BEAVER-DUCKS WIN

Portland won the Vaughn street baseball opener yesterday from the Mission Reds, 7 to 3, before 8,124 persons.

Webfeet Drill For Big Meet On Saturday

Oregon Team Is Strong In Sprints

Seven Relays To Compose Annual Meet; Mile Team Good

Colonel William L. Hayward will send his Webfoot track and field athletes against the Beavers of Oregon State next Saturday afternoon on the local oval competing in the annual Oregon-Oregon State relays. The Oregon men, although they will be the under dogs, have a formidable outfit and should make it hot for the Orange stars.

Hayward, who has been inactive for the past two weeks because of illness, will be on hand Saturday to direct his charges personally.

The meet includes seven events, all on the track. They will all be relays—the 440, 880, mile, two-mile, four-mile, sprint medley, and distance medley.

Webfeet Strong
In the short distances the Webfeet will be strong. Holman, Starr, Bale, Hamilton, and Burr have all been burning up the cinders in practice, and competition for the teams promises to be hot.

The mile relay should be Oregon's event. The championship team of last year composed of Johnny Marrs, Art Holman, Chuck Dolloff, and Jack Rollwage is back intact and is showing even better form than last spring.

Distance Events Reviewed
In the longer distances Bob Hunter, mile ace, is the outstanding star. Gerald Gray and William Parmelee, both sophomores, are also expected to give good performances. Art Holman, sprint star, will specialize in the longer races this year, and will probably

Varsity Hoopster Executes Triple Play In Donut Tilt

A rare play, one of the rare freaks of baseball, was executed yesterday afternoon in a donut baseball game. John Jeffers, varsity basketball player, was the key man of the remarkable play and it occurred during the clash between Theta Chi and Beta Theta Pi.

Jeffers caught the ball in midair with a man on first and one on the second sack. He touched second, putting both the batter and the man on second out, and threw to first, catching the runner there before he could regain the sack. The play was of little avail, however, as the Betas won, 17 to 6.

Phi Delt's Wallop Betas in Lone Net Struggle Tuesday

Sigma Chi, Yeomen Victors In Day's Fairway Clashes

One tennis and two golf matches were played yesterday in the respective donut tournaments. The Phi Delt and Betas hooked up in the sole net confab, which the former won, two contests to one, that advancing to the finals. The other two slated racket swinging frays were postponed till the afternoon when the rain around 4 p. m. yesterday put the courts out of commission.

In the fairway battles, Sigma Chi trounced Alpha hall, 9 to 0, with one match not being played. The Sigma Chians who defeated the dormitory golfers were Ken Swan, Harry Weimar, and Bill Goodwin. In the other argument, the Yeoman quartet eked out a victory over the Phi Psi aggregation of divot diggers, 6-1-2 to 5-1-2. Leonard Anderson, Irving Manasse, Don Caswell, and Jack Bauer comprised the winning combination.

run in the two-mile relay as well as in the mile event. Scores of others have been working out daily and will undoubtedly be called upon to compete Saturday.

Stimson Takes Part In League's Parley
GENEVA, April 19—(AP)—Secretary of State Stimson wrote a chapter of American history at today's session of the disarmament conference by becoming the first high ranking United States official to participate in an important international parley held under the auspices of the League of Nations and at the seat of the league.

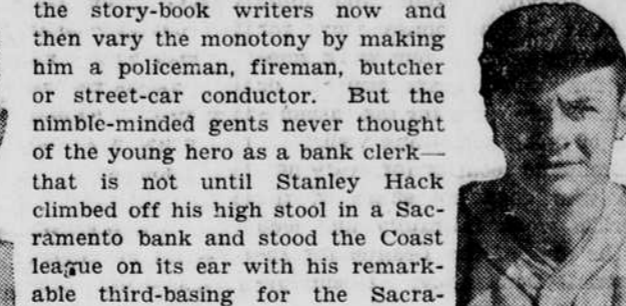

The American delegation escorted Colonel Stimson to his place at the conference table alongside Ambassador Hugh Gibson, who has served as chief of the United States contingent. The conference hall corridors were thronged with persons to watch his arrival.

Hack, Hack, Do You Think They'll Send You Back?

EVERY ONCE in a while you read a story about a college boy who makes good in major league baseball and accumulates a vast enough fortune therefrom to pay off the mortgage on the old farm house, all of which alleviates greatly the sufferings of his sorely-distressed parents. Generally the boy is fresh from college, although the story-book writers now and then vary the monotony by making him a policeman, fireman, butcher or street-car conductor. But the nimble-minded genius never thought of the young hero as a bank clerk—that is not until Stanley Hack climbed off his high stool in a Sacramento bank and stood the Sacramento on its ear with his remarkable third-basing for the Sacramento Senators.

