Yeomen To Meet Sigma;
SAE, SAM Will Vie

Favorites To Capture Flag
In Donut Tourney Are Undecided

By JOSEPH SASLAVSKY
The playoffs for the intramural soft ball championship will get under way Monday, when two games will be played, each starting at 4 p. m. In one contest, the Yeomen and Sigma hall will do battle, while the Sigma Alpha Mu and Sigma Alpha Epsilon nines are trading hits in another tilt.

The Delta Tau Delta squad, the fifth and remaining aggregation which will vie in the title series, drew a bye and will be horsed combat until Tuesday afternoon at 4 p. m., when it will oppose the winner of the Yeomen-Sigma hall fracas.

Winner Undecided
The probable conqueror of the donut title is an unknown quantity. The Yeomen and Sigma hall teams probably have the better hurlers, with Sol Schneider and Lyman Wiltshire on the hillocks, respectively, but one team will drop out of the running after their fray is completed. The SAE roster is probably the best all-around team, with a wonderful infield and a good outfield which have been pillars of strength in helping Don Eva, the SAE tosser, with his games.

Batteries Announced
The probable batteries for Monday's games are as follows: Yeomen—Schneider and Wicks. Sigma hall—Wiltshire and Ruff. SAM—Goldschmidt and Ruffenberg. SAE—Eva and Phillips.

Huskies Win Over Cougars

Washington State Barely
Loses, 68 to 63, in Dual Meet

WASHINGTON STADIUM, Seattle, May 6.—(AP)—Eddie Genung, national A. A. U. half mile champion, whose ambition is to meet Ben Eastman, Stanford's great runner, in the Olympic games this summer, gave the University of Washington a sensational 68-to-63 victory over Washington State college, in their annual dual track and field battle today.

The mile relay, the last event on the program, decided the issue after both schools were tied at 63-all and Genung, running anchor for the Huskies, burned up the cinders on the final lap to break the tape three yards ahead of Kenneth Wills, flashy Cougar, to hand winning honors to Washington.

Three thousand spectators crowded together at the finish line and cheered Eddie to the echo as he took the baton from his teammate Galer on even terms with Wills and raced to victory. He let Wills set the pace until the final stretch and then shot ahead as they entered the last straightaway. Both boys streaked down the stretch neck and neck until

Bruins Prepare to Emerge
From Football Doldrums

Spaulding Hopes To Have Victorious UCLA Team
For Coming Year

By STUART MILLER
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA (Exclusive to Emerald)
NIA at Los Angeles, May 6.—(Special)—"Der Tag!"

Is 1932 the year when Coach Bill Spaulding will lead the U. C. L. A. Bruins out of the desert into the promised land? Westwood seems to think so, and Herr Spaulding certainly does not deny the fact. In fact, the genial guider of U. C. L. A.'s grid fate is the chief dispenser of the good word.

Let's see what it is that makes the campus and the coaching staff so optimistic. First there's the matter of returning lettermen, of whom Spaulding is blessed with no less than 20. The Bruins lose but four outstanding men in Len Wellendorf, the all-Coast end; Dick Muhlaupt, another stellar wingman; Captain Norman Duncan, fullback; and Lloyd McMillan, tackle.

Heading the list of returning regulars is Lenny Bergdahl, quarterback and hero of U. C. L. A.'s 12-0 victory over St. Mary's, and Bobby Decker, Bergdahl's half-back running mate. These two are a whole backfield in themselves and will be supported adequately by the presence of Joe Keeble, the pile-driving halfback whom Spaulding plans to chance over to a full-back, and Mike Frankovich and Walt Clark, shifty ball toters from the 1931 freshman squad.

In reserve backfield material, Spaulding has plenty. He has no less than four extra quarterbacks in Joe Berry, Johnny Fletcher, Ed Hassler, and Briggs Hunt. Halfbacks are plentiful with Bob Hendry back from the varsity and "Pants" Livesay, "Sleepy" Lightner, and "Pat" Patterson up from the freshman squad.

The fullback post, however, will probably cause Spaulding some trouble. Not only has Captain Duncan graduated but also his second and third string understudies, "Howie" Roberts and Aubrey Grossman. Joe Keeble will be made over from fullback to fill the gap, but a capable substitute will be difficult to find.

It is on the line where the Bruins should win their games next year. The entire forward wall is composed of veterans, four of whose members are seniors.

While critics expect Spaulding flanks to be weak with the loss of Wellendorf and Muhlaupt, the return of Bill Maxwell and Walt Stichel insure the Bruins adequate strength at the wings. The ends are further made potent by the presence of Sinclair Lott and Ralph McChesney, freshman stars.

