

Eight From University Staff Named as Functional Deans

Oregon Faculty Members Will Direct Work on Both Campuses

Eight men from the University of Oregon faculty will act as functional deans in the state system of higher education for the coming year. They will supervise major work on one campus and service courses on the other.

Dr. James H. Gilbert will head the college of social sciences. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Oregon, and took his doctor's degree at Columbia university. Dr. Gilbert has been head of the department of economics since 1920 and was appointed dean of the college of literature, science, and the arts in 1925. President Hall says: "He commands the respect of all his colleagues in social science, is unusually well informed regarding the practical problems of social science as they exist in the state of Oregon, and is unusually well equipped to undertake this work."

Clarence V. Boyer, who has been head of the English department on this campus since 1926, will be dean of the new college of arts and letters. Dr. Boyer received B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Princeton university. In addition, he has studied at the University of Pittsburgh law school, Oxford university, and the American academy at Rome and Athens. From 1911 to 1926, Dr. Boyer was a member of the university faculty at Illinois.

The law work will be under the direction of Wayne L. Morse, who received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1923. He is one of three men in the entire country to be honored with the J.D. degree from Columbia, which was granted in 1931. Dr. Morse has been a member of both the University of Wisconsin and Minnesota faculties. Since 1929 he had been dean of the law school on the Oregon campus, and is the youngest law dean in the United States.

Alfred Powers, present director of the University's extension division, will be dean of the general extension bureau during the coming year. Mr. Powers took his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Oregon in 1910. He has for 20 years been a newspaper correspondent. Mr. Powers has served in various capacities with the American Red Cross. He has published one book, "Marooned in Crater Lake," and contributes articles to current publications.

Physical education is to be directed by John F. Bovard. Dr. Bovard received his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. from the University of California and did graduate work at Harvard university. He has been research assistant at the San Diego Marine station, and professor of zoology at the University of Washington and Southern California. Since 1906 Dr. Bovard has been a member of this faculty, and for the past 12 years has been dean of the physical education school.

Earl L. Packard is the new pure science dean. Dr. Packard has a B.A. and M.A. from the University of Washington and is a Ph.D. from the University of California. He has served as a faculty member at Washington and at the Mississippi A & M. college. Since 1916 Dr. Packard has been professor of geology here, and was made chairman of the department in 1930.

Fine arts will be supervised by Ellis F. Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and came to the University of Oregon in 1914. He has served on the city planning commission in Portland and has been a member of the war housing committee. In addition, Mr. Lawrence is chairman of the art division of the state teachers' association and acts as committee member of the American Institute of Architecture.

The school of medicine will be under the deanship of Dr. Richard B. Dillehunt. Dr. Dillehunt was assistant in pharmacology at the University of Chicago, where he received his M.D. in 1910. He came to the University of Oregon medical school as professor of anatomy and in 1919 assumed the responsibilities of dean of the school. Oregon is recognized as the best medical school in the West, and one of the most outstanding schools of its kind in the country.

New Plan for State Schools Starts in Fall

Distribution To Be on Functional Basis

Eugene, Corvallis Units Are Each Allotted Six Major Divisions

The coming year will see a radically different organization of Oregon's state institutions of higher learning. At that time the reorganization plan of the state board of higher education, which creates an "Oregon State System of Higher Education," will go into effect.

The Eugene campus will be organized as an institution specializing in the social sciences and other liberal arts work, with selected professional schools; the Corvallis campus will be largely a technical and vocational school, and the three normal schools will specialize in elementary teacher training.

Lower division work on the Eugene and Corvallis campuses will be largely the same, so that students who are undecided on their specialty may take foundation work on either campus, later enrolling on the campus where the school or college of their choice is located.

Eugene Schools Listed
Schools and colleges on the Eugene campus will be:

College of Social Sciences—James H. Gilbert, dean and director.

College of Letters and Arts—Clarence V. Boyer, dean and director.

School of Commerce and Business Administration—Harrison Val Hoyt, dean.

School of Law—Wayne L. Morse, dean.

School of Fine Arts—Ellis F. Lawrence, dean and director.

School of Physical Education—John F. Bovard, dean and director.

School of Education—J. R. Jewell, dean and director (also director of physical training).

School of Journalism—Under College of Social Sciences—Eric W. Allen, dean.

Fundamental Basis Used
One of the features of the new plan is the functional rather than geographical distribution of courses and deans of schools.

Under this scheme many of the deans will have supervision of work on both campuses. The heads will be stationed where the major work of their school is offered, but in many cases will have charge of lower division and service courses on the other campus.

It Is Tit-for-Tat For This Canine Blood-Poisoning

TEN years ago, M. H. Douglass, University librarian, was bitten by a dog. He was seriously ill, but apparently he never blamed the canine, for an anonymous communication to the Emerald received yesterday bears the following clipping from the Decade Ago column, dated May 24, 1922, and a brief item of further information:

"M. H. Douglass, University librarian, who early last week was bitten by a dog, is now recovering rapidly from the blood poison which infected his arm."

