Go to the Assembly!

If you ever want to go to the University of Oregon again, go to the assembly this morning.

The boys out yonder around the state who are pushing the consolidation plan, the big "economy" idea to REMOVE the University from Eugene to Corvallis, are working hard and fast. The time for action by University students, faculty, and alumni is here right now. The removal measure will in all probability go on the ballot in November. Before that time only TRUE FACTS AND FIGURES which the backers of the University have will defeat the measure. Those facts and figures must reach every University supporter at once. That's the reason for this morning's assembly.

Alexander G. Brown, new alumni secretary, will be the speaker. The administration is dismissing all 10 o'clock classes. It's up to you to be there. This assembly will either be the first in a new era, or the last ever to be held at the University of Oregon at Eugene. The answer rests with the student body. BE THERE.

Finis to Volume 33

WITH this issue, finis is written to Volume 33 of the Oregon Daily Emerald. It's been a great year, and you'll have to take our word for that. There've been days when the news was hot, and others when it was mighty cold, but through it all the Emerald has met each day's problem and given the campus a newspaper of which the staff was justly proud. At this time, the editor thanks every loyal member of his staff from Managing Editor (Old Faithful) Shaw to the newest "cub" reporter for their help. Without their loyal work the Emerald would not have been possible.

Next year the editorial chair goes to Dick Neuberger, as capable a newspaper man as ever enrolled in the University. He has built up an efficient staff, and the campus knows its Emerald next year will continue to serve them as faithfully as it has in the past.

But rough seas are ahead. Certain interests in the state, undoubtedly directed from Corvallis, would junk millions of dollars' worth of student-owned fraternity and sorority property here, to say nothing of University buildings—and remove the school to the Oregon State campus. A fight lies ahead for Oregon students, alumni and faculty, a fight of sound opposition supported by the truth in fact and figure, to the removal idea. Launched as an "economy" scheme, consolidation would cause such economic havoc in the state that any thinking person will not vote for it. Students must carry this message to the state, unless they wish to see their University become a memory instead of a living campus.

The year just past has been a great one. May the one to come see a greater University AT EUGENE, and the state's own college vocational college at Corvallis strengthened in its own field but not enlarged unwisely, as proponents of the removal plan would have done.

Skoal!

WERE GLAD. Those of us who are leaving this year may glance in retrospect at the past four years and survey our collegiate course with mingled feelings. But whatever our individual memories, we should unite in expressing thanks that our university career extended through the tempestuous years of '29, '30, '31 and '32 rather than the rosier semesters of bygone days.

With most of us facing an immediate future that is anything but heartening, we should take fresh hope and courage from the tools that adversity has furnished us. We have gone through the educational mill a little differently than our predecessors. The recreational ardor of the rah-rah days has been dampened. But we're not sorry; we're glad.

For there is much to be thankful for. If the depression days have done nothing else, they have certainly stimulated thought among the undergraduate body. And that, grey-bearded educators staidly inform us, is the primary purpose of universities. We're through taking things for granted, unprotestingly imbibing the educational sustenance doled out by dreamy-eyed professors. We want to know what's what—here and now—and not in the reclusive of musty pages. We've challenged the dogma of formal education, and we're digging deep for the meaty facts that really count.

We've faced the music with a fighting spirit, markedly different from the blithe acceptance of collegians of old. It's been a tough grind for many of us, but the rewards are sweet—and lasting. We can go out into life with our eyes wide open, seeing things as they are and not as others would have us see them. To know and understand and appreciate: those are the fruits we have garnered.

And if cheering were in order we would break through with a lusty yell for those who have had the moral courage to call a spade a spade, and tear the blindfold of formal pedagogy from our eyes. To those students who have had the daring to question the teachings of the classroom we are thankful. And to the members of the faculty who have braved official reproof and given us the "low-down" we are doubly appreciative. They're ace high with us and we think a lot more of them. A word of genuine—not conventional—thanks to our faculty and our president for a courageous fight for truth and education is our parting shot.

We're facing the horizon with empty pockets but open eyes, and we're glad.

A Decade Ago

May 26, 1922

Spring grid practice starts Monday.

Lake county students are to attend Oregon's institutions of higher learning free of charge. A gift of $750,000 was set aside for that purpose in the will of the late Dr. Bernard Daly of Lakeview, and will soon be available.

David Campbell, world renowned pianist and former Oregon student, is to appear in concert Friday evening in Villard hall.

The assembly room in Villard hall will be tinted and redecorated during the summer. No one could be found on the campus yesterday who was able to recall the last time the assembly room was tinted.

The annual Emerald banquet is to be held Saturday. Two cash prizes are to be awarded; one to the reporter handing in the greatest number of unassigned stories, and the other to the night editors who have succeeded in turning out the best paper in typographical makeup.

A new addition to the University museum will be the collection of Indian baskets and other Indian relics, which Mrs. Ada B. Milligan of Prineville plans to loan indefinitely to the University.

Pi Sigma Initiates Six New Members

Six new members were initiated into Pi Sigma, Latin honorary, at the Eugene hotel last night. They were Madeleine Gilbert, Annapauline Rae, Lois Jean Rasch, Eva Jane Peterson, Mary Evelyn Hay, and Mrs. Bess Layman.

After initiation service, new members and new officers were the guests of honor at an informal banquet. Thelma Nelson, former president, acted as toastmistress.

Officers installed for next year were: Eva Nelson, president; Dorothy Jean Withers, vice-president; Betty McCracken, secretary-treasurer; and Barbara Leisz, sergeant-at-arms.

Mrs. Edna Landros, instructor in Latin, was the principal speaker for the occasion, talking on "The Depression on Olympus."

Betty McCracken and Frances Frazier were in charge of arrangements for the banquet.