Stanley Hack

Horatio Alger

Horatio Alger would have had a great time writing about Stanley Hack. He could have named the book, "The Trials and Tribulations of Stanley Hack, or Up From the Bank and Half Way Back." But to get back to Mr. Hack. A year ago he was stacking coins and counting currency back of the grille of a cashier's cage in a Sacramento bank, when he suddenly was made a fairly-respectable offer by Mr. Lew Moring of the Sacramento Senators. The offer so appealed to Mr. Hack that within two weeks he was wearing the flannels of the Solons.

Sacramento did not have a great club last year, far from it, but young Mr. Hack was the class of the Pacific Coast league at third base. His dashing work afield and his lusty clouting at bat eventually attracted the notice of no less a personage than Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs. Mr. Hornsby said he must have Mr. Hack to play third base for the Cubs in 1932, regardless of the cost. He made remarks to that effect to William Veeck, president of the Cubs. Mr. Veeck repeated those remarks to Phillip Wrigley, son of the late William Wrigley Jr., and soon $50,000 changed hands, the sum going into the coffers of Mr. Wrigley to the considerably smaller coffers of Mr. Moring. In return for this substantial sum, Mr. Moring sent our hero, Mr. Stanley Hack, to the Chicago Cubs to play baseball for Mr. Rogers Hornsby. To date the young bank cashier has functioned admirably for the major-leaguers. He is hitting above .300 and his fielding is as lively as ever.

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Includes American League Standings and National Standings.

At the same time as Mr. Hack went up to the majors, there also went Jessie Hill, ex-football half-back for the University of Southern California and a star slugger for the Hollywood baseball nine. Mr. Hill was conceded equally as good a chance as staying in the big leagues as Mr. Hack's boy Stanley, but Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees wasn't one of those who did the conceding. As a result of which, Jesse now is playing in one of the AA eastern leagues. The Yankees still have strings on him, and eventually he will appear in the majors, but it's rather surprising that the bank-clerk should survive where the trained college athlete failed.

Wonder how many Oregon baseball lads have major league ambitions? I don't know about any of 'em, but there may be some of Bill Reinhardt's youths who have definite ambitions of making the grade on the baseball diamond. Insofar as Brian (Tex) Minnaugh is concerned, I don't know about his big-league ambitions, but I'm sure he'd just as soon as have a job in one of the Texas circuits.

Jack O'Brien, Oregon's freshmen baseball coach, ran into tough luck this week when his crack pitcher, Bill Lake, was forced to withdraw from school because of the death of his father. Jack had none too many pitchers at best, and the loss of Lake will hamper the team considerably.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 19—(AP)—Portland opened the season at home between April showers today with a 7-to-3 victory over the San Francisco Missions. Official paid attendance was 8,124, the lowest since 1928, but showery weather affected the turnout.

Bill Dietrich, spectacled hurler, strong-armed the Missions into six-hit submission. He had them shut out with only two hits, one a scratch, until the ninth, when four blows, including Hafey's double, broke the scoring ice.

Mike Higgins hoisted a home run into the bleachers in the second inning. Portland scored five of its runs in the seventh, as rain was falling. With two out, Pitcher Chagnon threw Reeves' roller, in front of the plate, wild to first and Dahlgren then made a bad throw home, the double misplay letting in two runs and R. Jacobs' double driving in two more.

STARS DROP SUDS
SEATTLE, April 19—(AP)—About 6,000 baseball fans, one of the smallest opening day crowds in the history of Pacific Coast league baseball in Seattle, saw the Hollywood Stars defeat the Seattle Indians, 5 to 1, here this afternoon.

Myles Thomas kept the Indians quiet throughout the afternoon except for a first inning home run by Holland. He allowed but five hits.

Nelson, making his debut before the home folks, was nicked for 10 hits, one of them McNeely's homer with Jack Sherlock aboard, while his mates made three errors behind him.

Insanity Defense Stirrs Prosecution
HONOLULU, April 19—(AP)—Alienist testimony that Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie was insane at the moment Joseph Kahahawai was killed put the prosecution in a fighting mood today as the defense effort to clear four persons of the lynching approached its finale.

Insisting the young naval officer was mentally deranged when he allegedly stood before Kahahawai with drawn pistol and supposedly heard the young native confess taking part in the attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie, Dr. James Orblison, Los Angeles psychiatrist, stuck by his story under a furious attack at the hands of Barry S. Ulrich, assistant prosecutor. Just before that, Clarence Darrow, defense leader, announced he would close his case tomorrow, probably calling Mrs. Massie, attack victim and wife of the accused officer.

