

Idaho Grids For Tilts With Oregon Five

Vandals Drop Montana In Three Games Tall Men Make Optimistic Outlook for 1932 Hoop Season

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow.—(Special)—With a tough series of practice games out of the way, Coach "Rich" Fox, Vandal hoop mentor, is working his 1932 varsity basketball squad overtime in preparation for the opening of the conference season next Friday night when Idaho plays host to a traveling University of Oregon five.

The Vandals have just concluded a three-game series with Montana in which Fox's men came out on the long end of all the scores. The return of Pete Wicks, flashy letterman, who had been out of action with charley-horse has induced a new spark in the Vandal offense.

Tall Men Plentiful

The problem of securing tall men for basketball teams which is continually bothering every hoop coach seems to have solved itself, at least as far as Fox is concerned. His group of returning lettermen average six feet two inches in height and in addition he has Grenier, who is a six-footer, and McConnell and Herman, whose measure over the six-foot mark.

Grenier, a sophomore, is making a strong bid for the first string center berth and is in line to replace the veteran Parks for that position. Grenier tallied 17 points in the final Grizzly fray.

Vandals Hit Stride

The most effective lineup to date consists of Barrett and Lacey as forwards, Grenier in the pivot role and Herman and Wicks in the guard positions.

Although the Idaho quintet did not run up the score against the Grizzlies that Washington State did, Coach Fox thinks his men will be able to furnish plenty of competition for any combination Oregon will be able to place on the floor.

The Idaho team has improved rapidly since the opening contests and it is only in the Montana series that the Vandals began to function smoothly in an approach to mid-season form.

With the squad at full strength for the first time this year, Fox is ready for the invading Webfoots. The Oregonians will also tangle with Idaho Saturday night.

TEACHERS NUMEROUS

"For the first time in five years all persons signed up for practice teaching have returned," said Dr. Nelson L. Bossing of the education department. "No doubt the fact that teaching positions are at such a premium is responsible for this condition," he continued, "and there are at least 24 names on the waiting list ready to take any available job."

Hilton Law Prize Contest Subject Named by Hollis

Material To Be Discussion Of Article 8, Section 3, Oregon Constitution

The subject for this year's Hilton prize contest, open to all students of the University of Oregon school of law with a first prize of $50, was announced recently by Orlando J. Hollis in charge of the arrangements.

The contest will be an oral discussion of the proper interpretation of the following provision in article VII, section 3 of the Oregon constitution: "... no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of this state, unless the court can affirmatively say there is no evidence to support the verdict."

The contest this year will take place during the latter part of the winter term or early spring term, Professor Hollis stated.

The law school through a trust fund at its disposal is offering a second prize of $25 and a third prize of $15 in addition to the first prize given annually since 1923 by Frank H. Hilton, Portland attorney.

The present question, relating to a part of the constitution inaugurated by the people's initiative, is of interest through its application in practice as a provision to preserve a jury verdict against a court ruling in matters of fact.

Ex-Chemistry Professor To Talk on Leper Colony

Dr. H. I. Cole, former professor of chemistry at Oregon, will discuss his work at the Cullion leper colony in the Philippine islands, at the chemical seminar to be held today at 4:30 in room 103 McClure hall. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

For the past eight years, Dr. Cole has been chief chemist at the colony. He resigned recently because of ill health. He is visiting here before going to South Europe and Turkey, where he will spend some time. He was formerly an instructor in a Constantinople institute.

Clark Completes Term As Head of Association

American Historical Group Holds Convention in Berkeley

Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the University extension division, finished his year as president of the Pacific Coast branch of the American Historical Association when the organization met for its convention in Berkeley, California, December 29 and 30. Professor Edward M. Hulme, instructor in European history at Stanford University, was elected successor to Dr. Clark.

The Tuesday sessions included talks by both Dr. Clark and Professor Andrew Fish of the history department. Dr. Clark spoke on the "Manifest Destiny of the Pacific," and Professor Fish's paper was on "The Reputation of James Antony Froude."

Wednesday's elections gave Professor Fish a position on the organization's council for the coming year, and Dr. Clark was made a member of the board of editors for the new quarterly, the Pacific Historical Review, which will make its appearance in March of this year.

John T. Ganoe, associate professor of history, was also present and was a member of the program committee that planned the convention. The other two who attended were Dr. H. J. Noble of the history department, and John Cox, a graduate assistant.

conomic anarchy," as Reedy characterized it in his opening speech. No decision was made, as is usual in the pre-season forensic clashes, but the arguments of both teams were well presented, according to John L. Casteel, of the speech division, who was chairman of the debate.