Spaulding's line from tackle to tackle should fairly generate power. Starting at center and go through the list. For a first string pivot man, the Bruins have Captain Homer Oliver, 205 pounds. His substitute is Lee Coates, another beefy gentleman of about 190 pounds build.

Up to guards and there you have Gordon Jones, "Spec" Haslam, Ed Austin, and Chuck Williams. With the exception of Haslam, the guards weigh around 185 pounds. Haslam and Jones have the inside track on the first string positions at present.

In Jones, Spaulding thinks he has a potential all-american guard if not an all-American. Jones is stockily built, weighs around 185 pounds, and is very fast for his size. He leads the Bruin interference as running guard.

The tackles are another strong point in the Bruin attack. Herr Spaulding has the services of Houghton "Fat" Norfleet, a veteran of two years' standing; Mike Dimas, Ed Rafferty, Kearn Hampton, regulars; and Muller and McComas, up from the freshman eleven.

In addition to this set-up there will be the usual flock of junior college transfers, former ineligibles, and the like, but Spaulding's present needs seem well cared for already and any additional material will have a hard time making the grade.

Not even the most optimistic is ready to admit the Bruins have arrived. That is a matter of another five years, at least. But many believe next season will stand out as the beginning of outstanding gridiron success at U. C. L. A.

Jumping into an early lead, the Oregon State Rooks yesterday defeated the Oregon Frosh 9 to 6.

Prouty pitched the first three innings for the Frosh but was replaced by Lake when too big a lead was amassed by the Rooks. Lake managed to keep things under control for the rest of the game, but the team was unable to overcome the lead taken by the Rooks. He also managed to garner the only home run of the game off Woodard, who replaced Rasmussen in the sixth for the Rooks.

Baseball
Sidelights

By BOB RIDDLE
Good ole Buck Bailey! What would a ball game be without this colorful figure on the sidelines? Buck is the genial coach of the Washington State Cougars, and it's two to one that he figures he won yesterday's game single-handed. He's the foremost exponent of college "luck" methods, and the contortions he doesn't go through during a ball game are not worth mentioning.

Boy, what a hole Buck dug in front of the Cougar players' bench! He's a mammoth fellow with huge hands that remind one of steam shovels. Whenever his boys got in any kind of a hole down went Buck's paw for a scoop of "sod." At the close of the Cougar victory a look at the Washington State bench reminded one of an excavation for the Woolworth building. Thus it is a sure thing that Buck didn't have many restful moments even though his outfit did win the ball game.

Ken Scates suffered two bad innings, the second and the eighth, when the Cougars scored three in each. But for those two innings, Scates had the situation well in hand. His out-drop was working to perfection and it looked as if there was going to be a few broken necks among the Washington boys.

The baseball college was very much in evidence. Those poor freshman football stars certainly took a beating. Austin Colbert was not exempt from a slight "hacking," either. He was caught "high-hatting" the boys and took the consequences. A total of four "piggers" took the grade, too. More power to the baseball college.

It was during the eighth inning that Buck Bailey got going again. First of all he walked up to the orderly arranged bats and kicked them in all directions. Then he started a never ceasing call, "Fourteen hits and fourteen runs!"

Believe it or not, the Cougars did collect three runs on five hits. There must be something to the Bailey system after all. It was during this inning that Buck gave the crowd a big laugh when he picked up the squad water bucket and downed the whole thing.

Probably the biggest treat of the game was the exhibition put on before the start by "Smoky Joe" Lillard and Buck Bailey, and also two Washington State players. It was an unexplainable treat to behold. Joe is playing professional ball this year and Bailey is an old-timer of note.

All in all it was a well-played game, and one worth seeing. The Cougars showed a well-balanced attack, but the Webfoots still think it possible to conquer the men from Pullman, and will be out for blood this afternoon, when the two teams meet again at 2:30.

Lillard and Bailey will again be on the scene to give the crowd a treat, and it will be the last chance for the fans to see the league-leading Cougars in action.

'Tick On' Reigns as Horse To Beat in Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—"Tick On, the black beauty of the East, gained further support today as the standout favorite for the Kentucky Derby as an even score of three-year-olds, the best of a somewhat depleted class, formally were entered for the 58th running of America's most famous horse race tomorrow afternoon.

The swing in expert sentiment toward the star of the Loma stable, owned by Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann of New York, was accelerated by a smashing workout this morning. Outstanding among the thoroughbreds given a good chance to upset the favorite were the entry of Col. E. R. Bradley, Burgoon King and Brother Joe; and the pair that will carry the colors of Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Stephen-fetchit and Over Time.

Tick On remained a 2 to 1 quotation in the wagering. The odds were 6 to 1 each against the Bradley and Whitney horses. J. H. Loucheim's Economic is fourth choice at 8 to 1.
