Admiral Reinhart's Ark;
Make Reservations Early

By DICK NEUBERGER

IN THE far and remote long ago, even in the days before William Jennings Bryan started to run for the presidency or Amos Alonzo Stagg became head football coach at the University of Chicago, there was quite a flood. It excelled any flood ever staged previously, or since. It lasted 40 days and 40 nights and, when it was all over, the only thing left was an ark constructed by a very thoughtful gentleman named Mr. Noah. On this ark of his Mr. Noah, who was accompanied by Mrs. Noah and all the little Noahs, had two specimens of every animal then existing, including even two ovis polii.

Mr. Noah, Mrs. Noah, all the little Noahs, and two of every animal then existing, including even two ovis polii, sailed about for some time until the flood finally subsided. They then landed on a mountain and lived happily ever afterwards. Now Mr. Noah, Mrs. Noah, etc., etc., were original when they built their ark. They were the first in the field and profited handsomely therefrom, saving their lives because of their ingenuity.

But Mr. Noah, Mrs. Noah, etc., made one mistake. They forgot to patent their ark, an error of which Admiral William J. Reinhart is well aware. Mr. Noah's glaring blunder was impressed upon Admiral Reinhart with considerable force yesterday, when the admiral himself suddenly announced that he had decided to build an ark. With the help of Brian Minnaugh and Slug Palmer, his chief lieutenants, he definitely ascertained that Mr. Noah had not patented the ark. As soon as he made this welcome discovery, Admiral Reinhart started to make plans for the building of his own ark.

In the first place, he plans to take two of every animal aboard, including even two southpaws. Bill announces that Johnny Anderson will be one of the southpaws, not so much because he is superior to all other southpaws, but because he can swim skillfully enough to jump overboard and save Admiral Reinhart should the ark spring a leak. Johnny Londaal will captain the ark, says Reinhart, who himself will sit in a stateroom and act as owner. Brian Minnaugh will be the bo'sun, Slug Palmer will be the chief cook and bottle-washer, and Mike Mikulak will be the steward. Duke Shanneman will wear a uniform, that being the extent of his duties.

Admiral Reinhart says reservations for staterooms on the ark must be made immediately inasmuch as practically all the outside suites already have been set aside for the baseball team. (A choice suite also has been reserved for Colonel Bill Hayward and several of his track men.) There will be considerable steerage space, however, some of which Admiral Reinhart is going to reserve for Prink Callison and his football amphibians.

"It won't be long now," prophesied the admiral as he looked out a porthole at McArthur court yesterday. "Pretty soon the water will be above Hayward field, then the administration building will float down 13th street and we'll all be—"

"Just a minute, admiral," interrupted your correspondent, "is there going to be any space on this ark of yours for newspapermen?" The admiral plunged into thought.

After plunging in and out of thought for several minutes, he answered quickly, "I'll make room, even if I have to put you in with the outfielders. Let's see who will there be? There's yourself, and Roy Craft, and Sammy Wilderman, and Harry van Dine, and George Godfrey, and we'll have to stop by Portland and pick up Bill Gregory, George Bertz, Bill Steppe, and the boys there. My gosh, we'll have enough sports writers to found a newspaper."

As soon as Admiral Reinhart's project had been rumored about the city, he was deluged with telephone calls. He finally had to leave his receiver down and row home for dinner. He says all reservations can be made in the graduate manager's office and that all members of the student-body will be given the preference over others.

Should the ark not be ready in time, Admiral Reinhart and Commodore Hugh Rosson will arrange for a supply of life-belts to be left in front of every building on the campus.

ARMSTRONG PLANS EXTENSIVE FOOTBALL CAMPAIGN FOR COMING SEASON

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 25.—The driving sleet storm that blanketed northern Utah Wednesday and Thursday was no deterrent to Coach Ike Armstrong and his lustrous Redskins. Though Cummings field, varsity training plant, will be heavy, the Redskin chief plans to go through with the week-end intra-squad skirmish, a sort of "feeler" in seeing how new candidates for the 1932 grid machine will bear up under fire.

