These Lanky Lads Meet Again Tonight

Jerry's Big Night. Baseball Soon. Track Here Now. -By DICK NEUBERGER-

AS Jerry Nemer goes tonight, so will go the Trojans of the University of Southern California. In ium at 7:30 o'clock the basketeers from Troy meet California's Golden Bears for the championship of the southern division, and virtually all the Tro-Hollingbery jans' hopes will rest upon the activities of the sharp-shooting Mr. Nemer. It's apparent Southern California has come to rely upon Nemer's scoring ability too much for its own good. To date the nimble Jerry has produced 132 points in 11 conference to stop him cold. And don't think California won't be guarding Nemer tonight. The Bears probably will concentrate their entire defense upon Jerry. They'll watch him like hawks. Canny little Nibs Price, coach of the Berkeley team for the last six years, knows the battle's half won if his men can throttle Nemer. Likewise, the Trojans realize they're practically certain of victory if they can work their block- Northwest swimming championship plays skillfully enough to get Jerry within shooting range.

What a grand fight that will be-the Bears doing their darndest to keep Nemer away from that basket, and the Trojans trying everything they know to get him there! It looks like the one fellow who isn't going to enjoy himself is Jerry. With all those stalwarts concentrating their activities upon him, the affair is liable to turn into an indoor football game, with none other than Jerry Nemer as the football.

Seriously speaking, though, young Nemer must be quite a basketball player. Babe Hollingberry, Washington State's dapper football coach, who passed through here several weeks ago on his way north to Pullman, says Jerry is one of the most accurate shots he ever saw. "In a game against Stanford," Rabe remarked, "Nemer stood near the center of the court and dropped 21 points over the heads of Stanford's zone defense." * * *

erry's record speaks His average for the regular southern division season was exactly 12 points a game. Now compare this with that of Huntly Gorden of and Hug. Washington State, who tops the northern section with 117 points