Moss, first speaker for the Utah team, is chairman of the publications committee at the University of Utah in addition to his work in debate. Parkinson, a senior, is freshman debate coach.

Frosh To Have Hard Schedule For '32 Season

First Game With Salem Here Jan. 15

Other Games With O.S.C. Rooks, Jefferson and Medford

One week from next Friday evening the Oregon freshmen basketball five will embark upon its 1932 maple court campaign. On that night the frosh will tangle with Jefferson high of Portland at McArthur court in a game that promises to be a real test for Coach Callison's boys. The Democrats won the Portland interscholastic league title last year and have a fast looking outfit again this season.

On the following evening, January 16, the freshmen play Salem on the latter's floor. A month of hard games follows these two opening contests, including four tilts with the O. S. C. rooks. The yearlings from Corvallis have a big fast squad this year, and these games should be hard-fought ones.

Benson Unable To Play

Another team which will meet the frosh in the next month is the strong Medford five. A game was proposed with Benson Tech, favorites to win in the Portland interscholastic league this year, but the Techmen could not arrange for the contest because of conflicting league games.

Several dates are as yet open, however, and although the schedule as arranged will keep the yearlings busy, it is not yet complete.

Schedule Given

The schedule as released today follows:

January 15—Jefferson at Eugene.

January 16—Salem high at Salem.

January 22—Salem high at Eugene.

February 5—O. S. C. Rooks at Eugene.

February 6—O. S. C. Rooks at Corvallis.

February 12 and 13—Medford high at Medford.

February 19—O. S. C. Rooks at Eugene.

February 20—O. S. C. Rooks at Corvallis.

Kopy Krawl Promises To Be Best Ever Staged

event, said that plans were afoot to get the hottest and "nerziest" band possible to vend syncope for the wild rat-racing. The name of this organization, he revealed, will be announced at the first of next week.

Francis Mullins, in charge of features, announced that something new "and just a bit more dashing" in entertainment for the affair would be offered. "Something popping every minute—well, anyway, every two or three minutes," was his promise. He revealed that an entire skit, originated by Donald Confrey and directed by Louise Marvin, and which is to include dancing girls, quips, comedy, tragedy and a plan to cure the depression—all rolled into one, would be the headliner.

The decorations, according to Fred Meads, are to carry out the tradition of former Krawls and will be designed so that they will serve as excellent mementos for the guests to take home and put in the room as something to remember the dance by.

Vinton Hall and Barney Miller, in charge of publicity, revealed that plans were afoot for a series of circus parades and ballyhoo raffles in which the members of the organization will throw dignity to the winds and afford the campus a spectacle second only to the Krawl itself. "Wait'll you see Bob Holmes leading it" was the cryptic hint. In addition to this feature a number of other unusual and colorful "ballyhoo" stunts are being planned.

Roger Bailey has announced that the tickets will go on sale the first of the week. Speaking of his phase of the preparation, Bailey said: "This year I have endeavored to create something entirely different and colorful in the way of pastebards. We have gone to unusual cost and effort in preparing them for the students."

SCHWERING HONORED

Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women, was elected chairman of the deans of women and girls' advisors section of the Oregon Teachers' association, which met in Portland during vacation.

IN THE PRESS BOX

—With Walt Baker—

We'll try and keep out of the controversy, at least for the time being, that's going on about changing the name of old Oregon from Webfoots to something else—anything else—so seems the opinion of those concerned. Personally, we think that Pioneers is just a trifle old-mannish and gives the impression of a footsore, although rugged patriarch, with factual adornment similar to that sported by the House of David—and all the rest of it. Be that as it may, the main cog in the present athletic situation is Bill Reinhart's basketball team. The boys leave this afternoon for Moscow, Pullman, and Spokane for a five-game week on the road to open up the present conference season.

Perhaps in the past most of the student attention here at the University has been centered on the football teams going out over the country and bringing in the thing called money—and, of course, recognition—for Oregon. Practically nothing has been done in the way of campus interest to stimulate basketball. Yet, until the Spears' regime here, Oregon basketball had it all over football for finishing right up with the leaders.