Massie "carried around this terrible memory," Dr. Orblison continued, and "also what his friend had told him—terrible rumors about his wife."

Oregon, Harvard Classic To Be Broadcast Tonight

Famous Battle Replayed by Announcer Hughes of KORE

By ED GOODNOUGH
"We will now turn back the pages of time 12 years and you will hear the broadcast of the Oregon-Harvard game from Tournament Park, Pasadena.

With these words the KORE announcer will inaugurate the first of "Rush" Hughes' weekly revivals of famous Oregon grid contests at 5:45 p. m. tonight. Whereupon "Rush" will sweep up to the hapless microphone in the best McNamee style, brush back his patent leather hair, tune up his magnetic voice, and carry the fans back to that memorable afternoon when the unheralded Oregonians upheld the dignity of the western football world.

"Well, here I am, folks, in Tournament park today all ready to give you the play by play account of this grand battle that's going to take place in a few minutes. The sun is shining overhead and this gorgeous California weather, that you've no doubt heard something about, is advertising itself as far

Frosh Baseball Artists To Meet Campus Hi Today

THE FRESHMAN baseball team will meet the University high vnat artists this afternoon at 4:00 in the opening game of the season. The game scheduled for yesterday with Eugene high school was indefinitely postponed on account of rain. Either Kneeland or Prouty are slated to take the mound for this afternoon, said Jack O'Brien, freshman mentor.

DEBRIJN WINS MARATHON
BOSTON, April 19—(AP)—The machine-like strides of Paul DeBruyn, 24-year-old German marathon champion, wore out 220 rivals today as they carried him home first in the 36th running of the Hopkinton-Boston marathon, 220 yards ahead of Jimmy Henigan of Medford, last year's winner.

Astoria Council Denies Dance Limit Extension
ASTORIA, Ore., April 19—(AP)—The Astoria city council has refused to extend the time limit for public dances from midnight to 1 a. m.

In a report made public today, the council said that "People who work for a living ought to be able to get enough recreation by midnight."

Fear of objection by religious organizations was given as another reason for refusing the request.

Syracuse Mayor Plans 9-Cent-a-Day Rations
Syracuse, N. Y., April 19.—(AP)—For the next week Mayor Roland E. Marvin is going to live on food costing nine cents a day. That is the cost under a dietary schedule per person on the city's welfare rolls.

Said the mayor: "I do not want to give to the people of the city a diet that I would not use. I will note the effect the diet has on me and I will be able to judge whether it is sufficient."

Roduner's Recital Enjoyable, Fair-Sized Audience Finds

By DAVE WILSON
There was not a packed house at the music auditorium last evening, but a fair-sized audience found Kenneth Roduner's song-recital one of the most enjoyable of the year's series.

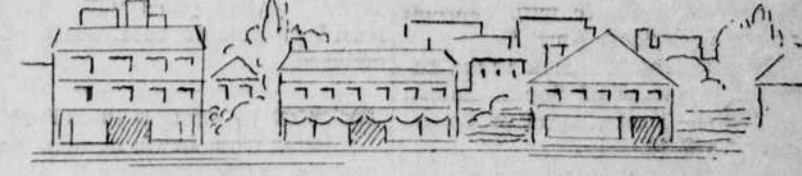

Roduner has a sound tenor voice which clearly shows the results of two years' study under Arthur Boardman. Last night's performance was well-balanced and consistently creditable to both singer and instructor.

Roduner opened his program with an operatic group consisting of contrasting arias from Handel and Mozart. In "Oh sleep, why dost thou leave me?" from Handel's "Semele," he showed good range and sustained smooth tones. The slow, sombre style of this aria contrasted with the spirited tempo of the aria from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," in which Roduner showed the classical restraint which must be used with Mozart's compositions. In the remainder of the program, three selections were outstanding. The romantic Italian style of Donizetti's aria, "Una furtiva lagrima" was particularly well-suited to Roduner's lyric voice. In Kremer's "The Crystal Gazer" and Faure's "Hymne," the singer was very sure of himself, and showed real voice power.

Of the three songs by Schumann which formed the second group, the dashing "Wanderlied" was outstanding. Dupard's "Chanson Triste" and Debussy's "Romance" were similar in rather plaintive beauty.

Sanderson's "Harlequin," with its stirring "ring down the curtain" theme, made a fine concluding number. The informal expositions with which Roduner preceded each group of songs added much to the significance of the program.
