Oregon Earns Recognition in Good Will Work

University Among Seven Cited in America

FIDAC Medal Is Awarded Here in Cognizance Of Peace Efforts

The University of Oregon has been placed among the seven most outstanding American colleges in the promotion of international good will and understanding during the past year in the national FIDAC competition, according to word received by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University, from Dr. A. B. Hall James F. Barton, national adjutant of the American Legion.

FIDAC is the organization of veterans' societies of the Allied countries in the World war, and each year it awards the FIDAC educational medals, one of which goes to the college or university with more than 1,000 enrollment, one to the institution under 1,000 and the third to a woman's college. This year Princeton was awarded the medal in the first group, Clark college in the second and Vassar in the woman's classification.

Award Jury Named
The FIDAC jury of award is headed by Dr. Stephen P. Duggan of New York, and consists of Dr. David P. Barrows, California; Gen. L. R. Gignilliat, Indiana; Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, Illinois; and Dr. Paul Monroe, New York.

"The University stood very high in the estimation of the jury of award, being selected as one of the seven most outstanding colleges in the first group," Mr. Barton wrote to Dr. Hall. "We are very much gratified at the increased interest in the FIDAC awards among the colleges, more than twice as many competing last year than in 1930, and we feel that such awards have stimulated public interest in the promotion of international friendship."

"Please accept my sincere congratulations on the splendid work you are doing in the field of international relations."

Plan to Enter in 1932
Oregon plans to enter the 1932 FIDAC competition, and is expected to have an even better chance of winning this high award. During the past year the international value of the Murray Warner museum of Oriental art, the work of Mrs. Murray Warner, the Murray Warner essay contest on international relations, the University International house, the Pacific

Dr. R. C. Clark Comments Upon Oregon's 73rd Anniversary

At the same time that the South was on the brink of secession from the Union over the slavery question, Oregon was voted by congress into the Union despite opposition from all parts of the country, Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the University history department, said yesterday, in commenting upon the 73rd anniversary of Oregon's statehood, to be observed tomorrow.

"There were several objections to the admission of Oregon," Dr. Clark said, "not only because the population was rather small, but because the South did not want another free state and the republican party did not like to have a new state come in with three democratic congressmen."

"The republicans also objected because in a constitutional convention held by the leaders of the territory at Salem in 1857 in which they signified their intention of

Scholarships Aid Students To Get Advertising Jobs

21 of 35 Winners Are Now Active in Profession, Thacher Declares

The summer advertising scholarships awarded to University students by Portland business firms have proved a real help to the students in securing positions in the advertising field, according to W. F. G. Thacher, professor of advertising, who has just made a study of the five years' period that the scholarships have been given.

Season's Returns In Love Missives Up to Standard

Extensive research in the local fields tends to indicate that regardless of the frozen conditions of the nation's finances, the season's business in the valentine line makes a favorable comparison with that of former years.

Leap year is credited with providing the stimulus necessary to keep the number of sales up to par. Three years out of every four, the majority of valentines are sent by men, but on the fourth, the women come forward and send a few more than their normal proportion.

The women, being in better financial condition generally, have held up to their normal demand and have bought a little more heavily due to the quadrennial custom. It is believed, however, that the men did not curtail their budgets quite as much in this line as in some others, thus aiding in keeping the volume of trade up to normal.

Tomorrow is the day of the annual observance in memory of St. Valentine. In the legends of ancient England this day, February 14, marked the season when the thoughts of birds and men turned to romantic lines.

Kedroff Quartet Rates High in Concert Series

Russians on Final Tour To Sing Sunday

Finished Style Created by Twelve Years of Work With Same Group

One of the most notable attractions so far offered on the Associated Students' concert series, the Kedroff quartet of Russian singers, will appear in concert Sunday afternoon at McArthur court, starting at 3 o'clock. Oregon students will be admitted to the event free of charge upon presentation of their student body tickets.

The appearance of the Kedroffs will be their first, and last, in Eugene. The quartet, now in its 35th year, is on its final tour and will end its activities in Paris in May of this year.

Have Finished Style
The group is composed of N. N. Kedroff, the director, who sings baritone; his brother, C. N. Kedroff, basso; I. K. Denisoff, tenor; and T. F. Kasakoff, basso. Organized by Mr. Kedroff in 1897, there have been few changes in the personnel in the last 35 years and none for the past 12 years. This has created a finished style of singing that American audiences appreciate.

As the bulk of their repertoire, which includes over 300 numbers, is Russian in character, they are able to sing with an assurance not possible in groups less at home with their material. Music critics everywhere have written of the rich human vein of expression shown by the singers in their offerings. This group has the knack of combining charm, racy humor, and noble virility in their songs which is the goal of every quartet but which is realized by very few.

Prominent in Music World
The Kedroffs are in a class by themselves. Before their time, quartet singing was regarded as inconsequential because of the difficulty of perfecting it, but this group, by long years of practice and devotional work, has been rewarded by attaining a place of great prominence in the world of music.