"Ten years later—the dog is dead from blood poisoning."

ness Administration—Harrison Val Hoyt, dean.

School of Law—Wayne L. Morse, dean.

School of Fine Arts—Ellis F. Lawrence, dean and director.

School of Physical Education—John F. Bovard, dean and director.

School of Education—J. R. Jewell, dean and director (also director of physical training).

School of Journalism—Under College of Social Sciences—Eric W. Allen, dean.

Fundamental Basis Used
One of the features of the new plan is the functional rather than geographical distribution of courses and deans of schools.

Under this scheme many of the deans will have supervision of work on both campuses. The heads will be stationed where the major work of their school is offered, but in many cases will have charge of lower division and service courses on the other campus.

Army Officer Comments On Russia in Startling Epistle

"Russia is down. She was never a nation, and in a few months she will cease to be a nation at all," is one among the predictions of Col. John Leader, one-time distinguished commandant of the University R. O. T. C., versed in his preconceived idea and forecasted dream of what the future withholds for the present crisis faced by the world in a letter received by Prof. W. F. G. Thacher.

"This crisis, which is the most serious the world has ever witnessed—in fact it stands in a class by itself—is going to do great good in the end. And it does not need a soothsayer of any vast perception to see the trend in the end," he predicts.

In continuing his cacoplastic depiction, he states that such nations as France, Roumania, Italy, Belgium, and so forth, will take over the Balkans. Under the beneficent rule of Mussolini or his successors, one great United States of Europe will be formed, which bears out his individual appraisal of the powerful dictator.

He pictures the British Empire closing its ranks after the Ottawa conference in July and her offspring, now grown larger and more powerful than her mother, joining the ranks of the English-speaking confederation to form one great nation with its capitol either at Washington, London or Boston.

Fifty years later, Germany and all the Nordic races will be absorbed, and the millenium will be well on its way. Wars—except with Bolsheviks or other savages—will be only hideous memories. "I think the day of democracy is over. Liberty was always confounded with license and equality is only just another name for envy," he radically declares in the letter.

Colonel Leader was a British officer, invalidated after the battle of Somme out of the British army, who came to the University at the time of the United States' entry into the war. He lived in Eugene and was associated with the University for several years after the war. He is at present living with his wife and three sons in Nice, France, at the Riviera.

Sophisticated Touches

May be acquired by really good jewelry, which is, as all of us know, expensive. Usually we can't afford it. But we've a surprise. Laraway's, at their "closing out" sale, have reduced everything—most of it as low as half price. When the depression's over, we'll never have a chance at such values as these for so low a price. Come to Laraway's Jewelry Store, on Willamette Street, and see for yourself what they're offering!

To Be Modern

The co-ed must keep up at all times. Competition demands that she look her best, so any little "tricks of the trade" are welcomed. At the Eugene Hotel Beauty Parlor, there are many beauty specialists they'll teach you. They'll dye your eyebrows and eyelashes for $1.00. 'Twill guarantee added charm to your eyes. They do excellent work in hair bleaching, waving, and manicure work. Call 647 for an appointment.

Oriental

Intriguing, mysterious, the bits of Oriental jewelry that have just come to the Oriental Art Shop. There's charming ear-drops in Thibet mountings, and there's bracelets, necklaces, and rings. They're set with the most beautiful of Oriental stones—levelly jade, coral, turquoise. Not only is this jewelry new and smart—it's the most exquisite of all modern ornaments! Come to the Oriental Art Shop, on Broadway in the Eugene Hotel Building, and see them!

Fashion Decrees

Stockinged legs this summer. New creations in mesh hose for summer wear, whether at the beach, at the mountains or on city streets. Buster Brown's on Willamette Street have just received a new shipment of mesh hose in all the light summer shades and for only $1.00. Remember to take along an extra pair on the vacation—you'll need them!

Flowers

For Memorial Day—a telegraph service for your convenience to all parts of the country. You'll find just the floral design you want, fresh from the greenhouse at the University Florist, at Thirteenth and Patterson Streets. Don't forget their speedy delivery service, when the table needs a centerpiece in a hurry. The University Florist will be glad to serve you throughout the summer and will be happy to welcome you back to the campus in the fall.

Graduation

Kodaks, fountain pens and pencils, perfumes and powders of various well-known makes—can you ask for a wider selection? Also Oregon jewelry and stationery. You'll find all these at the Oregon Pharmacy, next to Taylor's. High school graduation will soon be here and your younger brother or sister would love a kodak for summer use. Remember, they have the campus agency for Western Union!

Helen Raitanen, please call at the box-office of the Fox McDonald Theater, for two free passes, before Sunday night.
