Matrix Banquet Is Outstanding Event of Week

One of the outstanding events of the social world this week was the formal Matrix Table banquet given last evening at the Eugene hotel by Theta chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national professional journalism society.

The honor guest of the occasion was Mrs. Cheryl M. Scholz of Portland, who recently returned from a voyage to Europe. Mrs. Scholz is dean of women at Reed college.

Miss Betty Anne Macduff, president of Theta Sigma Phi, presided as toastmistress before some two hundred guests including prominent Oregon writers, active members and alumnae of the organization. Mrs. Eric W. Allen introduced the speaker.

The name "Matrix" is derived from the national publication of the organization, "The Matrix."

Those in charge of the banquet were: Miss Macduff, Esther Hayden, Jessie Steele, Lenore Ely, Mrs. Willetta Miller Hartley, Virginia Wentz, Zora Beaman, Henrietta Steinke, Thelma Nelson, and Eleanor Jane Ballantyne.

The Alpha Xi Delta Mothers' club entertained Sunday morning with breakfast to honor members of the senior class of the sorority. Mrs. T. R. Greenwood, president of the club, acted as hostess for the affair.

The breakfast was served at the Anchorage.

Other men now on the campus who were at one time affiliated with the societies that are at present bringing about the expulsion of some 250 Salem high school students are Reynolds Allen, Homer Goulet, Bob Needham and Wally Hug, both varsity swimmers; Don and Wilson Siegmund, Ed Fischer, Dave Eyre, Robert Gamer, John Creech, ex-Oregon yell leader; Avery Thompson, Ed Cross, Robert Bishop, Bill East, and Kimball Page.

Finance Experts Assail Proposal To Cash Bonuses

'Printing-Press Money' Is Decried by Meyer, Secretary Mills

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Two administrative financial experts accustomed to counting dollars in millions and billions today heaped invective and ridicule upon plans for cashing the soldiers' bonus.

Secretary Mills stood before the house ways and means committee for 90 minutes uncompromisingly assailing proposals for making the $2,400,000,000 bonus payment in what he called "dishonest dollars—printing press money."

Milder in manner but no less earnest, Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, testified that "currency tinkering" would rock world confidence in the United States.

Both men, officers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and spokesmen for the administration, praised congress for the program approved this session, but warned that currency inflation would be an economic departure courting ruin.

Both Mills and Meyer were certain business confidence was returning, but warned congress arbitrary tampering with the currency would be a long step backward.

JUDICIARY BODY WILL GIVE RULING TODAY

Just whether a sophomore in the University can be a junior in the A. S. U. O. is the question which arises around Kinney. He has been on the campus long enough as far as the constitution is concerned, but then, he is registered as a sophomore. This is another point the judiciary committee has to settle.

Bailey's Case Cited Orville Bailey's predicament arises out of the fact that he is a transfer from another school. The constitution provides that terms completed by transfer at another school shall count toward class standing in the A. S. U. O. Under this provision Bailey would be of senior standing and ineligible for office, inasmuch as this is his third year on the Oregon campus, in addition to terms completed at a junior college.

Minimum requirements for senior standing, under the University's way of figuring, are 129 hours. The majority of candidates have this number already, according to checks of records in the registrar's office as required by the constitution. It is believed that this point will not be taken up by the judiciary committee.

JUNIOR WEEK-END HAD SORORITIES BRING GRUB

The campus luncheon was held at the men's outdoor gym. "While students and guests fed, amusement was afforded when the clean-looking frosh were singled out by the paint-laden frosh football men and branded on the front and rear with the sign of the O.

"A beautiful sight to see was that of the freshmen swimming the mill race after their tug-of-war team went down to defeat before the sophomore huskies.

"Friday evening in a drizzling rain, 17 gorgeously decorated floats passed in review.

"The Eugene armory was crowded to overflowing with enthusiasts of the dance," at the Junior Prom Saturday night.

Russian Chemist Asks Dr. Williams For 2 Text Books

From Russia, "U. S. S. R." as it is now, comes a request to Dr. Roger J. Williams, professor of chemistry, asking that he mail free of charge copies of two texts which he has written. The request received yesterday was on a postcard and was from Alescis Dimitriew, a student professor, who gives his address as Novo Tscherkoussk, Don Province.

The request to send the books free comes because the writer of the card says "sending monies impossibility, exchange difficulty."

The writer also seems to have a slight difficulty with the English language, but bravely attempts to make himself clear.

"Dear Sir Respectable Professor Roger J. Williams," he writes. "I you demand to send us, when scientific offering (free a copy; sending monies impossibility, exchange difficulty) post registered, copies of your books 'An Introduction to Organic Chemistry,' and 'Laboratory Manual of Organic Chemistry' (oldish, soiled copy). Very to interest students and professors higher school of chemistry at N. Concoisus. We demanded you swift reply of the letter. Our cordial academical kindness and gratitude. Respectfully, Alescis Dimitriew."

Realizing that his fellow chemist in Russia is probably right about the impossibility of sending money, Dr. Williams says he will send the books along, although he declares he will not attempt any translation into Russian of his accompanying letter.

THACHER, BOARDMAN IN CONCERT TONIGHT

Boardman studied voice with some of the best American teachers before going to Europe, where he became well known in Italian opera, particularly in Wagnerian roles.

He first came to Eugene in the spring of 1929 to sing a solo role in a presentation of Verdi's "Requiem" by the Eugene Oratorio society. Starting with the fall of 1929 he has been head of the voice department here.

Selections from Faure, Massenet, Respighi and Strauss will be included among the songs which Boardman will present.