These last couple of years have been tough going for the hoop sport, with the lack of financial income and ineligibility hitting pretty close to home, but they weren't by any means failures. In consideration of these factors involved, Reinhart has always managed to put out a team that wins over half of its games—and that's something in any league. The 1932 basketball squad is handicapped in much the same way as those in the past—comparatively short men. In this game, a six-foot man is at a disadvantage when put up against men like Antoncich of Washington, who is over six feet four; Gordon of Washington State, who is equally as tall; and Lewis of Oregon State, who measures 6 feet 4 1/2 inches. The tallest man on Oregon's starting lineup is Cap Roberts, center, who gets up to 6 feet 2 inches—by stretching a trifle—quite a handicap in height.

Perhaps the man on the squad who shows the most promise is Spook Robertson, sophomore forward, who has been doing lots of point-getting in the pre-season games. Robertson is over medium height, of natural basketball build and temperament, who fits into the Oregon (and not Pioneer) offensive perfectly with an uncanny shot from the side-court that's good for two points 60 per cent of the time.

The guard combination of Calkins and Levoff brings together the most experience of the team—both two-year lettermen and playing their last year for Oregon. Reserves include Jim Watts, Max Rubenstein, who has had two years of bench-sitting experience, and Red Rogers, forwards. Others who may break into Reinhart's first string lineup are Chuck Wishard, Gib Olinger, Cliff Potter, and Homer Stahl.

YWCA Bureau Reports Gain in Co-ed's Earnings

$1565 More Made Last Term Than Year Ago

Figures released recently by Margaret Edmunson, Y. W. C. A. secretary, show that an increase of $1565 was earned last quarter over the amount earned in the fall term a year ago by girls employed through the local Y. W. C. A.

The records for the last year show a steady increase in the total amount earned by University women through the Y. W. C. A. employment bureau. In the year 1927-28, $13,941 was earned; in 1928-29, $14,248; in 1929-30, $15,422; and in 1930-31, $19,848.

Fall term 66 girls were employed in homes, working for all or part room and board, or room and board and extra. Employers are satisfied that with the decreased cost of food, the extra service rendered by the girls was well worth their room and board, according to Miss Edmunson.

A. L. Scheffer Will Speak Before Sociology Majors

Red Cross Leader Plans To Consult With Students January 11

Marking the end of a series of talks by special Red Cross representatives from Pacific coast chapters, Mr. A. L. Scheffer, manager of the Pacific coast branch of the American Red Cross, will speak before major students in sociology and applied social science Monday night, January 11, at 9 o'clock in the home of Philip A. Parsons, dean of the sociology department. His subject will be: "Reminiscences of Twenty Years in Social Work." According to Dean Parsons, Mr.

"OLD OREGON" Said:

"It sometimes snows on the Oregon campus."

—AND—
We might add that it occasionally rains.

Scheffer is an outstanding figure in social work in America. He has had long practice in family case work in the middle west, and rose to his present position as director of Red Cross work on the Pacific coast after wide experience in chapter work and disaster relief. Mr. Scheffer will meet the class in training for rural executives Monday morning at 8 o'clock at the Eugene Red Cross office. The remainder of his morning will be taken up with conference with students.

Mr. Scheffer's visit to Eugene offers an exceptional opportunity to meet and hear a man of national prominence in his field, Dean Parsons said.

Here's One Smoke for MEN

Let the little girls toy with their long, slim holders—let them park scented cigarettes with their powder compacts. That's the time for you to go in for a REAL MAN'S smoke.

Big Sisters Asked To Meet At 105 Journalism Today

A short but important meeting of all Big Sisters will be held today at 5 o'clock in 105 Journalism, it was announced last night by Betty Ann Macduff, Big Sister chairman.

Ann Baum, Associated Women Students president, will give a short talk to the Big Sisters at this meeting, the first of the winter term.

Although in the past the work of the Big Sisters has been considered finished before the end of fall term, the chairman emphasized that with the new plan, under which the Big Sister organization is working this year, the group will continue to function into spring term.

Everyone Given Chance To Work On Emerald Staff

Posts Not Being Restricted To Journalism Majors, Declares Shaw

In accordance with the new policy adopted by the Emerald and the complete reorganization announced by Thornton Shaw, managing editor, applications for positions on the campus publication have been thrown open to the entire campus.

Emerald jobs are not restricted to journalism students. Anyone may apply for vacancies on the reporting and copyreading staffs. The applications are to be turned in at the Emerald office in the Journalism building, not later than Saturday of this week.

The upper news staff will remain the same during the reorganization. However, the day editors will again be required to try out for positions along with the tryouts among the reporters and copyreaders which will be held this week. The complete staff for winter term will be announced soon.
