S.

The following hoopers were given honorable mention: Hoag, Delt; Kafoury, Omega hall; Claug, Phi Delt; Reynolds, A. T. O.; Lake, A. T. O.; Ray, A. T. ## Philomath Meeting Hears Speech by Dean Parsons

Speaking on community organization, Dr. Philip A. Parsons, dean of the school of applied social science, appeared before a community meeting at Philomath last night.

This is the first of a series of talks on this subject which Dr. Parsons is to give at various towns throughout the state. On December 1, he will speak to the Kiwanis club at Ashland. The next day he will go to Grants Pass as the guest speaker of the Rotary club. On December 3 he will complete his schedule with an appearance at Gravel Ford, a town near Myrtle Point.

Freshman Hoop Squad Answers Call of Callison

Actual Practice To Start Soon; Many High School Stars Turn Out

Fresh basketball made its debut for the season yesterday afternoon when Frank Callison, coach, called the aspirants to the igloo. He sized up the group and told them what was to be expected when practice gets into actual swing next Monday.

Approximately fifty men answered the first call and many more are expected to be on hand when actual work begins after the Thanksgiving holidays. Warning the men about their scholastic standing, Callison told the group that many prospective men are lost each season because of this difficulty. The squad will be cut from time to time and after the last cut has been made 15 basket-ers will represent the Frosh hopes. The cuts in the squad will come gradually and every man will have the chance to prove his ability before being discovered.

A number of outstanding high school stars of past years were present at this first meeting, including Malcom Bauer, a maple court flash from Pendleton; Wesley Clausen, all-city from Portland last year; Ralph Terjeson, another member of the state championship team from Pendleton; Ted Hansen, lanky star from Blaine, Washington; and numerous other likely players from various parts of Oregon.

Freshman Coach Callison impressed on those present at the meeting that past records would not assure anyone of a place on his team.

Washington to Have Strong Hoop Quintet

Coast Champs Out for Crown Again

Swanson, West Only Vets Lost From 1931 First String Five

By HUBERT BLONK
Sports Editor of U. of W. Daily

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—"As good as last year" is the best classifying phrase applicable to the University basketball team which Coach Hec Edmundson will put on the floor to meet all comers in this year's campaign.

As Edmundson's creation of last season captured the Pacific coast conference title, Edmundson the above statement bodes ill for all Husky competitors. Although feeling the loss of Hank Swanson, high-scoring, elongated all-coast center and Harold "Shorty" West, guard, Coach Edmundson has again fortified himself with quite an array of talent.

The pivot position will cause the Husky mentor the greatest amount of worry. At present he has only the lightweight Lloyd "Pinky" Nordstrom for that position, but when the grid year closes, Pete Antoncich, Jimmy Phelan's end, will put on his scanties and try to fill that berth.

Antoncich, standing six foot five, is a sharpshooter of the first water; last year, while ineligible, outscoring Capt. Swanson. His brother Mark, of the same height, and heavy-set, will try out for a forward berth and may show to advantage.

Returning from last year's first string are two more point-getters, Kline Swygard and John Fuller. Both have only had one year experience but it was a complete year, both starting in every game. Hal Lee, two year all-state prep, comes up from the Babes, and "Hec" will have a tough time keeping the tall boy out of a starting post.

Mentor Edmundson will carry a squad of 20 through the season. Those who are making and will make bids for a big "W" are, from the varsity; forwards, John Fuller, Kline Swygard, Frank McCartney, Jack Neff; center, Lloyd "Pinky" Nordstrom; guards, Capt. Ralph "Cat" Cairney, Bob Heaman, Ole

Hanson (now playing halfback on the football team) and Jack Anschutz.

From the championship frosh team: forwards, Hal Lee, Ed Noeker, Ed Ostling; center, Lloyd Vining; guards, Joe "Iron Man" Weber, Jack "Pepperbox" Hanover, and Tom Werner.

From the supervarsity, Mark Antoncich, the forward; Pete Antoncich, center; and Dick Scott, guard.

