A Good Book. You'll Like It. It's A Scream.

-By DICK NEUBERGER-THE funniest book in the University library is "Nonsense Novels," by Stephen Leacock. If you won't take my word for it read it for yourself. There are two volumes, both of them being collections of short stories. Mr. Leacock is a professor of philosophy at McGill university—a fact which undoubtedly will keep a considerable number of college people from reading his efforts. Mr. Leacock inaugurates volume one with a story as funny as anything you ever read. Its name is "Maddened by Mystery, or the Defective Detective." Mr. Leacock then goes on for about 18 more chapters, in which he keeps getting funnier all the time.

He reaches a grand climax in the "Blue and Grey." Therein he writes of the adventures of Major Randolph, of the Virginia Randolphs, suh! Halfway through the book the dashing major is brought before Jefferson Davis, whom you've probably heard of, provided you attended high school. Then Mr. Leacock writes as follows:

"'Major Randolph, I admire you,' said Jefferson. Davis, saluting with both hands."

Although this has nothing whatyour indulgence to mention it this morning. About the only athletic news of more than passing excitement is the basketball game tonight, and the full details on that are recounted elsewhere in this issue by my esteemed contemporary, Mr. Westbrook Hamby.

But to return to Mr. Leacock. This sagacious gentleman is comparable in the field of modern literature to what Westbrook Pegler is to the fourth estate. Though lacking Mr. Pegler's inimitable sarcasm, Mr. Leacock's writings are so ridiculously funny that they make you laugh as hard as you ever chuckled at Mr. Pegler's bit-

I believe I am qualified fully to know the laugh-producing effects of Mr. Leacock's novel. I once sat on top of a barren mountain ridge, with several other nervous personages, and waited for the great apes of Mt. St. Helens to arrive on the scene. The ridge was barren, the night was dark, and the wind was

On one side the ridge sloped gently down to a spur of Mt. St. Helens. On the other it descended abruptly, 1000 feet to a narrow gorge, in which a turbulent stream roared menacingly. Everyone fully expected that if the apes appeared, they would throw us into the canyon and then rush down and devour our remains.

At about 11 o'clock, everyone was so frightened that I believe the great apes themselves could not have added to our state of excitement. It was about this time that a thoughtful gentleman pulled Stephen Leacock's "Nonsense Novels" out of his pocket and began to read. Five minutes after he had started "Maddened by Mystery," a few of us were smiling, and by the time he had reached "Soaked in Seaweed, or Upset in the Ocean," everything was laughing. Mr. Leacock was so funny that

Be at McArthur court tonight to watch Oregon's Webfoots meet Oregon State's Orangemen. The game starts at 7:30. Don't forget. It's the first meeting between the two schools this year.

Varsity Swim Squad Holds Giant Struggle

Wetfoots Eke Out Win Over Splashers

Pre-Season Form Displayed In Intra-Team Clash; Water Polo on Bill

A scant margin of two points separated the winner from the victim in the intravarsity dual swimming meet held in the men's pool yesterday. The Wetfoots, captained by Bob Needham, eked out victory from Red Foster's Splashers by a count of 40 to 38.

Living up to advance dope, the meet was a close rivalry through all the events and the water polo battle, which the Splashers captured, 3 to 2. There were no runaway races in any of the tussles etween the rivals.

Yeomen, Sherry Ross Will Tangle In Handball Final

THE winner of the intramural handball tournament will be decided this afternoon at 3:40, when the Yeomen and Sherry Ross hall aggregations tangle on the handball courts. The Yeomen lineup will probably include Sol Schneider, first singles; George Stager, second singles; Al Schneider and Paul Hughes, doubles.

The dorm team will probably enter the courts with the following handballists: Al Richen, first singles; Tom Thompson, second singles; Jim Dezendorf and Bill Klinger, doubles.

talented anthropoid so he could be his manager and finance him as a major league pitcher.

Oregon meets Oregon State tonight. That's a game never won until it's played. The Orangemen hold the odds in their favor, but basketball is a funny sport. You can't tell anything about it. Oregon State might win by 50 points, then, again, the Webfoots might turn the trick and outclass their old rivals. It's been done before, don't forget.

Howard Hobson will be a visitor on the campus tomorrow. It looks as if he's going to coach Oregon's 1932 state high school basketball champions. His Benson Tech team is rushing through all opposition like a squadron of cavalry. In Barney Woldt, Chief McLean, Charles Patterson, Bill Courtney and Morrie Helser, Hobson has one of the best prep school teams ever organized here.

Hobby's lads whipped the Oregon State Rooks, 31 to 16, and the chances are they could give Oregon's freshmen plenty to think and do in a basketball