Coach Armstrong refuses to comment favorably on the work of his new men, many of them former high school luminaries. "They have plenty to learn," was his only rejoinder when asked if certain men would fill in the gaps left open by graduation.

The protracted spring training is calculated to offset the early season greenness that the Redmen will have when they go up against two hard inter-sectional foes, U. S. C. and Nevada U.

BOOKS EXCHANGED

Anticipating better feeling among Oregon's two major schools, authorities of the University and the State College are encouraging the borrowing of books from one school for the use of students of the other. Recently a shipment of books from the University business administration library was sent to O. S. C. for the use of students of commerce there.

Return Game Is Scheduled
For Reinhart Field
Next Saturday

With the initial game by three days off Bill Reinhart and his varsity baseball nine are standing by waiting till Jupe Pluvius and his cohorts finish having their fun and give the Webfeet a chance to establish themselves for the 1932 Northwest conference baseball race. Friday afternoon Reinhart's crew is scheduled to battle the O. S. C. nine at Corvallis, with a return game due at Eugene Saturday.

The Webfoots will enter the contest Friday without even so much as participating in a pre-season tilt. The only game on schedule was with the town team, which was rained out. Thus little is known as to how the team will show up under fire. With the roster including eight teenage things look far from bad, however. In practice scrimmages the veteran infield composed of Chester, Londahl, Stevens, and Potter showed fine form, and with likely substitutes including McCull, Sears, Chatterton, and Mikulak on hand there are few worries anticipated. The outfield has two positions well filled by the vets, Minnaugh and Palmer. It will be between Watkins, Wheat, Peters, Horner, and Van Dyne for the other garden.

The starting hurler will be chosen from a list of five aspirants: Scales, Edwards, Charles, Anderson, and Donin. Shaneman will be behind the bat.

Webfeet Crack Three Marks
To Win Over Aggies in Meet

Hayward Sets Men Walk
Off With Spectacular
Victory

By MALCOLM BAUER

Offsetting three new meet records and winning in five of the eight events on the program Bill Hayward's Oregon track stars romped over the Aggies of Oregon State Saturday at Hayward field in the annual relay meet between the two schools. In winning, the Webfeet clipped time from the established marks in the 440, the half-mile, and the sprint medley relays.

To put spice into the Oregon victory, Colonel William L. Hayward was able to be on the scene. Bill, who has long been out of bed, following a long illness, for a few days, braved the cold wind and rain which swept the stadium all afternoon and personally saw to it that his men did their best.

The times recorded were all the more remarkable because of bad weather conditions. The track was wet and soggy, and the air was cold.

Paul Starr, Oregon's captain and stellar sprinter, was the outstanding performer of the day. Starr participated in every record-breaking event, carrying the baton in four relays. Johnny Marrs, who ran three times, and Art Holman, middle distance ace, carried the burden of competition along with Starr.

For the Orangemen Skeet O'Connell, sprinter, and Heath, who specialized in the 880-yard run, gave the best performances. The Aggies were supreme in the long runs throughout the afternoon with the exception of Bob Hunter's fine mile in the distance race. The Beavers scored their greatest triumph when, in the mile race, all four Oregon State men crossed the line before the first Webfoot runner.

Summary:
440-yard relay—Won by Oregon (Starr, Hamilton, Holman, Bale). Time, :42.6. New record. Old record, :43 flat.

Two-mile relay—Won by Oregon State (Connor, Chatterton, Mullins, Heath). Time 2:36.6.

880-yard relay—Won by Oregon (Bale, Holman, Marrs, Starr). Time 1:28.6. New record. Old record, 1:29.6.

Shuttle relay—Won by Oregon (Allen, McCoy, Du'ley, Palmer). Time 1:05.1.

Sprint medley relay—Won by Oregon (Starr, Hamilton, Holman, Marrs). Time, 1:34.2. New record. Old record, 1:34.4.

One-mile team race—Won by Oregon State (Cantine, Nickelson, Willison, Lage). Time 4:39.4.

Distance medley relay—Won by Oregon (Starr, Rollwage, Dolloff, Hunter). Time, 7:52.

Mile relay—Won by Oregon State (O'Dell, Emmett, Bronson, Kirk). Time, 3:27.4.