Six Men Will Play For Final Time in Gael Contest

Forsta, Schulz, Moeller, Parke, Erdley and Heyden Finish

Six men will don lemon-yellow uniforms for the last time tomorrow when the Webfeet meet St. Mary's at San Francisco in the last scheduled game of the current season. Those who will be playing their last game for Oregon are Forsta, Schulz, Moeller, Parks, Erdley, and Heyden. All but Heyden will have earned their third varsity letter when the present season is over. He will be eligible for his second "O."

Forsta, who is an Oregon product, is playing his third year at center. He has been filling the keystone position since Bun Stadelman was forced out of play with a broken ankle early in the 1929 season.

Captain Plays Last Game

Irv Schulz, who has captained the Webfeet through their present successful season, is rated as one of the best guards on the Coast. Irv played tackle until the coming of Doc Spears who has used him in the guard position for the last two seasons.

Moeller not only is one of Oregon's most reliable backs, but he is a Webfoot track star. Big Ed has played nearly every position in the backfield during his three years of competition, but his best work has been shown as blocking back this season. He played two years as regular fullback before playing in his present position.

"Choppie" Parke, who has often been termed "Oregon's ace in the hole," has certainly lived up to his name. He filled the shoes of Kitzmiller in last year's O. S. C. contest when the "Flying Dutchman" was kept out of the game by an injury, and was called upon this year to make a hurried trip to Los Angeles via aeroplane to play in

SEEMS that all this Oregon-Oregon State controversy has devolved into a little private mudslinging contest between the sport-editors of the publications of our two institutions. It doesn't make a whole lot of difference what our contemporary at Oregon State may think of us personally, but when he gets out into the field of something about which he apparently knows nothing and attempts to judge a man knowing his own game so far superior to himself, it's time for us to do a little something about it.

He states: "How can anyone expect Oregon to demonstrate a good brand of sportsmanship even if their coach doesn't?" And here is exactly where we come to bat. The incident is Spears' shoving a man from the opposing school away from the Oregon players' bench—a trivial incident upon which to take issue, in the first place.

Perhaps Mr. Douglass has never heard of football ethics—particularly the point in which an opponent is supposed to stay clear of the players' bench. It seems that he has because he mentioned the fact. So much for all that twaddle. Perhaps the injured Oregon State student will get conscious the next time and play ball according to Hoyle—but that crack about Spears' sportsmanship is entirely unprovoked—the sheep-dip over there must have affected his power for comparative reasoning.

INCONGRUITIES APPARENT

Certainly (some more for the Barometer) we hollered about the refereeing (but or NO but) it was a rather incongruous occurrence to happen when a Corvallis sport writer howled to the high heavens about the injustice Varnell has always done to O. S. C. in his officiating. The occurrences in the Oregon-Oregon State game would seem to cancel all the blatant remarks appearing in said "Orange Peelings"—the column where we noticed the tears shed. Corvallis must be running out of material to write about—or perhaps they are attempting to change the subject from the dirty washing that has recently been aired in public. Either is quite plausible.

OREGON WORKS ON PASS DEFENSE

Perhaps with the St. Mary's game coming up tomorrow, this occasion is a bit untimely for an explosion toward our Northern neighbors, but with a no-doubt inadequate reply off our minds we feel better.

Harry Van Dine, who helps Sam Wilderman in the University publicity here, wired us unsolicited the story about the St. Mary's six-year schedule with Oregon. The news was very welcome because the Thanksgiving-day game in San Francisco is just about getting to be a much-anticipated event here at Oregon. The Gaels and the Ducks always put on a good show when they meet, and this one tomorrow seems right down the same alley.

There's no injuries on either team to form an exception as a basis of comparison—both at the top of their respective forms. The Gael passing attack that has been so successful all season will, no doubt, be met with just the defense that will be able to do something about stopping it. Dr. Spears has spent no little part of the foregoing season in concentrating on a defense for just this team's passes and, if the thing works out like it happened in practice against the powerful freshman offensive, St. Mary's is going to have to resort to other means of crossing the Webfeet's goal line.