Harry Duke, of the St. Louis Globe, best expressed the unusualness of the Kedroffs when he wrote—"The person who goes to hear the Kedroffs with expectation built upon the male quartets of his experience is doomed to surprised delight. There is nothing like them on the concert stage."

The reserved seat ticket sale will continue today at the University Co-op and at McMorran & Washburne's, with the tickets selling for 50 cents. General admission seats, to be sold at McArthur court Sunday, will be offered at 25 cents.

Illness at Elkton Prevents Performance of 'Getaway'

The Westminster Players were unable to present the play, "Getaway" Thursday night in Elkton on account of sickness in the town which caused the schools to be closed down, it was reported by Max Adams last night. A performance will be given there later this month.

The play will be presented in LaComb on February 18, and the following week in Lebanon. All presentations are for community benefits.

Lists of Activities Asked for Senior Oregon Section

SENIORS who have not filled out their activity cards are requested by the senior section editor of the Oregonian to do so at the Co-op office today.

The information on University activities will be used in connection with the cap and gown pictures.

Helps Oregon Win

Cap Roberts, red-headed center, who was one of the main factors in the Webfoots' stirring 24-to-32 victory over Washington State at McArthur court last night.

Co-op To Conduct Window Mistake Student Contest

Five Prizes To Be Awarded To Individuals Turning In Correct Scores

The University Co-operative store is holding an observation contest consisting of the detection of mistakes in the makeup of one of their show-windows. The window will be plainly marked.

Rules of the contest are quite simple as announced by Addison Smith and Betty Eaton, two employees of the Co-op, who originated the idea. Persons entering the contest are first to examine the window and find 10 mistakes, such as some word misspelled, or some object laid upside down. He then lists the ten mistakes he has found, writes his name on the list, and hands the list and name in at the window of the office at the rear of the store.

The contest window, mistakes and all, will be open to inspection Saturday afternoon and will remain open until Wednesday afternoon at five. Names and lists are not to be handed in until Friday morning, however.

Prizes will be awarded to the first five persons who hand in the correct list of mistakes. Total worth of the prizes is $6.35. Prizes are as follows: first prize, a string of beads; second prize, a pack of circular playing cards; third prize, cigarette case; fourth prize, box of Cashmere Bouquet soap; and fifth prize, an Oregon pennant.

"The contest will not be as easy as one might think," Mr. Smith stated after making the announcement, "and it will test the contestants' powers of observation to the utmost."

All but employees of the Co-op store are eligible to enter the contest.

Two Instructors Chosen For Initiation Into WAA

Miss Mary Jo Allington, swimming instructor, and Miss Janet Woodruff, major instructor, are to be made honorary members of W. A. A. at the initiation next Tuesday, February 16.

Milne Chosen To Aid Hoover Dam Project

Oregon Man Appointed For Important Post

Professor of Mathematics Will Design Ingenious Tables for Work

Dr. W. E. Milne, professor of mathematics, has been selected to work out tables to enable engineers to predict the height and depth of the surges of water in surge tanks for the Hoover Dam project, it was announced yesterday by E. E. DeCou, head of the mathematics department.

This is regarded as a highly important assignment, he said and the appointment of the University expert is held to be an outstanding recognition of his ability in this field.

Through the efforts of W. F. Durand of Stanford university, funds are being provided for the calculation of these tables, which, it is stated, are urgently needed by the government engineers at this time.

Work Is Indispensable
The researches will be applied to the designing of hydraulic surge chambers with a throttling ring, and will furnish knowledge which is necessary in the design of tanks (Continued on Page Two)

Cosmopolitans Invite Students To Membership

Anyone interested in furthering friendly relations among foreign and American students on the campus is given a bid to membership by Cosmopolitan club.

To become a member a student must first express his interest in the club and submit his name to the executive council for approval. All names must be turned in by Tuesday night, February 16, to Hubert Allen, chairman of the membership committee, at the International house. Initiation will be held the next Tuesday, February 23.

This year's membership totals 50. Meetings are scheduled for twice a month, when guest speakers are invited in or foreign students entertain with programs of their native lands.

'Thursday Times' Desk Staff Gets Theatre Party

Members of the copyreading staff of "The Thursday Times," a dummy newspaper edited by journalism students, were treated to a Colonial theatre party yesterday by their instructor, George Godfrey, for excellency of work and speed. The edition was "put to bed" before 4:30 p. m.

New Math Prof Has Paper Published at Princeton U.

A paper on "Nevanlinna Summability of Fourier Series," written by Mr. Andrew M. Moursund, Jr., new instructor in mathematics, has been published in "Annals of Mathematics," a Princeton University publication.

Mr. Moursund has taught here since last fall. He received his B.A. and M.A. degrees at the University of Texas, and taught several years in high schools and the Texas Technological college.