Students and the public alike are invited to the recital, for which there will be no admission charge.

VIENNA MAY SAVE OUR CIVILIZATION, IS CLAIM

(Continued from Page One) wine, operas, movies, parties, hotels, restaurants and luxury dogs which are distinguished from working dogs by having a fur robe and a walk about the park every afternoon.

"With the money obtained from these taxes new, modern apartment houses were built. In these quarters 60,000 families are now housed where they had formerly lived in the worst tenements in Europe. Each apartment is equipped with electricity and gas, has two exposures, one of which is southern. The ground floor of each building contains stores and the basements modern laundry equipment. The homes are surrounded by courts and parks kept scrupulously clean."

Women are now entering all walks of life, except theology, Mrs. Scholz stated. The Austrians have great respect for the women, she said, who are not only noted for their beauty but for their intelligence.

Mediterranean Trip To Be Depicted to YW

"Mediterranean Countries" will be described to the Y. W. C. A. World Fellowship group tonight by Evelyn Schmidt, freshman, at the bungalow at 9 o'clock. Italy, Greece, Palestine, Turkey, Egypt, and Jugoslavia will be presented as Miss Schmidt saw them on a recent cruise.

A resident of the continent for two years, Miss Schmidt has traveled extensively in Europe and the Near East, visiting places not usually seen by tourists.

Music for the program will be provided by Merie Saccomanno. Helen Binford, leader, extends a welcome to anyone interested in the meeting.

Books of Travel Form Interesting Collection

Current travel books form an interesting collection in the circulation division of the library. Byrd's "Little America" has received considerable attention, as have also, "The Aran Islands," by Syngue, and "Ends of the Earth," by Andrews.

Other popular books in the collection include: Yeats Brown, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer;" Huxley, "Jesting Pilate;" and Franck, "Working North From Patagonia."

ROOSEVELT LEADS BY 20,000 QUAKER VOTES

Partisans of the 1928 Democratic nominee hailed his capture of the entire Massachusetts delegation of 36 as making him an important figure at the Democratic national convention.

Using as a base the claims of James A. Farley, Roosevelt's pre-convention manager, to a minimum of 52 and a maximum of over 60 of the Pennsylvania delegates, the net result of Tuesday's double-header primary may show that the two New York candidates have about split even on the 112 convention votes involved.

BAUM DEFINES CO-EDS' PART IN POLITICAL RACE

"Participation of women in any political meeting is not to be considered as complete party support, though it may be in some instances.

"Women students are remembering to support the individual they believe best qualified for the office regardless of party affiliation," Miss Baum said.

TALKIE TOPICS

WHAT AND WHERE

McDonald—"The Broken Wing," Lupe Velez, Leo Carillo, Melvyn Douglas.

Colonial—"Ben Hur," Ramon Novarro, Francis X. Bushman, May McAvoy.

Mac—"The Big Shot," Eddie Quillan, Maureen O'Sullivan.

By J. A. NEWTON Lupe Velez is still as lively and vivacious as ever in "The Broken Wing" which finishes its stay at the McDonald tonight. A fine little actress.

Leo Carillo is fine also, and he almost has the best part in the picture, but one is conscious of Lupe, you may be assured.

Carillo "runs-a-dat-a town" like Al Capone used to run Chicago, hence he has his pick of girls. A fortune-telling maid in the household tells Lupe that the king of hearts will drop in any minute now, and sure enough here comes Melvyn Douglas as an aviator. There's a storm and he tries to land and he hits a tree. (That's where the broken wing comes in.) He comes to minus his memory, but he hasn't forgotten his technique with the girls. Anyway, Lupe takes it and likes it, but she wins his heart in the end, as girls will.

So Carillo steps in and mixes a bowl of Mexican revolution and tries to feed it to the young American. Stands him up before the firing squad. Lupe does a fine scene when pleading for the man's life through the bars.

Friday only comes a bunch of laugh pullers in one show: Charles Ruggles, Roland Young, Thelma Todd, and Lily Damita. And we're tickled to death to see them call her Thelma Todd again after trying to call her "Alison Loyd." The show is "This is the Night."

"Ben Hur" Back

The $4,000,000 production of "Ben Hur" of before talkie days returns tonight for three days to the Colonial with sound effects added. Talking has not been added, however, but scenes where sound would enhance the entertainment value of the production, has sound adapted to them. A musical score has been prepared for the entire show.

The Faculty club show this afternoon is "Journey's End," with most of it's original triumphant cast, and with the play unchanged. Much interest is being shown toward this picture as the play was given on the campus last fall at the Guild theatre, and a comparison of performances will be of great interest. Colin Clive is Captain Stanhope in this picture, and is supported by an excellent cast, including Leslie Howard, who was seen in the faculty club show last week. First performance at 2. Others at 3:30 and 5.

Home Town Boy

Makes good in the city, if you please. That's the plot of "The Big Shot" with Eddie Quillan, showing at the Rex for the last time today. Maureen O'Sullivan also appears.

Friday the Rex will have "Suicide Fleet," with Ginger Rogers, Bill Boyd and Robert Armstrong. Did you know that Ginger Rogers used to be married to a gent named Jack Pepper? Ain't that sumpin'?

Faculty Club Entertains With Afternoon Party

The Newcomers Faculty club entertained at a bridge and sewing party yesterday afternoon at the Faculty club in honor of Mrs. Arnold Bennett Hall and the past officers of the organization.

The group of past officers include Mrs. Wayne L. Morse, Mrs. Daniel Gage, and Mrs. Will V. Norris. Mrs. Alfred L. Lomax is the president of the club. Mary Jane Burdick gave a reading during the afternoon.