For the past three years, Mr. Moursund has been E. L. Marston fellow in mathematics at Brown university, where he will receive his Ph.D. degree next summer.

Lemon-Yellow Takes Thriller Here from Leaders of League

Yearlings Defeat Medford in First Hoop Game 26-19

MEDFORD, Ore., Feb. 12.—(Special).—Prink Callison's Oregon freshman hoopsters scored an easy 26-19 victory over the Medford high five here tonight. The fresh were in command of the situation during most of the game and only at times did the Tiger sharpshooters threaten.

First All-Campus Food Show Does Rushing Business

Food in all its aspects from cauliflower to cake! White wrappers, green boxes, red cans, and shiny cellophane! Plain "eats," in other words, all dressed up and no place to go. Except as samples, down the throats of three or four hundred visitors who came to the University's first food show at the Y. M. C. A. hut yesterday.

Made possible by the house managers association in cooperation with the Oregon union central purchasing service, this display was put on in order to show what modern methods can do for man's first great necessity of life.

Food Experts Try Samples
Experts were on hand everywhere answering questions. Students, seeking more than food for thought, asking them, between samples. Even Charlie Howard, highlight of the campus legal luminaries, went down with a bunch of his neophytes, to sit in judgment on the cheese and listen to the expounding of its why's and whereof's.

Lloyd Sherrill, buying agent of the house managers association, was found smilingly ensconced behind the shining coffee urn. His happy countenance was explained as due to the success of the day. His hasty calculation revealed that 300 cups of coffee had been issued during the afternoon.

"Even the mayor was here," he proudly announced as he listed the names of prominent food samplers, including faculty members and well known merchants.

House Mothers Entertained
From 3 to 3:30 p. m. a special demitasse for house mothers was given, and at 3:30 a short talk on food values in modern canned foods was offered by Mrs. Andrew Fish of the home economics department.

Game Clinched in Last Minute of Play

Levoff Gets 13 Points To Take Scoring Honors; Leads Attack

By BRUCE HAMBY

From three points behind in the opening minute of play, Oregon's fighting basketbeteers stormed their way to a stirring 34-to-32 victory over Washington State's northern division leaders at McArthur court last night. Led by Henry (Hank) Levoff, veteran guard, Bill Reinhart's men claimed supremacy in a bitter ter basketball struggle that threw a gathering of 3,500 into wild spasms of enthusiasm throughout the second half.

Levoff scored five field and three free throws for a total of 13 points. Cap Roberts and Huntley Gordon, centers, faded out of the picture as far as scoring went, for both played defensive ball.

Washington State scored first as Holsten sank a foul conversion and McLarney followed with a long field goal. From that time until three minutes before the half ended, Oregon staged a great rally, scoring 15 points while the Cougars were held scoreless. Clarkins opened the Webfoots scoring with a free throw. Levoff came through with two field goals and Spook Robertson, Cliff Potter and Windy Calkins followed his example. Claude Holsten sank two for W. S. C. before the quarter ended. The score at halftime was 19 to 11 for Oregon.

The Cougars came back in the second half and scored eight points to tie the score at 19-all. From then on neither team was more than a few points in the lead. Calkins, Roberts and Levoff added five points to the Webfoot total and ran up a 24 to 19 lead.

In the closing minutes of the game Oregon tried to stall, but the Cougars gradually closed up the gap until the score was 33 to 32 for Oregon with only one minute to play. Levoff ended the scoring with a foul conversion just before the final whistle.

Levoff led the Oregon team with 13 points, followed by Robertson and Calkins with 6 each. Cap Roberts was held to two field goals and a free throw. Gordon, W. S. C. pivot man, tossed in one field goal and four foul conversions for six.

Debaters Argue Weakness, Strength of Centralization

Basing their arguments upon the impracticability of any attempt for government control of industry the Eastern Oregon normal school debaters, upholding the negative of the question, "Resolved, that congress should enact legislation providing for the centralized control of industry (constitutional-ity waived)," launched their attack on the University of Oregon freshman affirmative in a non-decision debate yesterday afternoon.

The LaGrande school's representatives were Dwight Mahoney and Elwood Hiatt. The Oregon forensic yearlings were Theodore Pursley, pre-law major, and Howard Ohmart, a sociology freshman.

The negative, to emphasize the weakness of centralization plans, brought forth the failures of such control by the government in former years.

The affirmative pictured the present state of economic chaos. The absurdity of continuing a system of control that allows periodically re-occurring depressions, failures in private enterprise, and garnering of the nation's wealth by a comparatively few individuals was pointed out.

They then advanced their plan for centralization of economic control. In this formulation, regulation of industry would be in the hands of a national council of about 10 members. The various divisions of the country would be headed by subsidiary councils, one for each type of industry.

The meet was held at 115 Commerce hall, Orval Thompson, freshman in pre-law, assisted as chairman.
